style, content, and level of instruction. There is also a detailed analysis of crucial doctrinal terminology and an appendix with several texts in the original Swahili and in translation.

As an ethnographic monograph, Jamaa is in my judgment one that is imaginative, well argued, and tightly written. I finished the book by feeling that I had really learned something about this fascinating movement, its articulate members, and its charismatic founder, Father Placide Tempels. I would also recommend it as a source text for studies in comparative religion, political science, African studies, and culture change.

EDWIN ARDENER (ed.), Social Anthropology and Language (ASA Monographs, 10). London: Tavistock Publications, 1971. Pp. cii+318.

'The failure of the great middle generation of social anthropologists to respond to the challenge of language has long been one of the curiosities of the British school of the subject . . .' These are the opening remarks of the editor of the volume, Ardener, and they go a long way to explaining the content of the book. The Association of Social Anthropologists devote their Annual Conference to a single topic and the volume under review is the outcome of the 1969 Conference. Ardener was unfortunate that several members of the ASA who might have contributed to the Conference were away doing fieldwork. Nevertheless, the present lack of expertise or interest in language amongst social anthropologists in Britain can be seen from the fact that only three British anthropologists besides Ardener himself gave papers and all of them were, at the time, research students.

Ardener contributes an introduction which is half the length of the contributed articles put together. In both the introduction and his contributed paper, Ardener's interest lies in comparing the kinds of models with which anthropologists have been operating and their relationship to the kinds of models developed by linguists. He examines De Saussure's notion of semiology pointing out its crucial importance in the anthropological study of symbolic systems and then goes on to spell out very clearly the stages through which Levi-Strauss has moved from his early and unprofitable borrowing of the concept of the phoneme to his more recent work where he is proposing not an exact parallelism between linguistic and anthropological models but a return to De Saussure's semiology as the object of anthropological study. Ardener supports this general notion that the contribution that linguistics can most usefully make is not to provide a model which can be borrowed in toto but forcibly to remind anthropologists of the use and properties of formal models and their relationship to observable data. Linguistic Evidence William M. O'Barr,2014-05-19 With the permission of a North Carolina court more than 150 hours of courtroom speech were recorded for this study These tapes provided a rich archive for a variety of different types of inquiry including the ethnography of courtroom speech and social psychological experiments focused on effects of different modes of presenting information in courts of law Four sets of linguistic variables and related experimental studies have constituted a major portion of the research 1 powerful versus powerless speech 2 hypercorrect versus formal speech 3 narrative versus fragmented testimony and 4 simultaneous speech by witnesses and lawyers All four sets of studies focus on the central question of importance of form over content of testimony   Responsibility and Evidence in Oral Discourse Jane H. Hill,1993-06-03 In Responsibility and evidence in oral discourse twelve prominent linguists and linguistic anthropologists examine responsibility authority and knowledge central but problematic concepts in contemporary anthropology Their detailed case studies analyze diverse forms of oral discourse everyday conversation conversational narrative song oratory divination and ritual poetry in societies in the Americas Africa Asia and the Pacific The studies show how speakers attribute responsibility for acts and states of affairs how particular forms of language and discourse relate to claims and disclaimers of responsibility and how verbal acts are themselves social acts subject to such attributions The volume challenges those cognitive theorists who locate responsibility for the meaning of verbal acts solely in the intentions of individual speakers Instead the contributors focus on the production of meaning between speakers and audiences in particular social and cultural contexts through dialogue and interaction which mediate between linguistic forms and their interpretations This landmark volume will serve for years to come as a point of reference in the study not only of responsibility and evidence but of reported speech authorship and other phenomena in the social life of language Besides linguistic and cultural anthropologists linguistics and folklorists it will interest also readers from pragmatics legal studies sociology religion and social psychology   A Venetian Island Lidia D. debates and issues in ethnography from the conduct of research through to contemporary arguments The result is a landmark work in the field which draws on the expertise of an internationally renowned group of interdisicplinary scholars The Handbook of Ethnography provides readers with a one stop critical guide to the past present and future of ethnography It will quickly establish itself as the ethnographer s bible   Danish Yearbook of Philosophy vol. 28 Finn Collin,Uffe Juul Jensen,Arne Gron,1993 This volume of Danish Yearbook of Philosophy contains articles read as papers at the Symposium on Social Constructivism held in Copenhagen in 1992   Building Europe Cris Shore,2013-11-05 The development of the European Union has been one of the most profound advances in European politics and society this century Yet the institutions of Europe and the Eurocrats who work in them have constantly attracted negative publicity culminating in the mass resignation of the European Commissioners in March 1999 In this revealing study Cris Shore scrutinises the process of European integration using the techniques of anthropology and drawing on thought from across the social sciences Using the findings of numerous interviews with EU employees he reveals that there is not just a subculture of corruption within the institutions of Europe but that their problems are largely a result of the way the EU itself is constituted and run He argues that European integration has largely failed in bringing about anything but an ever closer integration of the technical political and financial elites of Europe at the expense of its ordinary citizens This critical anthropology of European integration is essential reading for anyone with an interest in the culture and politics of the EU
