Essays on aspects of the natural world, its heritage, and how best to preserve it. Europe's engagement from the late sixteenth century onwards in scientific Earth science inquiry has generated numerous and varied collections of minerals, rocks, and fossils, together with their associated archives, artworks, and publications, forming a rich cultural geoheritage held in major private and especially royal and aristocratic collections, museums, universities, archives, and libraries. The mines, quarries, geological structures, landforms, minerals, rocks, and fossils, or geodiversity, that underpin these collections, populate past and present-day Earth science literature. However, for too long, their scientific, historic, and cultural significance was not universally recognised, and generally, they were not accorded adequate resources and protection or geoconservation. Hence, geotourism was developed in the 1990s to raise public awareness of Europe's geoheritage and geodiversity and to promote its geoconservation. The volume's theoretical essays and case studies examine these four core geoelements and provide a timely introduction for anyone interested in natural history, museums, countryside management, and landscape-based tourism. Dr Thomas A. Hose is an Honorary Research Associate in the School of Earth Sciences, University of Bristol. He has pioneered the recognition of and research into geotourism and is the author of the world's first doctoral thesis on the subject. Contributors: Kevin Crawford, Peter Davis, John E. Gordon, Thomas A. Hose, Jonathan G. Larwood, Slobodan B. Markovic, Martin Munt, Emmanuel Reynard, Nemanja Tomic Djordjije, A. Vasiljevic, Margaret Wood, Volker Wrede.

Food tourism is a topic of increasing importance for many destinations. Seen as a means to potentially attract tourists and differentiate destinations and attractions by means of the association with particular products and cuisines, food is also regarded as an opportunity to generate added value from tourism through local agricultural systems and supply chains and the local food system. From a regional development perspective, this book goes beyond culinary tourism to also look at some of the ways in which the interrelationships between food and tourism contribute to the economic, environmental, and social wellbeing of destinations, communities, and producers. It examines the way in which tourism and food can mutually add value for each other, from the fork to the plate and beyond. Looking at products (e.g., cheese, craft beer, noodles, wine), attractions, restaurants, and events, and diverse regional examples (e.g., Champagne, Hong Kong, Jamaica), Margaret

River southern Sweden and Tuscany the title highlights how clustering networking and the cultural economy of food and tourism and foodscapes adds value for regions Despite the attention given to food wine and culinary tourism no book has previously directly focused on the contribution of food and tourism in regional development This international collection has contributors and examples from almost every continent and provides a comprehensive account of the various intersections between food tourism and regional development This timely and significant volume will inform future food and tourism development as well as regional development more widely and will be valuable reading for a range of disciplines including tourism development studies food and culinary studies regional studies geography and environmental studies
