Abstract

The last two decades witnessed increasing scholarly interest in the history of water management in southern Mesopotamia. Thanks to many geoarchaeological research projects conducted throughout the central and southern Iraqi floodplains, a general understanding of the macrophases of anthropogenic manipulation of this vast hydraulic landscape has been achieved. However, current narratives mostly rely on studies at a regional scale and are based on excessively long chronological phases (often spanning a whole millennium). A finer-tuned analysis at a submillennial scale is needed to better appreciate the dynamics that led to the development of artificial canals and irrigation systems and the creation of harbours in cities and other navigation-related facilities. The Iraqi-Italian QADIS project is addressing this issue through a systematic geoarchaeological investigation in the south-eastern area of the Qadisiyah province. We aim to update the current narrative by analysing case studies involving specific periods of occupation. We performed 17 boreholes to propose a date on the functioning period of the hydraulic works in five selected archaeological sites of this region. This approach allowed us to understand changes in water management strategies in both the short and the medium term (i.e., on a scale of centuries). In this paper, we present the results for the fourth and third millennia B.C.E. This period witnessed a crucial passage from the basic exploitation of natural watercourses for irrigation and occasional navigation to the emergence of the first system of artificial canals and intraurban harbours.

Sawyer,2001-01-01 Providing an acute assessment and comprehensive interpretation of the third way whilst neither endorsing nor dismissing its validity this book should be widely read by policymakers political scientists and those with an interest in economic policy and economic analysis Historical Trajectories of Catholicism in Africa Valentine Ugochukwu Iheanacho,2021-10-21 The book masterfully knits together the various curves and routes traveled so far by the Catholic Church in Africa From an African perspective the book presents a general trajectory of Catholicism on the continent by highlighting some significant events and moments in the evolution of the Catholic Church in Africa It equally profiles the Vatican s policy of indigenization as realized on the continent through the Africanization of the local episcopate That policy prepared the way for the emergence of the local churches in Africa on the heels of the post missionary phase that terminated with the convocation of the First African Synod of Bishops in 1994 Beyond the vicissitudes of the relatively recent past the book boldly indicates the likely future shape and direction of African Catholicism It contends that the future shape of the church in Africa may not be determined by a belabored inculturation but instead by how the local churches concern themselves with concrete realities such as poverty lack of opportunities and ecological issues It envisages a church that may not shy away from asserting itself within the mainstream ecclesiastical politics of global Catholicism where it must connect compete and collaborate The Road to Democracy in South Africa South African Democracy Education Trust,2010 v 3 The third volume in the series examines the role of anti apartheid movements around the world The global anti apartheid movement was very successful in creating awareness of the liberation struggle in South Africa and in contributing to the downfall of the apartheid government This volume in 2 parts brings together analyses which in the main are written by activist scholars with deep roots in the movements and organizations they are writing about The Routledge International Handbook of Education,

Religion and Values James Arthur, Terence Lovat, 2013-08-21 The academic fields of religion and values have become the focus of renewed interest in contemporary thinking about human activity and its motivations The Routledge International Handbook of Education Religion and Values explores and expands upon a range of international research related to this revival The book provides an authoritative overview of global issues in religion and values surveying the state of the academic area in contributions covering a wide range of topics It includes emerging controversial and cutting edge contributions as well as investigations into more established areas International authorities Arthur and Lovat have brought together experts from across the world to examine the complexity of the field of study The handbook is organised around four key topics which focus on both the importance of religion and values as broad fields of human enquiry as well as in their application to education inter agency work and cross cultural endeavours The Conceptual World of Religion and Values Religion and Values in Education Religion and Values in Inter agency Work Religion and Values in Cross cultural Work This comprehensive reference work combines theoretical and empirical research of international significance and will be valuable reading for students researchers and academics in the field of education Eberhard Jüngel and Existence Deborah Casewell, 2021-05-30 This book interrogates the contemporary Lutheran theologian Eberhard Jüngel's theological anthropology arguing that Jüngel's thought can provide a model for theological engagement with philosophical accounts of existence Focusing on Jüngel's theology of existence the author explores the thought of philosophers including Heidegger and Hegel their influence on and application to his theology and argues that Jüngel's account of humanity should be seen as a response to atheistic existentialist accounts of existence In showing how Jüngel's theology is informed by and dependent on philosophical thought this book provides a new lens on the interplay between philosophy theology and religion in twentieth century German thought It will be of particular interest to researchers in philosophy theology and philosophy of religion

Sharing the Pain of the Bitter Hearts Simone Lindorfer, 2007 This book reflects the fruitful dialogue between two regional contexts including the encounter of different methodologies namely the context of Latin American liberation psychology as inspired by liberation theology and specifically developed in El Salvador by the Jesuit Ignacio Martin Baro and the context of Eastern African women The book evaluates in four case studies the contribution of liberation psychology in overcoming various forms of gender related violence in Eastern Africa where the author has worked since 1998 as consultant in trauma work The book encourages the critical reflection of current trauma psychology as well as the conceptualisation of a globally oriented practical theology African Voices, African Visions Olugbenga Adesida, Arunma Oteh, 2004 Does Africa have a future What are the visions hopes ambitions and fears of young Africans for the future of the world the continent their nation and their communities How do they envision this world and their roles within it These issues have not previously been explored collectively by Africans because of the enormous challenges and the preoccupation with the present But Africa must not allow the enormity of the problems to blind it to its past and future Africa must chart its own vision of a desirable future and therefore young Africans born just before or after independence were challenged to reflect on the future of the continent This book presents the response to that challenge In this book the voices of a new generation of Africa are heard exploring the future from personal and diverse perspectives The authors have enumerated the ills of Africa analyzed the problems and explored the opportunities Remarkably despite the daunting nature of the challenges they were all hopeful about the future They provided their visions of the future suggest numerous ideas on how to build a new Africa and implored Africans to take responsibility for the transformation of the continent Given the current emphasis on African renaissance and union the ideas presented here could become the basis for a truly shared vision for the continent Prophets and Profits Chaya
