Steinberg, 2010-12-16 The Evolution of the Trade Regime offers a comprehensive political economic history of the development of the world's multilateral trade institutions the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade GATT and its successor the World Trade Organization WTO While other books confine themselves to describing contemporary GATT WTO legal rules or analyzing their economic logic this is the first to explain the logic and development behind these rules The book begins by examining the institutions rules principles practices and norms from their genesis in the early postwar period to the present It evaluates the extent to which changes in these institutional attributes have helped maintain or rebuild domestic constituencies for open markets The book considers these questions by looking at the political legal and economic foundations of the trade regime from many angles The authors conclude that throughout most of GATT WTO history power politics fundamentally shaped the creation and evolution of the GATT WTO system Yet in recent years many aspects of the trade regime have failed to keep pace with shifts in underlying material interests and ideas and the challenges presented by expanding membership and preferential trade agreements

The Evolution and Transformation of International Law Max Hilaire, 2021-12-17 Developments in International Law from the Peace of Westphalia to the Post United Nations Charter

Decolonization and the Evolution of International Human Rights Roland Burke, 2011-06-06 In the decades following the triumphant proclamation of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights in 1948 the UN General Assembly was transformed by the arrival of newly independent states from Asia Africa and the Middle East This diverse constellation of states introduced new ideas methods and priorities to the human rights program Their influence was magnified by the highly effective nature of Asian Arab and African diplomacy in the UN human rights bodies and the sheer numerical superiority of the so called Afro Asian bloc Owing to the nature of General Assembly procedure the Third World states dominated the human rights agenda and enthusiastic support for universal human rights was replaced by decades of authoritarianism and an increasingly strident rejection of the ideas laid out in the Universal Declaration In Decolonization and the Evolution of International Human Rights Roland Burke explores the changing impact of decolonization on the UN human rights program By recovering the contributions of those Asian African and Arab voices that joined the global rights debate Burke demonstrates the central importance of Third World influence across the most pivotal battles in the United Nations from those that secured the principle of universality to the passage of the first binding human rights treaties to the flawed but radical step of studying individual pleas for help The very presence of so many independent voices from outside the West and the often defensive nature of Western interventions complicates the common presumption that the postwar human rights project was driven by Europe and the United States Drawing on UN transcripts archives and the personal papers of key historical actors this book challenges the notion that the international rights order was imposed on an unwilling and marginalized Third World Far from being excluded Asian African and Middle Eastern diplomats were powerful agents in both advancing and later obstructing the promotion of human rights
