The Exotic Prisoner In Russian Romanticism Middlebury Studies In Russian Language And Literature Vol 9:

The Exotic Prisoner in Russian Romanticism Paul M. Austin, 1997 Besides new themes of alienation and desires for self fulfillment European Romanticism brought to Russian literature the congenial themes of captivity and exotic worlds Between 1820 and 1840 there developed an enormous literature with hosts of prisoners in exotic locales in the Caucasus Loneliness and desire for freedom competed with elaborate descriptions of unknown peoples Chechens Georgians Tatars and Circassians to produce a literature of unparalleled brilliance brought to a dazzling culmination by Lermontov's Bela in 1839 The exotic prisoner theme with its exotic trappings then disappears leaving as its heritage the powerful themes of loneliness and introspection which other writers were subsequently to give their own unique treatment Writing at Russia's

Border Katya Hokanson, 2008-01-01 It is often assumed that cultural identity is determined in a country's metropolitan centres Given Russia's long tenure as a geographically and socially diverse empire however there is a certain distillation of peripheral experiences and ideas that contributes just as much to theories of national culture as do urban centred perspectives Writing at Russia's Border argues that Russian literature needs to be reexamined in light of the fact that many of its most important nineteenth century texts are peripheral not in significance but in provenance Katya Hokanson makes the case that the fluid and ever changing cultural and linguistic boundaries of Russia's border regions profoundly influenced the nation's literature posing challenges to stereotypical or territorially based conceptions of Russia's imperial military and cultural identity A highly canonical text such as Pushkin's Eugene Onegin 1831 which is set in European Russia is no less dependent on the perspectives of those living at the edges of the Russian Empire than is Tolstoy's The Cossacks 1863 which is explicitly set on Russia's border and has become central to the Russian canon Hokanson cites the influence of these and other peripheral texts as proof that Russia's national identity was dependent upon the experiences of people living in the border areas of an expanding empire Produced at a cultural moment of contrast and exchange the literature of the periphery represented a negotiation of different views of Russian identity an ingredient that was ultimately essential even to literature produced in the major cities Writing at Russia's Border upends popular ideas of national cultural production and is a fascinating study of the social implications of nineteenth century Russian literature Russian Literature--overview and
