The human body is a complex system of organs and tissues that work together to keep us alive. The heart pumps blood throughout the body, while the lungs take in oxygen and remove carbon dioxide.

The digestive system breaks down food into nutrients that the body can use. The circulatory system transports these nutrients to the cells, which then use them for energy.

The nervous system controls all the other systems in the body. It sends signals to the muscles to move and to the glands to produce hormones.

The immune system protects the body from disease. It identifies and destroys harmful bacteria and viruses.
