Finally, a new interactive web site provides practice test questions and other topics of interest. Children's Language K. E. Nelson, 2014-03-18. First published in 1983. This series Children's Language reflects the conviction that extensive work on entirely new fronts along with a great deal of reinterpretation of old front data will be necessary before any persuasive and truly orderly account of language. For all volumes in the series there is a common scheme of operation with two tactics. First to give authors sufficient planning time and freedom to arrive at a chapter length account of their area of thinking which vividly shows both the progress and the problems in that area with the author of each chapter free to find a workable proportion of new experimental contributions, review and theory. The second tactic concerns the selection of topics for each volume. This is Volume 4. Structures about language and thought and children as employed in certain other fields may well be shaken and stimulated particularly in education, sociology, anthropology, literature and language remediation.

Category Specificity in Brain and Mind Emer Forde, Glyn Humphreys, 2005-07-22. This book aims to provide converging evidence as to how knowledge about different categories is represented in the brain and how this knowledge develops.

Clinician's Handbook of Child Behavioral Assessment Michel Hersen, 2011-04-28. Given the vast amount of research related to behavioral assessment, it is difficult for clinicians to keep abreast of new developments. In recent years, there have been advances in assessment, case conceptualization, treatment planning, treatment strategies for specific disorders, and considerations of new ethical and legal issues. Keeping track of advances requires monitoring diverse resources limited to specific disorders, many of which give short shrift to child assessment, overlooking developmental considerations. Much of the existing literature is either theoretical research in focus or clinical in nature. Nowhere are the various aspects of child behavioral assessment placed in a comprehensive research/clinical context nor is there much integration as to conceptualization and treatment planning The Clinician's Handbook of Child Behavioral Assessment was created to fill this gap summarizing critical information for child behavioral assessment in a single source The Clinician's Handbook of Child Behavioral Assessment provides a single source for understanding new developments in this field cutting across strategies techniques and disorders Assessment strategies are presented in context with the research behind those strategies along with discussions of clinical utility and how assessment and conceptualization fit in with treatment planning The volume is organized in three sections beginning with general issues followed by evaluations of specific disorders and problems and closing with special issues To ensure cross chapter consistency in the coverage of disorders these chapters are formatted to contain an introduction assessment strategies research basis clinical utility conceptualization and treatment planning a case study and summary Special issue coverage includes child abuse assessment classroom assessment behavioral neuropsychology academic skills problems and ethical legal issues Suitable for beginning and established clinicians in practice this handbook will provide a ready reference toward effective child behavioral assessment

Stress, Coping, and Relationships in Adolescence Inge Seiffge-Krenke, 2013-05-13 Unique and comprehensive this volume integrates the most updated theory and research relating to adolescent coping and its determinants This book is the result of the author's long interest in and study of stress coping and relationships in adolescence It begins with an overview of research conducted during the past three decades and contrasts research trends in adolescent coping in the United States and Europe over time Grounded on a developmental model for adolescent coping the conceptual issues and major questions are outlined Supporting research ties together the types of stressors the ways of coping with normative and non normative stressors and the function that close relationships fulfill in this context More than 3 000 adolescents from different countries participated in seven studies that are built programmatically on one another and focus on properties that make events stressful on coping processes and coping styles on internal and social resources and on stress buffering and adaptation A variety of assessment procedures for measuring stress and coping are presented including semi structured interviews questionnaires and content analysis This multimethod multivariate approach is characterized by assessing the same construct via different methods replicating the measures in different studies including cross cultural samples using several informants and combining standardized instruments with very open data gathering The results offer a rich picture of the nature of stressors requiring adolescent coping and highlight the importance of relationship stressors Age and gender differences in stress appraisal and coping style are also presented Mid adolescence emerges as a turning point in the use of certain coping strategies and social resources Strong gender differences in stress appraisal and coping style suggest that females are more at risk for developing psychopathology The book demonstrates how adolescents make use of assistance provided by social support systems and points to the changing influence of parents and peers It addresses controversial issues such as benefits and costs of close relationships or the beneficial or maladaptive effects of avoidant coping Its clear style innovative ideas and instruments make it an excellent textbook for both introductory and advanced courses Without question it may serve as a guide for future research in this field This book will be of value to researchers practitioners and students in various fields such as child clinical and developmental psychology and psychopathology
