Barclay,2009-05-29 This book is the ninth published collection of papers from a Neolithic Studies Group day conference and it continues the Group s aim of presenting research on the Neolithic of all parts of the British Isles The topic regional diversity is an important theme in Neolithic studies today and embraces traditions of monumentality settlement patterns and material culture The contributors to this volume address issues of regionality through a series of case studies that focus not on the traditional cores of Wessex and Orkney but rather on other areas the Irish Sea Zone Ireland Scotland Yorkshire and the Midlands The volume commences with an introduction Gordon Barclay that expands on the initial impetus and research questions behind the 2001 conference this volume is based on This is followed by a more abstract contribution analysing that most familiar of tools for the display of regional archaeological data the distribution map Kenneth Brophy Two papers follow that address the role material culture plays in both defining and characterising regional trends one addressing the distinctive regionality of querns in the Neolithic Fiona Roe the other a wide ranging analysis of high status material culture and monumentality in Yorkshire Roy Loveday A series of regional studies follows with three papers focusing explicitly on a range of evidence from the Irish Sea zone Vicki Cummings Tom Clare and Aaron Watson and Richard Bradley A large and detailed body of evidence from the East Midlands is also considered Patrick Clay and the volume is completed by two papers considering very different regional scales in Ireland At a more localised level a series of islands off the east coast of Ireland are discussed in a local and wider context Gabriel Cooney and a still wider scale approach is taken to landscape and routeways across Ireland as a whole Carleton Jones These papers do not simply set up rival distinctive regions but rather suggest that local regional and national traditions cross cut and combine in different ways in different places The interaction between regions is as significant as intra regional distinctiveness This volume addresses how we might begin to develop a more nuanced vision of the Neolithic of the British Isles      50 Gems of South West Wales Geoff Brookes,2018-04-15 This beautifully photographed selection of fifty of the region s most precious assets shows what makes South West Wales such a popular destination      The Neolithic of the Irish Sea Chris Fowler,2015-03-31 This collection of 24 papers aims to reconsider the nature and significance of the Irish Sea as an area of cultural interaction during the Neolithic period The traditional character of work across this region has emphasised the existence of prehistoric contact with sea routes criss crossing between Ireland the Isle of Man Anglesey and the British mainland A parallel course of investigation however has demonstrated that the British and Irish Neolithics were in many ways different with distinct indigenous patterns of activity and social practices The recent emphasis on regional studies has further produced evidence for parallel yet different processes of cultural change taking place throughout the British Isles as a whole This volume brings together some of these regional perspectives and compares them across the Irish Sea area The authors consider new ways to explain regional patterning in the use of material objects and relate them to past practices and social strategies Were there practices that were shared across the Irish Sea area linking different styles of monuments and material culture or were the media intrinsic to the message The volume is based on papers presented at a conference held at the University of Manchester in 2002      The Heritage Tourist Experience Dallen J. Timothy,2017-05-15 This three volume reference series provides an authoritative and comprehensive set of volumes collecting together the most influential articles and papers on tourism heritage and culture The papers have been selected and introduced by Dallen Timothy one of the leading international scholars in tourism research The second volume The Heritage Tourist Experience focuses on the nature of the heritage experience the demand for heritage and managing visitors and their experiences Sold individually and as a set this series will prove an essential reference work for scholars and students in geography tourism and heritage studies cultural studies and beyond      Patriarchs and Parasites David W. Howell,1986 The 18th century was the high noon of the gentry s influence and power and this study is the first to investigate the fortunes and character of the ruling class of this particular isolated corner of Britain during their golden age      OECD Multi-level Governance Studies The Future of Regional Development and Public Investment in Wales, United Kingdom OECD,2020-09-17 The Welsh Government has set an ambitious and innovative path for regional development and public investment one focused on generating growth and increasing productivity while also reducing territorial disparities and ensuring the well being of citizens now and in the future Yet it faces significant challenges accentuated by limited fiscal decentralisation and changes to public investment financing post Brexit      Seat by Seat Iain Dale,2015-02-03 The 2015 general election is almost upon us but the question on everyone s mind is also the one that no one seems to be able to answer What s the result going to be While political commentators all nervously agree it will be one to remember the truth is that this is the most unpredictable election in recent memory For the first time in British political history we are now in five party politics national swingometers are a thing of the past and opinion polls have been rendered almost irrelevant Despite the challenges involved however political pundit Iain Dale has used recent polling statistics and his famously sharp instinct to predict the result in each and every one of the UK's 650 constituencies And if his predictions are anywhere near correct Britain is on the verge of months perhaps years of political uncertainty and upheaval But will he be proven right Only time will tell DWP's Commissioning Strategy and the Flexible New Deal Great Britain. Restructuring Industry and Territory Anna Giunta, Arnoud Lagendijk, Andy Pike, 2016-02-04

Examining the current trends in regional economic development in Europe Restructuring Industry and Territory explores ways in which the restructuring of industry and territorial development relate to each other their emergent interdependency and role in economic development The book argues that the structural and cultural features of regions play an important part in helping or hindering concerted policies for regional development Using case studies from different industries in a variety of regions the contributors show that the pressures for restructuring such as internationalisation or even globalisation have been mediated by formerly nationally rooted industries in Europe becoming increasingly integrated due to the ongoing processes of technological and organisational innovation and political regulation Population Trends No. 117 Autumn 2004 NA NA, 2004-09-30 This quarterly publication covers population and demographic information It contains commentary on the latest findings topical articles on relevant subjects such as one parent families cohabitation fertility differences international demography population estimates and projections for different groups illustrated with colour charts and diagrams regularly updated statistical tables and graphs showing trends and the latest quarterly information on conceptions births marriages divorces internal and international migration population estimates and projections etc This issue includes articles on Perpetual postponers Women's men's and couple's fertility intentions and subsequent fertility behaviour focussing particularly on women who are childless in their thirties by Ann Berrington Characteristics of sole registered births and the mothers who register them by Steve Smallwood Estimates of true birth order for Scotland 1945-1999 including a comparison with England and Wales data by Jessica Chamberlain and Steve Smallwood Reports on Divorces in England and Wales during 2003 and Internal migration estimates for local and unitary authorities in England and former health authorities in Wales 2003

The Origins of Early Christian Ireland Harold Mytum, 2024-11-18 The cultural developments of Early Christian Ireland have long been recognised and described There have however been few attempts to date to explain why the flowering of culture should happen at the time and in the way that it did First published in 1992 The Origins of Early Christian Ireland now with a new preface by the author explains changes in the period up to AD 800 in Ireland External stimuli most notably from Irish settlers in western Britain acted as catalysts which transformed a relatively moribund Iron Age culture into one of extraordinary vigour All aspects of the culture changed radically and changes in each had knock on effects on others Beliefs were revolutionised by Christianity society was transformed by the church as an institution and the rise of the individual agriculture was expanded by more advanced technology and the entrepreneurial flair of individual decision making craft production became more widespread and offered a vehicle for the display of personal wealth and status Long distance trade and ecclesiastical contacts integrated Ireland with the rest of Europe more effectively than ever before The book has two distinctive features which means that it relates to two forms of academic market each of which can be defined Firstly it deals with a particular culture historical period that of Early Christian Ireland and presents an explanation of its origins and development to AD 800 This appeals to archaeologists and historians of Ireland Britain and indeed Europe Secondly it takes a specific theoretical position and develops it using primarily archaeological but also extensive historical information This is the most detailed application of processualist theory yet undertaken for a historic period in Europe This appeals to archaeologists and anthropologists in Britain and also North America where the processualist approach is the most popular theoretical position

Regions and Industries Pat Hudson, 1989-10-26 In this book a team of distinguished historians contend that industrialization in Britain and elsewhere occurred first and foremost within regions rather than in the nation as a whole

The Cambridge Social History of Britain, 1750-1950 F. M. L. Thompson, 1990 Whilst in certain quarters it may be fashionable to suppose that there is no such thing as society historians have had no difficulty in finding their subject The difficulty rather is that the advance has occurred through such an outpouring of research and writing that it is hard for anyone but the specialist to keep up with the literature or grasp the overall picture In these three volumes as is the tradition in Cambridge Histories a team of specialists has assembled the jigsaw of recent monographic research and presented an interpretation of the development of modern British society since 1750 from three complementary perspectives those of regional communities of the working and living environment and of social institutions Each volume is self contained and each contribution thematically defined contains its own chronology of the period under review Taken as a whole they offer an authoritative and comprehensive view of the manner and method of the shaping of society in the two centuries of unprecedented demographic and economic change
