here and their essays discuss a wealth of women's issues from four centuries: race, urbanization and feminism, the myth of southern womanhood, preset images and assigned social roles from the belle to the mammy and real life behind the facade of meeting others' expectations, poverty and the labor movement, responses to Uncle Tom's Cabin and the influence of Gone with the Wind. The history of southern women's literature tells ultimately the story of the search for freedom within an insidious tradition. To quote Ellen Glasgow: "This teeming volume validates the deep contributions and pleasures of an impressive body of writing and marks a major achievement in women's and literary studies."

What Southern Women Know (That Every Woman Should) Ronda Rich, 2000-09-01 A Southern Belle Primer meets The Rules in this engaging volume that explains the mystique of Southern women and why they always get what they want and shows women how to get the same kind of romantic, professional and personal success.

Nineteenth-Century Southern Women Writers Melissa Heidari, Brigitte Zaugg, 2019-08-12 The essays in this book explore the role of Grace King's fiction in the movement of American literature from local color and realism to modernism and show that her work exposes a postbellum New Orleans that is fragmented socially, politically and linguistically. In her introduction, Melissa Walker Heidari examines selections from King's journals and letters as views into her journey toward a modernist aesthetic, what King describes in one passage as the continual voyage. I made Sirpa Salenius sees King's fiction as a challenge to dominant conceptualizations of womanhood and a reaction against female oppression and heteronormativity. In his analysis of An Affair of the Heart, Ralph J. Poole highlights the rhetoric of excess that reveals a social satire debunking sexual and racial double standards. Ineke Bockting shows the modernist aspects of King's fiction through a stylistic analysis which explores spatial, temporal, biological, psychological, social and racial liminalities. Françoise Buisson demonstrates that King's writing is inspired by the Southern oral tradition but goes beyond it by taking on a theatrical dimension that can be quite modern and even experimental at times. Kathie Birat claims that it is important to underline King's relationship to realism for the metonymic functioning of space as a signifier for social relations.

is an important characteristic of the realist novel Stephanie Durrans analyzes The Story of a Day as an incest narrative and focuses on King's development of a modernist aesthetics to serve her terrifying investigation into social ills as she probes the inner world of her silent character Amy Doherty. Mohr explores intersections between regionalism and modernism in public and silenced histories as well as King's treatment of myth and mobility. Brigitte Zaugg examines in The Little Convent Girl King's presentation of the figure of the double and the issue of language as well as the narrative voice which she argues definitely inscribes the text with its understatement economy and quiet symbolism in the modernist tradition. Miki Pfeffer closes the collection with an afterword in which she offers excerpts from King's letters as encouragement for scholars to seek Grace King as a primary source arguing that Grace King's own words seem best able to dialogue with the critical readings herein. Each of these essays enables us to see King's place in the construction of modernity; each illuminates the continual voyage that King made.

Southern Women at the Seven Sister Colleges Joan Marie Johnson, 2010 From the end of Reconstruction and into the New South era more than one thousand white southern women attended one of the Seven Sister colleges: Vassar, Wellesley, Smith, Mount Holyoke, Bryn Mawr, Radcliffe, and Barnard. Joan Marie Johnson looks at how such educations in the North at some of the country's best schools influenced southern women to challenge their traditional gender roles and become active in woman suffrage and other social reforms of the Progressive Era South. Attending one of the Seven Sister colleges, Johnson argues, could transform a southern woman indoctrinated in notions of domesticity and dependence into someone with newfound confidence and leadership skills. Many southern students at northern schools imported the values they imbibed at college, returning home to found schools of their own, women's clubs, and woman suffrage associations. At the same time, during college and after graduation, southern women maintained a complicated relationship to home, nurturing their regional identity and remaining loyal to the ideals of the Confederacy. Johnson explores why students sought a classical liberal arts education, how they prepared for entrance examinations, and how they felt as southerners on northern campuses. She draws on personal writings, information gleaned from college publications and records, and data on the women's decisions about marriage, work, children, and other life-altering concerns. In their time, the women studied in this book would eventually make up a disproportionately high percentage of the elite southern female leadership. This collective biography highlights the important part they played in forging new roles for women, especially in social reform, education, and suffrage.

Southern Women Novelists and the Civil War Sharon Talley, 2014-03-30 During and after the Civil War, southern women played a critical role in shaping the South's evolving collective memory by penning journals and diaries, historical accounts, memoirs, and literary interpretations of the war. While a few of these writings, most notably Mary Chesnut's diaries and Margaret Mitchell's novel Gone with the Wind, have been studied in depth by numerous scholars, until now there has been no comprehensive examination of Civil War novels by southern women. In this welcome study, Sharon Talley explores works by fifteen such writers, illuminating the role that southern women played in fashioning cultural identity in the region.

Beginning with Augusta Jane Evans's Macaria and Sallie Rochester Ford's Raids and Romance of Morgan and His Men which were published as the war still raged Talley offers a chronological consideration of the novels with informative introductions for each time period. She examines Reconstruction works by Marion Harland, Mary Ann Cruse, and Rebecca Harding Davis; novels of the Redeemed South and the turn of the century by Mary Noailles Murfree, Ellen Glasgow, and Mary Johnston; and narratives by Evelyn Scott, Margaret Mitchell, and Caroline Gordon from the Modern period that spanned the two World Wars. Analysis of Margaret Walker's Jubilee (1966), the first critically acclaimed Civil War novel by an African American woman of the South, as well as other post-World War II works by Kaye Gibbons, Josephine Humphreys, and Alice Randall, offers a fitting conclusion to Talley's study by addressing the inaccuracies in the romantic myth of the Old South that Gone with the Wind, most famously engraved on the nation's consciousness, informed by feminist poststructural and cultural studies theory. Talley's close readings of these various novels ultimately refute the notion of a monolithic interpretation of the Civil War, presenting instead unique and diverse approaches to balancing fact and fiction in the long period of artistic production concerning this singular traumatic event in American history.

Sharon Talley, professor of English at Texas A M University, Corpus Christi, is the author of Ambrose Bierce and the Dance of Death and Student Companion to Herman Melville. Her articles have appeared in American Imago, Journal of Men's Studies, and Nineteenth Century Prose. Telling Memories Among Southern Women

Susan Tucker, 2002-04-01 In Telling Memories Among Southern Women, Susan Tucker presents a revealing collection of oral history narratives that explore the complex, sometimes enigmatic bond between black female domestic workers and their white employers from the turn of the twentieth century to the civil rights revolution of the 1960s. Based on interviews with forty-two women of both races from the Deep South, these narratives express the full range of human emotions and successfully convey the ties that united and the tensions and conflicts that separated these two mutually dependent groups of women.

Southern Women in the Recent Educational Movement in the South A. D. Mayo, 2001-03-01 Like many other northern clergymen after the Civil War, A. D. Mayo became interested in the role that education could play in rebuilding southern society. From 1880 to 1900 he traveled from Virginia to Texas as an educational missionary, advocating the new education theories of the 1840s and 1850s. In time he came to be considered one of the most perceptive observers of southern education during the period from the end of Reconstruction to the rise of the Redeemer governments in the 1890s. Mayo was convinced that the changes in southern society that Reconstruction had failed to bring about could be realized under a sound educational system. Learning, he believed, should be based on individual needs rather than on rote memorization of facts, and teachers should be recruited from those trained in the civilizing values of the Old South. In Southern Women, Mayo set forth at length the ideas that southern white women were the ideal ones to transmit learning to the young blacks. Stressing the greatly expanding role of these women because of the war, Mayo saw them as a kind of elite trained in the ideals and culture of the Old South but receptive to the values of the New South. In their introduction, Dan Carter and Amy

Friedlander place Mayo in the context of nineteenth century intellectual and social currents and provide an interesting perspective on his often surprisingly contemporary sounding ideas on education

Negotiating Boundaries of Southern Womanhood Janet L. Coryell, 2000 In eleven thought provoking essays covering the early nineteenth through the early twentieth centuries Negotiating Boundaries of Southern Womanhood examines the complex intersections of race class and gender and the ways in which southern women dealt with the powers that be and in some instances became those powers Elitism status and class were always filtered through a prism of race and gender in the South and women of both races played an important role in maintaining as well as challenging the hierarchies that existed to claim a share of power for themselves in a male dominated
