Southern Region Steam Album 1948-1967 Sidney Charles Nash, 1974 Black Country Steam, Western Region Operations, 1948-1967 Paul Dorney, 2022-08-09 The railway lines of the heavily industrialised Black Country were of considerable commercial importance to the fortunes of the Great Western Railway and its successor the Western Region of British Railways Nevertheless they received little attention from both photographers of the railway scene and contemporary railway publishers alike Perhaps understandably photographers particularly in the post war austerity years chose to eschew the grimy industrial landscape of North West Worcestershire and South East Staffordshire and save their expensive film stock for more idyllic scenery elsewhere The book seeks to redress that previous lack of attention by presenting a significant selection of hitherto unpublished photographs principally by locally based enthusiasts accompanied by informative captions Throughout the period from nationalisation to the ultimate demise of steam it follows the respective former GW routes through the region in a logical manner depicting the wide variety of the locomotive power employed to haul the diverse traffic generated by the local industry and the sidings and yards that served it Coverage is also given to local locomotive running sheds and maintenance facilities Most of the featured lines have now closed as is also true of much of the heavy industry A resident from the immediate post war years would find the area unrecognisable but it is to be hoped that the book will rekindle memories of a landscape now lost forever The Industrial Archaeology and Industrial History of South-eastern England, 1990 Subject Catalog, 1975 Library of Congress, 1975 A Bibliography of British Railway History, 1988 Subject Catalog Library of Congress, 1975 The Railway Magazine, 2006 The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells, 1992 National Union Catalog, 1978 Includes entries for maps and atlases *Ottley's Bibliography of British Railway History.
