The Life of Nelson, by Robert Southey Robert Southey, Southey's Life on Nelson Michael MacMillan,2009-05

Southey's Life of Nelson is an enlargement of an article that appeared in 1810 in the Quarterly Review not much more than four years after Nelson's death. Written while the hero's memory is still fresh in the hearts of his countrymen and while the great Enemy of England whose naval power he had almost annihilated still threatened by land the liberties of the civilized world Southey's narrative is full of the enthusiasm and patriotism which animated the English in the greatest of their wars. Many of the earliest books particularly those dating back to the 1900s and before are now extremely scarce and increasingly expensive. We are republishing these classic works in affordable high quality modern editions using the original text and artwork Southey's Life of Nelson Allan F. Wescott,2013-10 This is a new release of the original 1923 edition

MacMillan,2015-07-13 Excerpt from Southey's Life of Nelson Edited With Introduction and Notes No more striking contrast could be devised by the ingenious than that which is afforded by the life of England's Admiral and the life of his most famous biographer. Nelson's career was varied adventurous exciting Southey's monotonous sequestered and serene. For the poet there were no single handed conflicts with boat loads of assassins no hairbreadth escapes from fire and wounds and shipwreck no rescuing of royal families and re-establishment of dynasties no destruction of fleets or overthrow of Emperors. The greatest days in Southey's life were days when he first made the acquaintance of one of the world's classics received the proofs of a magnum opus which was to rank him with the Immortals or met in the flesh some literary giant whose work he had read and admired. The main facts of his life can therefore be sketched in rapid outline. Born on 12th August 1774 he was the son of a Bristol linendraper who came of good yeoman stock in the Quantocks and who married Margaret Hill an accomplished lady of gentle parentage. The drapery business unhappily did not flourish and Robert in infancy was transferred from his parents care to the household of Miss Elizabeth Tyler his mother's half sister. This lady who in many essentials resembled David Copperfield's aunt Miss Betsy Trotwood was prepared to play the part of fairy godmother so long as her nephew allowed his career to be moulded by her imperious hands. Robert's education from the first was carefully conducted and after the rudiments of knowledge had been acquired in Bristol and the neighbourhood the future Poet Laureate aged fourteen and a half went up to Westminster.
