

THE SOUTHWEST NECROPOLIS OF SATRICUM

MARIJKE GNADE

This book contains a catalogue of 167 graves which cover the major part of a necropolis from the 5th century BC lying on the territory of ancient Satricum. The graves were excavated 1981-1986 and were attributed to the Volscian occupants of the town. The catalogue is preceded by an extensive introduction in which the topography and layout of the cemetery, the individual graves and their chronology, and the occupants of the graves are discussed. 560p, 500 illus/pls (Scrinium Vol IV/Satricum Vol II, Thesis 1993) $177.00

Southwest Necropolis Of Satricum:

The Southwest Necropolis of Satricum Marijke Gnade, E. J. M. van Berkel, 1992 This book is the final report of the rescue excavations which took place from 1989 to 1986 in the Southwest Necropolis of Satricum Borgo Le Ferriere Latium well known in antiquity for its sanctuary of the Latin goddess Mater Matuta They were carried out as a part of the Satricum Research Project which started in 1977 under the auspices of the Dutch Institute in Rome The Southwest Necropolis has been attributed to the Volscians an indigenous people of central Italy who according to Livy captured Satricum in 488 B C Presumably they stayed there until 346 B C The non Latian character of the necropolis seems to be confirmed by archaeological evidence like the remarkable burial gift of a miniature lead axe head with an inscription in an indigenous dialect Other evidence for the Volscian identification includes the intramural location of the graves some of the pottery shapes and the regular presence of grave goods So far the Southwest Necropolis is the only known cemetery in Latium from this period in which the graves regularly contain burial gifts More than 200 trench graves have been documented 167 of which have been completely excavated Inhumation is the only recorded form of burial in most of cases in rectangular wooden coffins

Excavations at Satricum (Borgo Le Ferriere) 1907-1910 Birgitte Ginge, Marshall Joseph Becker, 1996 The ancient site of Satricum modern Borgo Le Ferriere ca 60 kilometres south of Rome was excavated by Italian archaeologists in 1896 1898 and again in 1907 1910 Finds from the earlier of these two excavations have been on display in the Villa Giulia Museum in Rome since they were first excavated The material from the second excavation in 1907 1910 has not previously been presented to the public This volume presents all the extant information deriving from the four seasons of excavation at Satricum in 1907 1910 During the period the archaeologists recovered more than thirty burials in an Iron Age necropolis uncovered the foundations of a hut near the temple for Mater Matuta and excavated an otherwise unknown sanctuary with a small temple and votive deposits within the southwestern portion of the settlement Interpretation of the archaeological data and the field records from part of these excavations adds new and exciting information to our understanding of the society that created one of the most famous sanctuaries in ancient Latium

The Northwest Necropolis of Satricum Demetrius J. Waarsenburg, 1995 This book presents the results of the excavation campaigns which were conducted almost a century ago in the Northwest Necropolis of Satricum Borgo Le Ferriere Latium Between 1896 and 1898 Italian excavators exposed a series of tombs here dating from the Iron Age to the Orientalising period The spectacular finds remained virtually unknown until the 1970s when renewed interest in Latial protohistory brought about a first reappraisal of the Satrican evidence The incentive was a sad event however Considerable parts of ancient Satricum and its necropolis which had remained virtually intact up to the 1960s were now being destroyed by agricultural activities When the Comitato per l'Archeologia Laziale invited the Dutch Institute in Rome to re open archaeological research at the site the Northwest Necropolis had already been converted into vineyards What remains today is the impressive tomb furniture partly on display and partly in storage at the

Villa Giulia Museum in Rome This study provides an extensive analysis and description of this material The cemetery as a whole documents Satricum's rise and growth in the centuries preceding the Archaic period It sheds a new and surprisingly detailed light on how a modest Iron Age village rapidly developed into one of the most potent cities in the Latial plain

Social Struggles in Archaic Rome Kurt A.

Raaflaub, 2008-04-15 This widely respected study of social conflicts between the patrician elite and the plebeians in the first centuries of the Roman republic has now been enhanced by a new chapter on material culture updates to individual chapters an updated bibliography and a new introduction Analyzes social conflicts between patricians and plebeians in early republican Rome Includes chapters by leading scholars from both sides of the Atlantic illuminating social economic legal religious military and political aspects as well as the reliability of historical sources Contributors have written addenda for the new edition updating their chapters in light of recent scholarship

Satricum in the Post-archaic Period Marijke

Gnade, 2002 How can material culture be related to written history The archaeological record of ancient Satricum Borgo Le Ferriere Latium presents an interesting case study During the fifth and fourth centuries BC the area was reportedly invaded by the Volscians This Central Italian people had long been archaeologically invisible but recent investigations at Satricum have brought to light a rich record of material remains from precisely this period The question is does it reflect a Volscian presence or prove the continued occupation of the original Latin inhabitants This study argues that the material culture does indeed reflect a Volscian presence but that it in no way confirms the barbarian image presented by ancient sources such as Livy Marijke Gnade has lectured on Italian Archaeology at the University of Amsterdam since 1987 After participating in the Satricum Research Project for ten years she became its executive director in 1991 Her first book on the subject The Southwest Necropolis of Satricum was published in 1992

Fields, Farms and Colonists Tymon C. A. de Haas, 2011

In this study the author addresses two important issues in Roman archaeology On the basis of a comparison of intensive field surveys in different parts of the Pontine region central Italy it is argued that detailed site and off site collection strategies have much to offer in understanding site chronology and land use patterns Setting the field survey data in a wider geographical and historical context the author also explores the context and impact of the foundation of Roman colonies and rural tribes on rural settlement systems as such contributing to current debates on the nature of early Roman colonization

Regional Pathways to Complexity P. A. J. Attema, G.-J. L. M. Burgers, Martijn van Leusen, 2010 Deze bundel is een mijlpaal in het onderzoek naar de Oude Middellandse Zee Met behulp van een vergelijkende aanpak zijn drie verschillende regionale landschappen van Italië uitvoerig onderzocht door archeologen Om een zeer gedetailleerd beeld te krijgen van de ontwikkeling van menselijke activiteiten van de late Bronstijd tot de opkomst van het Romeinse Rijk is er minutieus onderzoek gedaan naar nederzettingen heiligdommen en begraafplaatsen De milieugeschiedenis van deze gebieden en de geschiedenis van het door mensen gebruikte land zijn parallel geanalyseerd door gespecialiseerde projecten Wat ontstaat is een onge evenaarde reeks van inzichten in hoe regionale samenlevingen zich intern ontwikkelen en reageren op externe interventies zoals het kolonialisme imperialisme en internationale handel

Textile Production in Pre-Roman Italy

Margarita Gleba, 2008-11-05 Older than both ceramics and metallurgy textile production is a technology which reveals much about prehistoric social and economic development This book examines the archaeological evidence for textile production in Italy from the transition between the Bronze Age and Early Iron Ages until the Roman expansion 1000 400 BCE and sheds light on both the process of technological development and the emergence of large urban centres with specialised crafts Margarita Gleba begins with an overview of the prehistoric Appennine peninsula which featured cultures such as the Villanovans and the Etruscans and was connected through colonisation and trade with the other parts of the Mediterranean She then focuses on the textiles themselves their appearance in written and iconographic sources the fibres and dyes employed how they were produced and what they were used for we learn for instance of the linen used in sails and rigging on Etruscan ships and of the complex looms needed to produce twill Featuring a comprehensive analysis of textiles remains and textile tools from the period the book recovers information about funerary ritual the sexual differentiation of labour the spinners and weavers were usually women and the important role the exchange of luxury textiles played in the emergence of an elite Textile production played a part in ancient Italian society's change from an egalitarian to an aristocratic social structure and in the emergence of complex urban communities

The Peoples of Ancient Italy Gary D. Farney, Guy

Bradley, 2017-11-20 Although there are many studies of certain individual ancient Italic groups e.g. the Etruscans Gauls and Latins there is no work that takes a comprehensive view of each of them the famous and the less well known that existed in Iron Age and Roman Italy Moreover many previous studies have focused only on the material evidence for these groups or on what the literary sources have to say about them This handbook is conceived of as a resource for archaeologists historians philologists and other scholars interested in finding out more about Italic groups from the earliest period they are detectable early Iron Age in most instances down to the time when they begin to assimilate into the Roman state in the late Republican or early Imperial period As such it will endeavor to include both archaeological and historical perspectives on each group with contributions from the best known or up and coming archaeologists and historians for these peoples and topics The language of the volume is English but scholars from around the world have contributed to it This volume covers the ancient peoples of Italy more comprehensively in individual chapters and it is also distinct because it has a thematic section

A Research Guide to the Ancient World John M. Weeks, Jason de Medeiros, 2014-11-25 The archaeological study of the ancient world has become increasingly popular in recent years A Research Guide to the Ancient World Print and Electronic Sources is a partially annotated bibliography The study of the ancient world is usually although not exclusively considered a branch of the humanities including archaeology art history languages literature philosophy and related cultural disciplines which consider the ancient cultures of the Mediterranean world and adjacent Egypt and southwestern Asia Chronologically the ancient world would extend from the beginning of the Bronze Age of ancient Greece ca 1000 BCE to the fall of the Western Roman Empire ca 500 CE This book will close the traditional subject gap between the humanities Classical World Egyptology and the social sciences anthropological archaeology Near East in the study of the ancient world This book is uniquely the only bibliographic resource available for such holistic coverage The volume consists of 17 chapters and seven appendixes arranged according to the traditional types of library research materials bibliographies dictionaries atlases etc The appendixes are mostly subject specific including graduate programs in ancient studies reports from significant archaeological sites numismatics and paleography and writing systems These extensive author and subject indexes help facilitate ease of use

A Fragmented History Gijs Willem Tol, 2012 This dissertation presents four methodological case studies that elaborate on the results of two field survey projects the Astura and Nettuno surveys that were carried out by the Groningen Institute of Archaeology GIA The case studies aim at investigating biasing factors that limit the analytical and comparative value of data from archaeological survey in general using these two projects as a suitable testing ground Both surveys carried out between 2003 and 2005 fell within the ambit of the Pontine Region Project PRP a long term research program aimed at the diachronic archaeological investigation of the various landscape units forming this region They covered two contiguous areas situated on the Tyrrhenian seaboard approximately 60 kilometres south of Rome The study area comprises the communal area of the modern town of Nettuno as well as the lower valleys of the Astura and Mosele rivers see fig 0 1 2 As such it incorporates parts of the hinterland of the ancient towns of Antium and Satricum In chronological terms this dissertation considers a time span of 1300 years from the 6th century BC to the 7th century AD Old World Archaeology Newsletter, 1996 Satricum Barbara Heldring, 1998 The Ridge-pole Statues from the Late Archaic Temple at Satricum Patricia S.
