Competition Reuben Steff, 2025-01-31 This book advances the establishment of a contemporary New Zealand geopolitical tradition It details and examines New Zealand's geopolitical reality in an increasingly fractured global security dis order defined by interdependent strategic competition and emerging multipolarity A centrepiece is the multidimensional US China Great Power Competition that has the makings of a Second Cold War This has immense implications for New Zealand's greater region the Indo Pacific and its immediate area the South Pacific The latter is of existential importance to New Zealand becoming an active area of strategic competition as China projects its influence southwards and New Zealand Australia and the United States respond In this context New Zealand's location is increasingly geopolitically relevant and the idea it occupies a benign security environment has now been cast into the dustbin of history The decisions it makes presently will determine the country's prosperity and geostrategic security for decades Geopolitical theory along with a detailed empirical account of strategic competition in the Indo Pacific and South Pacific offers a clear exposition of the implications of US China competition for New Zealand This directs us to the nation's material characteristics and imperatives that flow from it The book also appraises the country's strategic options and indicates how and why Wellington's approach has shifted over time from hedging between the US and China to increasingly balancing against Beijing's efforts to alter the global and regional status quo Through analysis and provocation this book marks a major new contribution that will interest policymakers academics students and everyday citizens

Beyond Hostile Islands Daniel McKay, 2024-04-02 WINNER JAVIER COY BIENNIAL RESEARCH AWARD BEST MONOGRAPH Offers a fascinating window into how the fraught politics of apology in the East Asian region have been figured in anglophone literary fiction The Pacific War 1941-1945 was fought across the world's largest ocean and left a lasting imprint on anglophone literary history However studies of that imprint or of individual authors have focused on American literature without drawing connections to parallel traditions elsewhere Beyond Hostile Islands contributes to ongoing efforts by Australasian scholars to place their national cultures in conversation with those of the United States particularly regarding studies of the ideologies that legitimize warfare Consecutively the book examines five of the most significant historical and thematic areas associated with the war island combat economic competition internment imprisonment and the atomic bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki Throughout the central issue pivots around the question of how or whether at all New Zealand fiction writing differs from that of the United States Can a sense of islandness the tyranny of distance M ori cultural heritage or the political legacies of the nuclear free movement provide grounds for distinctive authorial insights As an opening gambit Beyond Hostile Islands puts forward the term ideological coproduction to describe how a territorially and demographically more minor national culture may accede to the essentials of a given ideology while differing in aspects that reflect historical and provincial dimensions that are important to it Appropriately the literary texts under examination are set in various locales including Japan the Solomon Islands New Zealand New Mexico Ontario and the Marshall Islands The book concludes in a deliberately open ended pose with the full expectation that literary writing on the Pacific War will grow in range and richness aided by the growth of Pacific Studies as a research area

Designing Worlds Kjetil Fallan, Grace Lees-Maffei, 2016-06 From consumer products to architecture to advertising to digital technology design is an undeniably global phenomenon Yet despite their professed transnational perspective historical studies of design have all too often succumbed to a bias toward Western industrialized nations This diverse but rigorously curated collection recalibrates our understanding of design history reassessing regional and national cultures while situating them within an international context Here contributors from five continents offer nuanced studies that range from South Africa to the Czech Republic all the while sensitive to the complexities of local variation and the role of nation states in identity construction

the Move in a Changing Climate Etienne Piguet, Frank Laczko, 2013-10-17 Policymakers around the world are increasingly concerned about the likely impact of climate change and environmental degradation on the movement of people This book takes a hard look at the existing evidence available to policymakers in different regions of the world How much do we really know about the impact of environmental change on migration How will different regions of the world be affected in the future Is there evidence to show that migration can help countries adapt to environmental change What types of research have been conducted how reliable is the evidence These are some of the questions considered in this book which presents for the first time a synthesis of relevant research findings for each major region of the world Written by regional experts the book provides a comprehensive overview of the key findings of existing studies on the linkages between environmental change and the movement of people More and more reports on migration and the environment are being published but the information is often scattered between countries and within regions and it is not always clear how much of this information is based on solid research This book brings this evidence together for the first time highlighting innovative studies and research gaps In doing this the book seeks to help decision makers draw lessons from existing studies and to identify priorities for further research

Aid, Ownership and Development John Overton, Warwick Murray, Gerard Prinsen, Tagaloa Ulu, Nicola Wrighton, 2018-08-06 One of the key principles for effective aid programmes is that recipient agencies exert high degrees of ownership over the agendas resources systems and outcomes of aid activities Sovereign recipient states should lead the process of development Yet despite this well recognised principle the realities of aid delivery mean that ownership is often compromised in practice Aid Ownership and Development examines this inverse sovereignty hypothesis with regard to the states and territories of the Pacific Island region It provides an initial overview of different aid regimes over time maps aid flows in the region and analyses the concept of sovereignty Drawing on a rich range of primary research by the authors and contributors it focuses on the agencies and individuals within the Pacific Islands who administer and apply aid projects and programmes There is indeed evidence for the inverse sovereignty effect particularly when island states and their small and stretched bureaucracies have to deal with complex and burdensome donor reporting requirements management systems consultative meetings and differing strategic priorities This book outlines important ways in which Pacific agencies have proved adept not only at meeting these requirements but also asserting their own priorities and ways of operating It concludes that global agreements such as the Paris Declaration on Aid Effectiveness in 2005 and the recently launched Sustainable Development Goals can be effective means for Pacific agencies to both hold donors to account and also to recognise and exercise their own sovereignty
