Cognitive Processes in Writing Lee W. Gregg, Erwin R. Steinberg, 2016-07-15 Originally published in 1980 this title began as a set of questions posed by faculty on the campus of Carnegie Mellon University What do we know about how people write What do we need to know to help people write better This resulted in an interdisciplinary symposium on Cognitive Processes in Writing and subsequently this book which includes the papers from the symposium as well as further contributions from several of the attendees It presents a good picture of what research had shown about how people write of what people were trying to find out at the time and what needed to be done

Translation and Cognition Gregory M. Shreve, Erik Angelone, 2010-05-28 Translation and Cognition assesses the state of the art in cognitive translation and interpreting studies by examining three important trends methodological innovation the evolution of research design and the continuing integration of translation process research results with the core findings of the cognitive sciences Several of the volume's essays focus on fruitful new process research methods such as eye tracking and keystroke logging that have arisen to supplement the use of think aloud protocols Another set of contributions investigates how some central theories concepts and methods from our sister disciplines of psycholinguistics cognitive psychology and neuroscience can inform our understanding of translation processes and their development in novices and experts Yet another set of essays argues that methodological innovation and integration with the cognitive sciences can lead to more robust research designs and theoretical frameworks to explain the intricacies of cognitive processing during translation and interpreting. Thus this timely volume actively demonstrates that a new theoretical and methodological consensus in cognitive translation studies is emerging promising to greatly improve the quality, verifiability and generalizability of translation process research.

Exploring the Situational Interface of Translation and Cognition Maureen Ehrensberger-Dow, Birgitta Englund Dimitrova, 2018-08-02

The contributions of this volume explore the dynamics of the interface between the cognitive and situational levels in translation and interpreting. Until relatively recently there has been an invisible line in translation and interpreting studies between cognitive research e.g. into mental processes or attitudes and sociological research e.g. concerning organization status or institutions. However rapid developments in translation and interpreting practices professional non professional have brought to the fore the need to rethink theoretical perspectives and to apply new research methods. The chapters in this volume aim to contribute to this discussion through conceptual and/or empirical research. Drawing on different theoretical and methodological frameworks they offer insights into diverse translation and interpreting situations in a number of different countries and cultures and their consequences for individual and collective cognition. Originally published as special issue of Translation Spaces 5.1 2016.

Clarissa on the Continent Thomas O. Beebee, 2011-08-31

Clarissa on the Continent defines and explores two strategies of literary translation creative vs preservative and strong vs weak as they transform one of the most influential English novels. Thomas Beebee compares the two opposing strategies as they influence the French translation of Clarissa by the novelist Antione François de Prévost and the German translation by the Göttingen Orientalist Johann David Michaelis and in doing so he demonstrates that each translator found authority for his procedure within the text itself. Each translation is also examined in light of Richardson's other writings and placed in its literary and cultural context. This study uses translations in order to interpret Clarissa to show how the basis for the novel's reception on the Continent was laid and to explore the differences and interactions among three literary and cultural systems of the eighteenth century. The close examination of these two important translations enable the formulation of not only a theory of creative vs preservative translation but also the interconnections between literary theory and translation theory. Beebee also looks at later translations of Clarissa as products of literary and historical change and at Prévostian strategies of the novel.

Learning to Spell Charles A. Perfetti, Laurence Rieben, Michel Fayol, 1997-08-01

This distinctive cross linguistic examination of spelling examines the cognitive processes that underlie spelling and the process of learning how to spell. The chapters report and summarize recent research in English German Hebrew and French. Framing the specific research on spelling are chapters that place spelling in broad theoretical perspectives provided by cognitive neuroscience psycholinguistic and writing system linguistic frameworks. Of special interest is the focus on two major interrelated issues how spelling is acquired and the relationship between reading and spelling An important dimension of the book is the interweaving of these basic questions about the nature of spelling with practical questions about how children learn to spell in classrooms A motivating factor in this work was to demonstrate that spelling research has become a central challenging topic in the study of cognitive processes rather than an isolated skill learned in school It thus brings together schooling and learning issues with modern cognitive research in a unique way testing children writing strings of letters as a teacher pronounces words ever so clearly In parts of the United States it can also bring an image of specialized wizardry and school room competition the spelling bee And for countless adults who confess with self deprecation to being terrible spellers it is a reminder of a mysterious but minor affliction that the fates have visited on them Beneath these popular images spelling is a human literacy ability that reflects language and nonlanguage cognitive processes This collection of papers presents a sample of contemporary research across different languages that addresses this ability To understand spelling as an interesting scientific problem there are several important perspectives First spelling is the use of conventionalized writing systems that encode languages A second asks how children learn to spell Finally from a literacy point of view another asks the extent to which spelling and reading are related In collecting some of the interesting research on spelling the editors have adopted each of these perspectives Many of the papers themselves reflect more than one perspective and the reader will find important observations about orthographies the relationship between spelling and reading and issues of learning and teaching throughout the collection

Developing Language and Literacy Ronit Levie, Amalia Bar-On, Orit Ashkenazi, Elitzur Dattner, Gilad Brandes, 2022-10-07 This volume dedicated to Dorit Ravid offers 29 new chapters on the multiple facets of spoken and written language learning and usage from a group of illustrious scholars and scientists focusing on typologically different languages and anchored in a variety of communicative settings The book encompasses five interrelated yet distinct topics One set of studies is in the field of developmental psycholinguistics covering the acquisition of lexical and grammatical categories from toddlerhood to adolescence A second topic involves a section of studies on the interface of cognition and language with chapters on processing production comprehension teaching and learning language in usage and in historical perspective A third topic involves a theoretical and applied perspectives on the acquisition and development of literacy competence including reading writing spelling and text production A fourth topic brings together an array of studies on social environmental and clinical diversity in language highlighting novel issues in multilingualism immigration language and literacy disorders Finally a section of the volume examines in depth questions in Modern Hebrew linguistics as the home language and launching base of Dorit Ravid's research work

Ethnographies of Academic Writing Research Ignacio Guillén-Galve, Ana Bocanegra-Valle, 2021-10-15 This book illustrates the use of ethnography as an analytical approach to investigate academic writing and provides critical insights into how academic writing research can benefit from the use of ethnographic methods Throughout its six theoretical and practice oriented studies together with the introductory chapter foreword and afterword ethnography related concepts like thick description deep theorizing participatory research research reflexivity or ethics are discussed against the affordances of ethnography for the study of academic writing The book is key reading for scholars researchers and instructors in the areas of applied linguistics academic writing academic literacies and genre studies It will also be useful to those lecturers and postgraduate students working in English for Academic Purposes and disciplinary writing The volume provides ethnographically oriented researchers with clear pointers about how to incorporate the telling of the inside story into their traditional main role as observers

Empirical modelling of translation and interpreting

Hansen-Schirra, Silvia, Czulo, Oliver, Hofmann, Sascha, 2017 Empirical research is carried out in a cyclic way approaching a research area bottom up data lead to interpretations and ideally to the abstraction of laws on the basis of which a theory can be derived Deductive research is based on a theory on the basis of which hypotheses can be formulated and tested against the background of empirical data Looking at the state of the art in translation studies either theories as well as models are designed or empirical data are collected and interpreted However the final step is still lacking so far empirical data has not lead to the formulation of theories or models whereas existing theories and models have not yet been comprehensively tested with empirical methods This publication addresses these issues from several perspectives multi method product as well as process based research may gain insights into translation as well as interpreting phenomena These phenomena may include cognitive and organizational processes procedures and strategies competence and performance translation properties and universals etc Empirical findings about the deeper structures of translation and interpreting will reduce the gap between translation and interpreting practice and model and theory building Furthermore the availability of more large scale empirical testing triggers the development of models and theories concerning translation and interpreting phenomena and behavior based on quantifiable replicable and transparent data

Hindustan Times Sultanul Arefin,2024-10-11 A Comparative Critical Discourse Analysis of the Two News Articles from the BBC News and the Hindustan Times this insightful study explores how media language shapes narratives and public opinion By analyzing reports on the assassination of Canadian Sikh leader Hardeep Singh Nijjar it contrasts the BBC s neutral fact based reporting with the Hindustan Times more nationalistic framing Through a detailed examination of language ideology and discourse the study sheds light on the role of the media in shaping international relations and influencing global perceptions of key events

Complex Problem Solving Robert J. Sternberg,Peter A. Frensch,2014-01-14 Although complex problem solving has emerged as a field of psychology in its own right the literature is for the most part widely scattered and often so technical that it is inaccessible to non experts This unique book provides a comprehensive in depth and accessible introduction to the field of complex problem solving Chapter authors experts in their selected domains deliver systematic thought provoking analyses generally written from an information processing point of view Areas addressed include politics electronics and computers

Language, Text, and Knowledge Lita Lundquist,Robert J. Jarvella,2010-12-14 The series serves to propagate investigations into language usage especially with respect to computational support This includes all forms of text handling activity not only interlingual translations but also conversions carried out in response to different communicative tasks Among the major topics are problems of text transfer and the interplay between human and machine activities

News As Discourse Teun A. van Dijk,2013-10-28 First Published in 1990 This book presents a new interdisciplinary theory of news in the press Against the background of developments in discourse analysis it is argued that news should be studied primarily as a form of public discourse Whereas in much mass communication research the economic social or cultural dimensions of news and news media are addressed the present study emphasizes the importance of an explicit structural analysis of news reports Such an analysis should provide a qualitative alternative to traditional methods of content analysis Also attention is paid to processes of news production by journalists and news comprehension by readers in terms of the social cognitions of news participants In this way news structures can also be explicitly linked to social practices and ideologies of news making and indirectly to the institutional and macro sociological contexts of the news media
