

An artistic illustration depicting a teenage cancer journey. In the foreground, a young woman with short dark hair and blue eyes looks directly at the viewer. Behind her, a winding path leads up a green hill. Along the path, two young women are shown: one in a green shirt and yellow collar, and another in an orange shirt. In the background, two medical professionals in blue scrubs and masks stand on the left, while a woman with long dark hair looks down from the right. The overall style is painterly and emotional.

Two-Timed: an Adolescent Cancer Memoir Danielle DuChateau, 2021-01-20 The journals are those of a girl I once knew who had cancer and wrote about her experiences She wanted to share her story in a way that would have helped her in a book about having cancer as a teen written by a teen who experienced it She wasn't lost in battle but she's been gone a long time and I haven't been able to forget her or let her go The story seems unfamiliar and yet I know it by heart It feels like yesterday but seems like a lifetime ago It's the story I never wrote because it was already written and at the heart of it is my journey with cancer a muse a curse and a blessing I've read the book before but I never closed the first chapter a book of journals written by a girl who had cancer Cancer is a part of my story and being a survivor is part of my identity but it is not my entire identity as I felt it was when I was younger At the end of my second treatment I decided I was going to write my story and publish it I even thought of the perfect title for my book Two Timed An Adolescent Cancer Memoir I thought of it because I felt two timed by my own body whose very defense system had attacked itself and it had happened to me twice But I didn't write the story The years went by and I decided I could not very well write an adolescent memoir when I was well into my twenties but I still had my journals all the journals Several more years elapsed until now twenty three years after the journey began I am finally writing the story
