Teenagers from Somalia describe the conditions in their war torn and famine stricken country and their experiences since coming to live in the United States and Canada      Seeking Salaam Sandra M. Chait,2011-12-01 Prolonged violence in the Horn of Africa the northeastern corner of the continent has led growing numbers of Ethiopians Eritreans and Somalis to flee to the United States Despite the enmity created by centuries of conflict they often find themselves living as neighbors in their adopted cities with their children as class mates in school In many ways they are successfully navigating life in their new home however they continue to struggle to bridge old ethnic divisions and find salaam or peace with one another News from home fuels historical grievances and perpetuates tensions within their communities delaying acculturation undermining attempts at reconciliation and sabotaging the opportunity to reach the American Dream In conversations with forty East African immigrants living in Seattle Washington and Portland Oregon Sandra Chait captures the immigrants struggle for identity in the face of competing stories and documents how some individuals have been able to transcend the ghosts from the past and extend a tentative hand to their former enemies      Educated for Change? Patricia Buck,Rachel Silver,2012-12-01 Educated for Change Muslim Women in the West inserts Muslim women s voice and action into the bifurcated and otherwise male dominated relations between the West and the Islamic East A multilayered multisite educational ethnography Buck and Silver s study takes a novel approach to its feminist charge Drawing upon thick description of refugee women s school experiences in two seemingly distinct locations Educated for Change engages the dual nature of schooling as at once a disciplinary apparatus of local national and international governance and paradoxically a space and process through which school community members wield the power to observe deliberate and act as agents in the creative and willful endeavor of living In doing so the text locates formal schooling as a key location at which one can witness the politics of cultural change that emerge when Western and Islamic communities converge Following an initial introduction to the ethno historical formation and dissolution of the Somali postcolonial state resulting in a prolonged exodus of Somali citizens the text is divided into two parts Part One features an examination of young women s approaches to schooling in the Dadaab refugee camps of northeastern Kenya Part Two looks at schooling among Somali women resettled in a northern region of the United States Each part includes a description of the unique if interconnected local factors and policies that give rise to particular forms and ends of schooling as designed for refugee women Several chapters depict women s strategic use of schooling to respond to structural forces build intercultural social networks and negotiate new ways of being Somali women Educated for Change concludes with an analysis of the implications of Somali refugee women s schooling experiences for working definitions of global social justice that undergird feminist political scholarship and gender sensitive humanitarian aid policy and practice      Failed States Matthew Bukovac,2010-08-15 Provides information on countries throughout the world that are on the verge of financial collapse and different viewpoints on how to deal with the issue      Advancing Democracy Through Education? Doyle Stevick,Bradley A. U. Levinson,2008-09-01 This book explores the diversity of

American roles in such cross cultural engagement in education for democracy both within the United States and around the world Cross cultural engagement in education for democracy inevitably bears the impressions of each culture involved and the dynamics among them Even high priority well funded U S government programs are neither monolithic nor deterministic in their own right but are rather reshaped adapted to their contexts and appropriated by their partners These partners are sometimes called recipients although that label is problematic Recipient both gives a misleading impression that partners are relatively passive in the overall process and its use is a reflection of some outside donors or experts stance that they are delivering goods or expertise The authors of these chapters pay close attention to the cultures contexts structures people and processes involved in education for democracy Woven throughout this volume s qualitative studies are the notions that contacts between powers and cultures are complex and situated that agency matters that local meanings play a critical role in the dynamic exchange of peoples and ideas The authors span an array of fields that concern themselves with understanding languages cultures institutions the close view of daily life and the broad horizon of the past that shapes the present history anthropology literacy studies policy analysis political science and journalism Together these 10 chapters provide a rich sampling of the diverse contexts and ways in which American ideas practices and policies of education for democracy are spread encountered appropriated rejected or embraced around the world While not meant to provide a complete or systematic overview of the American influence on education for democracy around the world the volume nevertheless introduces concepts identifies processes notes obstacles and challenges and reveals common themes that can help us to understand American influence on education for democracy more clearly wherever it occurs
