Television And The Public Sphere:

Television and the Public Sphere Peter Dahlgren, 1995-10-01 In this broad ranging text Peter Dahlgren clarifies the underlying theoretical concepts of civil society and the public sphere and relates these to a critical analysis of the practice of television as journalism as information and as entertainment He demonstrates the limits and the possibilities of the television medium and the formats of popular journalism These issues are linked to the potential of the audience to interpret or resist messages and to construct its own meanings What does a realistic understanding of the functioning and the capabilities of television imply for citizenship and democracy in a mediated age

Public Television For Sale

William Hoynes, 2019-09-16 Public television is uniquely positioned in our country to contribute to the invigoration of democratic public life because ostensibly it is neither driven by the market nor dominated by the state In this comprehensive analysis of the forces that shape our public television system sociologist William Hoynes finds that public television increasi

Television, the Public Sphere, and National Identity

Monroe E. Price, 1995 Television s role and influence in time in age of globalisation of the media The Public Sphere and Satellite Television in North Africa Ratiba Hadj-Moussa, 2018-10-19 The advent of satellite television and its adoption in the Maghreb brought about a profound social change This book which explores the relationships between the media and the public sphere shows that the simple and quotidian act of watching satellite television as opposed to national television mobilizes novel ways of expressing identities along with a range of critical positions targeting political regimes By bringing certain topics hitherto hardly present to the center of homes the media reveals the pivotal functions of gender relations which are today at the heart of social and political matters in Algeria Morocco and Tunisia Based on extensive fieldwork this book offers a unique interpretation of the use of satellite television in authoritarian contexts and contributes to a better understanding of the media and the political public sphere The book will interest teachers and students in communication political studies gender studies sociology and anthropology of the Arab worlds and the Mediterranean

Television, the Public Sphere and National Identity Monroe Edwin Price, 2023 This study gives a broad reinterpretation of television s role and influence on democratic societies in a time of increased globalization of the media Covering developments in both the USA and Europe it examines the relationship between television and society and predicts TV s future

and routine part of most people's everyday lives but also the subject of continued concern from academia and beyond But what do we really know about television the ways that we watch it the meanings that are made and its relationship to ideology democracy culture and power Television Audiences and Everyday Life draws on an extensive body of audience research to get behind this seemingly simple activity Written in a clear and accessible style key audience studies are presented in ways that illuminate critical debates and concepts in cultural and media studies Key topics and case studies include News debate and the public sphere Reality television talk shows and media ethics Soap opera play and gossip The uses of television in the home Television identity and globalization Textual analysis discourse and semiotics Each chapter makes a compelling case for the importance of audience research in our thinking about television texts The case studies introduce important new terms in the study of television such as play semiosis and modality while also throwing new light on familiar terms such as decoding ideology and the public sphere Television Audiences and Everyday Life is essential reading for undergraduate students on media cultural studies and sociology courses or anybody who wants to understand television its genres and their place in everyday life

Reality Squared James Friedman, 2002 Reality based television has come to play a major role in both production decisions and network strategy This text examines the representation of reality within the televisual viewing frame as well as the exponential growth of these programmes Women and TV Culture in Pakistan Munira Cheema, 2018-07-30 The television broadcasting culture of Pakistan was changed dramatically in 2002 The President General Pervez Musharraf introduced a policy of liberalisation that enabled controversial issues such as honour killings adultery stoning to death domestic violence marriage after divorce and homosexuality to be increasingly depicted on screen Women and TV Culture in Pakistan is the first in depth analysis of this change in television content Munira Cheema focuses on how gender issues are dealt with on TV and examines the impact this has on female viewers In Pakistan television is often the only way in which women can access the public sphere except through male guardians and this book evaluates how TV content allows them to navigate their intersecting identities as Muslims women and Pakistanis At a time when religious conservatism is on the rise in the country this book investigates why producers choose to focus on gender based issues and the extent to which religion dictates social behaviour and broadcasting choices Based on interviews with women viewers in Karachi as well as industry professionals including writers directors and ratings experts the research is a much needed and original contribution to global television studies and gender studies A Companion to Reality Television

Japan Marc Steinberg, Alexander Zahlten, 2017-03-09 Providing an overview of Japanese media theory from the 1910s to the present this volume introduces English language readers to Japan's rich body of theoretical and conceptual work on media for the first time. The essays address a wide range of topics including the work of foundational Japanese thinkers, Japanese theories of mediation and the philosophy of media, the connections between early Japanese television and consumer culture and architecture's intersection with communications theory. Tracing the theoretical frameworks and paradigms that stem from Japan's media ecology, the contributors decenter Eurocentric media theory and demonstrate the value of the Japanese context to reassessing the parameters and definition of media theory itself. Taken together, these interdisciplinary essays expand media theory to encompass philosophy, feminist critique, literary theory, marketing discourse, and art, providing a counterbalance to the persisting universalist impulse of media studies and emphasizing the need to consider media theory situationally. Contributors: Yuriko Furuhashi, Aaron Gerow, Mark Hansen, Marilyn Ivy, Takeshi Kadobayashi, Keisuke Kitano, Akihiro Kitada, Thomas Looser, Anne McKnight, Ryoko Misono, Akira Mizuta Lippit, Miryam Sas, Fabian Schfer, Marc Steinberg, Tomiko Yoda, Alexander Zahlten. Uses of Television John Hartley, 2002-01-04 How does television function within society? Why have both its programmes and its audiences been so widely denigrated? Taking inspiration from Richard Hoggart's classic study The Uses of Literacy, John Hartley's new book is a lucid defence of the place of television in our lives and of the usefulness of television studies. Hartley reconceptualizes television as a transmodern medium capable of reuniting government, education, and media, and of creating a new kind of cultural teaching which facilitates communication across social and geographical boundaries. He provides a historical framework for the development of both television and television studies, his focus ranging from an analysis of the early documentary Housing Problems to the much overlooked cultural impact of the refrigerator. Relocating Television Jostein Gripsrud, 2012-07-26 For over half a century, television has been the most central medium in Western democracies, the political, social, and cultural centrepiece of the public sphere. Television has therefore rarely been studied in isolation from its socio-cultural and political context; there is always something important at stake when the forms and functions of television are on the agenda. The digitisation of television concerns the production, contents, distribution, and reception of the medium, but also its position in the overall, largely digitised media system and public sphere where the internet plays a decisive role. The articles in this comprehensive collection are written by some of the world's most prominent scholars in the field of media communication and cultural studies, including critical film and television studies. Relocating Television offers readers an insight into studying television alongside the internet, participatory media, and other technocultural phenomena such as DVDs, user-generated content, and everyday digital media production. It also focuses on more specific programmes and phenomena, including The Wire, MSN amateur footage in TV news, Bollywoodization of TV news, YouTube fan sites, tied to e.g. Grey's Anatomy and X Factor. Relocating Television will be highly beneficial to both students and academics across a wide range of undergraduate and postgraduate courses, including media communication and cultural studies and television and film studies Television in Bangladesh Ratan Kumar Roy, 2020-12-28 This book examines the role of 24/7 television news channels in Bangladesh. By using a multi-sited ethnography of television news media, it showcases the socio-political undercurrents of media practices and the everydayness of TV news in Bangladesh. It discusses a wide gamut of issues such as news making, localised public sphere, audience reaction and viewing culture, impact of rumours and fake news, socio-political conditions, protest mobilization, newsroom politics and perspectives from the ground. An important intervention in the subject, this book will be useful to scholars and researchers of media studies, journalism and mass communication, anthropology, cultural studies, political sociology, political science, sociology, South Asian studies as well as television professionals, journalists, civil society activists and those interested in the study of Bangladesh.

Escaping the Global Village Niamh Hourigan, 2004-01-01 In the face of expanding global media, Europe's linguistic minorities have begun to resist the homogenizing forces of television. Escaping the Global Village documents and analyzes various campaigns by indigenous minority language advocates throughout Europe for alternative language television services.
