Margaret J. Heide,1995-02 Contemporary cultural theory feminist criticism and ethnography converge in this provocative study of the construction of meaning in mass culture Television Culture and Women s Lives explores the complex relationship between the gender conflicts played out in the scripts of the popular television show thirtysomething and the real life conflicts experienced by baby boomer women viewers Women viewers often reinterpreted the program s conservative view on gender roles seeing it instead as a protest against real dilemmas women face as they try to integrate career and family priorities Heide s study confirms women viewers close identifications with thirtysomething characters and positions audience responses against the backdrop of changes in the lives of women in the 1980s and 1990s Television Culture and Women s Lives accessibly treats fascinating issues related to cultural criticism the relationship between mass media and audiences and the struggles faced by women in late twentieth century America Television, History, and American Culture Mary Beth

Merchandise Morris B. Holbrook, 1993 Insights into the nature of the consumer society and its ethos of consumption can often emerge from interpreting even the most lowly specimens of popular culture In this spirit a neglected genre that promises to shed light on the culture of consumption appears in the form of the daytime television game shows whose hegemonic message seems to convey and to justify a widespread obeisance to the mandate of materialism These game shows often present a text that demands a readerly monosemic dominant interpretation as an unabashed celebration of merchandise In particular a close analysis of the longest running game show The Price Is Right suggests that all facets of this program combine to reinforce its central meaning as a ritualistic validation of consumption oriented greed An alternative resistant reading is explored but rejected in part because it rests on an assumption that violates the empirical data and in part because it provides a more convincing analysis of a program like Supermarket Sweep In short the present study concludes that TV game shows in general and The Price Is Right in particular reflect and reinforce the obsession that many modern consumers feel with merchandise valued almost for its own sake beyond any need or even capacity to use it as a kind of disembodied target of misdirected desire Rethinking Media, Religion, and Culture Stewart M.
