Television and Society. An Inquest and Agenda for Improvement Harry Jay Skornia,1965 Television and Society Robert Beck Burrows,1965 Television and Social Behavior John P. Murray,Oguz Bulent Nayman,1971 Out of the Garden Stephen Kline,1993 This timely and innovative book provides a detailed history of marketing to children revealing the strategies that shape the design of toys and have a powerful impact on the way children play Stephen Kline looks at the history and development of children s play culture and toys from the teddy bear and Lego to the Barbie doll Care Bears and Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles He profiles the rise of children s mass media books comics film and television and that of the specialty stores such as Toys R Us revealing how the opportunity to reach large audiences of children through television was a pivotal point in developing new approaches to advertising Contemporary youngsters he shows are catapulted into a fantastic and chaotic time space continuum of action toys thanks to the merchandisers interest in animated television Kline looks at the imagery and appeal of the toy commercials and at how they provide a host of stereotyped figures around which children can organize their imaginative experience He shows how the deregulation of advertising in the United States in the 1980s has led directly to the development of the new marketing strategies which use television series to saturate the market with promotional character toys Finally in a powerful re examination of the debates about the cultural effects of television Out of the Garden asks whether we should allow our children s play culture to be primarily defined and created by marketing strategies pointing to the unintended consequences of a situation in which images of real children have all but been eliminated from narratives about the young Public Health Service Publication ,1971 Women and TV Culture in Pakistan Munira Cheema,2018-07-30 The television broadcasting culture of Pakistan was changed dramatically in 2002 The President General Pervez Musharraf introduced a policy of liberalisation that enabled controversial issues such as honour killings adultery stoning to death domestic violence marriage after divorce and homosexuality to be increasingly depicted on screen Women and TV Culture in Pakistan is the first in depth analysis of this change in television content Munira Cheema focuses on how gender issues are dealt with on TV and examines the impact this has on female viewers In Pakistan television is often the only way in which women can access the public sphere except through male guardians and this book evaluates how TV content allows them to navigate their intersecting identities as Muslims women and Pakistanis At a time when religious conservatism is on the rise in the country this book investigates why producers choose to focus on gender based issues and the extent to which religion dictates social behaviour and broadcasting choices Based on interviews with women viewers in Karachi as well as industry professionals including writers directors and ratings experts the research is a much needed and original contribution to global television studies and gender studies Daytime Television Game Shows and the Celebration of Merchandise Morris B. Holbrook,1993 Insights into the nature of the consumer society and its ethos of consumption can often emerge from interpreting even the most lowly specimens of popular culture In this spirit a neglected genre that promises to shed light on the culture of consumption appears in the form of the daytime television game shows whose hegemonic message seems to convey and to justify a widespread obeisance to the mandate of materialism. These game shows often present a text that demands a readerly monosemic dominant interpretation as an unabashed celebration of merchandise. In particular, a close analysis of the longest running game show The Price Is Right suggests that all facets of this program combine to reinforce its central meaning as a ritualistic validation of consumption oriented greed. An alternative resistant reading is explored but rejected in part because it rests on an assumption that violates the empirical data and in part because it provides a more convincing analysis of a program like Supermarket Sweep. In short, the present study concludes that TV game shows in general and The Price Is Right in particular reflect and reinforce the obsession that many modern consumers feel with merchandise valued almost for its own sake beyond any need or even capacity to use it as a kind of disembodied target of misdirected desire.

A History of Broadcasting in the United States Erik Barnouw, 1968-02-20
Tells how radio and television became an integral part of American life of how a toy became an industry and a force in politics, business, education, religion, and international affairs.

A History of Broadcasting in the United States: The Image Empire Erik Barnouw, 1970-02-18
During the 1940s in a frontier atmosphere of enterprise and sharp struggle, an American television system took shape. But even as it did so its pioneers pushed beyond American borders and became programmers to scores of other nations. In its first decade, United States television was already a world phenomenon. Since American radio had for some time had international ramifications, American images and sounds were radiating from transmitter towers throughout the globe. They were called entertainment or news or education but were always more. They were a reflection of a growing United States involvement in the lives of other nations, an involvement of imperial scope. The role of broadcasters in this American expansion and in the era that produced it is the subject matter of The Image Empire, the last of three volumes comprising this study.

The Hollywood TV Producer Muriel G. Cantor, 2017-07-12
Except for accounts of journalists, dissident employees, and an occasional congressional committee focusing on crime and unethical practices, we have known very little about how television programs are produced. The Hollywood TV Producer, originally published in 1971, was the first serious examination of constraints, conflicts, and rewards in the daily lives of television producers. Its insights were important at the time and have not been challenged. Using as her framework the social system of mass communications, Muriel G. Cantor shows how producers select stories for television series and how movies end up in prime time. In order to get a comprehensive look at the inner workings of the TV industry and its producers, the author interviewed eighty producers in Hollywood over a two-season period. She probed to discover how the people producers work for and where they work influences their decision making. As Cantor shows, critics of television who suggest that to remain in production a producer must first please the business organization that finances his or her operations are largely correct. Cantor shows that content is determined by a combination of artistic and professional factors as well as social, economic, and political norms that have developed over time in the industry Oratorical Culture in Nineteenth-century America Gregory Clark, S. Michael Halloran, 1993 Gregory Clark and S Michael Halloran bring together nine essays that explore change in both the theory and the practice of rhetoric in the nineteenth century United States In their introductory essay Clark and Halloran argue that at the beginning of the nineteenth century rhetoric encompassed a neoclassical oratorical culture in which speakers articulated common values to establish consensual moral authority that directed community thought and action As the century progressed however moral authority shifted from the civic realm to the professional thus expanding participation in the community as it fragmented the community itself Clark and Halloran argue that this shift was a transformation in which rhetoric was reconceived to meet changing cultural needs Part I examines the theories and practices of rhetoric that dominated at the beginning of the century The essays in this section include Edward Everett and Neoclassical Oratory in Genteel America by Ronald F Reid The Oratorical Poetic of Timothy Dwight by Gregory Clark The Sermon as Public Discourse Austin Phelps and the Conservative Homiletic Tradition in Nineteenth Century America by Russel Hirst and A Rhetoric of Citizenship in Nineteenth Century America by P Joy Rouse Part 2 examines rhetorical changes in the culture that developed during that century The essays include The Popularization of Nineteenth Century Rhetoric Elocution and the Private Learner by Nan Johnson Rhetorical Power in the Victorian Parlor Godey's Lady's Book and the Gendering of Nineteenth Century Rhetoric by Nicole Tonkovich Jane Addams and the Social Rhetoric of Democracy by Catherine Peadar The Divergence of Purpose and Practice on the Chataqua Keith Vawter's Self Defense by Frederick J Antczak and Edith Siemers and The Rhetoric of Picturesque Scenery A Nineteenth Century Epideictic by S Michael Halloran A Companion to Popular Culture Gary Burns, 2016-03-09 A Companion to Popular Culture is a landmark survey of contemporary research in popular culture studies that offers a comprehensive and engaging introduction to the field Includes over two dozen essays covering the spectrum of popular culture studies from food to folklore and from TV to technology Features contributions from established and up and coming scholars from a range of disciplines Offers a detailed history of the study of popular culture Balances new perspectives on the politics of culture with in depth analysis of topics at the forefront of popular culture studies

However such changes and development must be directed to create a more culturally homogenous and productive society so that basic human needs like food shelter healthcare and education are fulfilled at the optimum level All round development and growth for the nation can be achieved only with a robust economy and political stability As such the process of nation building and development is a multifaceted phenomenon In the context of India this process is associated with the central values embodied in the preamble of the country s constitution which advocates for the establishment of secular socialist and democratic society based on well defined fundamental rights This anthology reflects these academic spirits and vistas and teenage girls popular culture from 1960-1968 as a formative influence on the feminist movement

A Cycle of Outrage James Gilbert, 1988-10-13 The youth culture is on everyone's lips today as pressures build to ban controversial song lyrics, reintroduce school prayer and prohibit teenagers access to contraceptives. It's not the first time Americans have been outraged over the seduction of the innocent. When James Dean and Marlon Brando donned their motorcycle jackets and adopted alienated poses in Rebel Without a Cause, East of Eden and The Wild One in the 1950s, so did countless numbers of American teenagers. Or so it seemed to their parents. American teenagers were looking and acting like juvenile delinquents. By mid-decade the nation had reached a pitch of near obsession with the harmful effects of film, radio, comic books and television on American youth. Experts across the land denounced mass culture as depriving young people of their innocence and weakening their parents' hold on them. By the end of the decade the obsession had ended, although the actual numbers of juvenile delinquents had apparently risen. A Cycle of Outrage explores the 1950s debate over the media and juvenile delinquency among parents, professionals and the creators of mass culture themselves. In this groundbreaking study, James Gilbert sees the attempt to blame the media as part of a larger reaction of discomfort echoed in recent debates over censorship. The book examines how the central phenomena of the 1950s—the development of youth culture and the rise of a mass media society—became intertwined and confused, and argues that young people ceased to be a threat as they were recognized to be a market.

Classroom Combat, Teaching and Television Maurine Doerken, 1983 The Struggle for Control of Global Communication Jill Hills, 2002-10-22 Tracing the development of communication markets and the regulation of international communications from the 1840s through World War I, Jill Hills examines the political, technological and economic forces at work during the formative century of global communication. Hills analyzes power relations within the arena of global communications from the inception of the telegraph through the successive technologies of submarine telegraph cables, ship-to-shore wireless, broadcast radio, shortwave wireless, the telephone and movies with sound. As she shows, global communication began to overtake transportation as an economic, political and social force after the inception of the telegraph, which shifted communications from national to international. From that point on, information was a commodity and ownership of the communications infrastructure became valuable as the means of distributing information. The struggle for control of that infrastructure occurred in part because British control of communications hindered the growing economic power of the United States. Hills outlines the technological advancements and regulations that allowed the United States to challenge British hegemony and enter the global communications market. She demonstrates that control of global communication was part of a complex web of relations between and within the government and corporations of Britain and the United States. Detailing the interplay between American federal regulation and economic power, Hills shows how these forces shaped communications technologies and illuminates the contemporary systems of power in global communications.
