together the recollections and thoughts of some of the main protagonists from the very early days of NLP In 1971 Richard Bandler and Frank Pucelik were students at Kresge College at the University of California Santa Cruz They had a strong mutual interest in Gestalt Therapy Frank because of his traumatic time in Vietnam and because he had been working with some disaffected and drug addicted kids and Richard because he had been working with Science and Behavior Books on transcribing and editing Fritz Perls seminal work The Gestalt Approach and Eyewitness to Therapy They started a local Gestalt group and ran 2 3 sessions a week collaborating and experimenting with the language of therapy They started achieving some brilliant results but were having problems transferring their skills to others and so Richard invited one of their college professors John Grinder to observe what they were doing in order that he would hopefully be able to deconstruct what they were doing that was so effective John was a professor of Linguistics and was instantly impressed with the work that they were doing He was able to add more structure and in due course the three of them formalised what is now known as the Meta Model NLP or Meta as it was known then was born Generative Trance Stephen Gilligan,2012-10-25

This book describes an entirely new way of conducting hypnotherapeutic interventions Stephen Gilligan s generative trance

The first generation of trance work the traditional hypnosis that still holds sway in most places considers that both the conscious mind and the unconscious mind of the client are to put it bluntly idiots So trance work involves first knocking out the conscious mind and then talking to the unconscious mind like a 2 year old that needs to be told how to behave Milton Erickson created the second generation of trance work He approached the unconscious as having creative wisdom and each person as extraordinarily unique Thus rather than trying to programme the unconscious with new instructions Erickson saw trance as an experiential learning state where a person s own creative unconscious could generate healing and transformation At the same time Erickson for the most part carried the same low opinion of the conscious mind Thus Ericksonian hypnosis looks to bypass the conscious mind with indirect suggestions and dissociation and depotentiate it with confusion techniques
