fascicle of his three volume Works in Architecture of Robert and James Adam published in installments between 1773 and 1822 he proclaimed that he had started a revolution in the art of architecture Adam's revolution was expansive it comprised the introduction of avant garde light and elegant architectural decoration mastery in the design of picturesque and scenographic interiors and a revision of Renaissance traditions including the relegation of architectural orders the rejection of most Palladian forms and the embrace of the concept of taste as a foundation of architecture In his own time he became the second architect in European history after Andrea Palladio 1508-80 to be associated with an eponymous style today known as the Adam Style and in the eighteenth century the Adamite mode Adam further distinguished himself as one of the first professional architects in modern Britain within an era that had only recently adopted widespread use of the term architect To elevate his professional status he freshly and sharply differentiated between the architect and builder and undertook considerable self promotional efforts With his two pioneering publications Ruins of the Palace of the Emperor Diocletian at Spalatro in Dalmatia of 1764 and his Works he established himself as an erudite scientific antiquarian and as a connoisseur of buildings Moreover the architect cum marketer deftly and innovatively composed his books to address a modern critical reading public especially the emergent architectural connoisseur and made robust arguments for the leading roles of domestic architecture and architectural decoration in shaping British identity Drawing on a wide range of sources this project argues for a more comprehensive vision of the nature of Adam's revolution and new consideration of his significance as an architect writer and public figure It also builds on scholarship that seeks to contextualize Adam as a product of the Enlightenment the Romantic era and a rapidly changing modern Britain Concrete International ,1993

Robert Adam, Artist and Architect Percy Hetherington Fitzgerald, 2017-07-05 Excerpt from Robert Adam Artist and Architect His Works and His System It will be seen from the list of societies to whom I retailed my Adam story that I went pretty far afield and brought the subject before a fairly representative audience These were The Society of Arts who gave me the silver medal for my performance The Society for the Encouragement of the Fine Arts The London Society of Architects The Architectural Societies of Edinburgh Manchester Liverpool Oxford Glasgow Newcastle Carlisle Birmingham Dublin Hull York Bath Sheffield These visits were exceedingly interesting I was always cordially received and I could see that the hearers were much interested in a subject to which hitherto but little attention had been paid It was a difficult and even awkward situation to be speaking in presence of experts I found the best way was to say out plainly what I thought on the matter and say it boldly without showing hesitation or the fear of falling into mistakes or of displaying one's ignorance My preservation was an unaffected enthusiasm for Adam and all his work with a native instinct for what was artistic At these lectures of mine sometimes the attendance was large at other times rather moderate but the students were always attracted I calculate that on the whole I must have brought the subject within the knowledge of some thousands and many of these must have worked on or have been led to take up the matter to apply it and study it seriously Nor was I slack in the direction of writing From the earliest days old buildings having grace and beauty had always the most extraordinary attraction for me I am ashamed to say none of the boasted scenes of nature the mountains lakes and plains appealed to me in the way that a small ancient town did In a building particularly of the renaissance type there seemed to be something more living and suggestive A well designed building was company it seemed to speak I had a particular delight in the renaissance buildings on account I believe of the sincerity and unobtrusiveness of their ornamentation with a sort of general delicacy of treatment The old classical or Greek elements seemed to me to be a little obtrusive and coarse also a little uninteresting The cornices and pediments stood out and claimed attention noisily To see a picture even of one of these palaces affects one their ornamentation is so telling and yet so retiring Adam s work always offered much of this charm and feeling its detail invariably interested and attracted the eye or set the mind in motion There was always some striking or graceful little arrangement that repaid inspection About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
