Technology Assessment Feminist Perspect:

Technology Assessment Janine Morgall, 2010-05-05 How gender analysis should inform technology assessment

Technology Assessment Janine Morgall Traulsen, 1993-10-14 How well does technology assessment TA relate to women's lives If women are underrepresented in the long term research and development process that leads to scientific advancements how can TA understand technology aimed at women It can't claim the author of Technology Assessment A Feminist Perspective A relative new field TA examines the social aspect of technology and provides information critical to decision making policy development safety standards and avoiding litigation Until gender analysis is introduced into all assessments of new technologies Janine Marie Morgall argues TA can't evaluate technology's impact upon women Morgall investigates two areas of technology that affect women's lives productive clerical work and reproductive health care Case studies of clerical workers and health care recipients illustrate gender specific effects of technology ranging from word processors to treatments for infertility These studies convincingly demonstrate that TA encourages innovations without questioning their effects on women Issues of dominance control and conflicting values emerge from Morgall's feminist perspective and support her call for gender analysis of new technologies In the series Labor and Social Change edited by Paula Rayman and Carmen Sirianni Developing Technology Assessment Janine Marie Morgall, 1991 Technology assessment TA and medical technology assessment MTA have been gaining in importance and are currently developing as instruments for exercising political and social control over existing as well as future technology The author begins by introducing systematically organized TA and MTA as they evolved from serving as an early warning system to a broader based assessment of social consequences This is followed by a description of how TA and MTA are organized their main features and methods and major problems as well as a critique of frequently used methods She discusses some of the practical problems of TA such as how to involve the public and who should represent the public Using examples of women and technology she introduces the feminist research on technological development followed by a feminist approach to TA and MTA She identifies a variety of feminist perspectives on technological development and discusses the tension between them

Critical Communication Theory Sue Curry Jansen, 2002-11-19 Critical theorist feminist and censorship expert Sue Curry Jansen brings a fresh perspective to contemporary communication inquiry Jansen engages two key questions at the heart of a critical politics of communication What do we know And how do we know it The questions are not unique to our era she notes but our responses to them are our own Looking at issues of globalization science politics gender social inequality and other social formations that shape our world this insightful book advocates a new agenda not only for communication research but also for the writing_ and language_ that comes out of it Technological Innovation as an Evolutionary Process John M. Ziman, John Ziman, 2003-09-18 Ground breaking yet non technical analysis of the analogy that technological artefacts evolve like biological organisms The Other Machine Dion Farquhar, 2014-04-23 With technological advances in reproduction no longer confined to the laboratory or involving only the isolated individual women and men are increasingly resorting to a variety of technologies unheard of a few decades ago to assist them in becoming parents The public at large and feminists as a group are confused and divided over how to view these technologies and over what positions to take on the moral and legal dilemmas they give rise to Farquhar argues that two perspectives have tended to dominate feminist discussions of these issues She labels these fundamental feminism and market liberalism By linking a theoretical approach with a practical set of issues Farquhar's The Other Machine provides a rigorous analysis of contemporary feminist debates

Nanotechnology and the Challenges of Equity, Equality and Development Susan E. Cozzens, Jameson Wetmore, 2010-10-10 Nanotechnology is enabling applications in materials microelectronics health and agriculture which are projected to create the next big shift in production comparable to the industrial revolution Such major shifts always co evolve with social relationships This book focuses on how nanotechnologies might affect equity equality in global society Nanotechnologies are likely to open gaps by gender ethnicity race and ability status as well as between developed and developing countries unless steps are taken now to create a different outcome Organizations need to change their practices and cultural ideas must be broadened if currently disadvantaged groups are to have a more equal position in nano society rather than a more disadvantaged one Economic structures are likely to shift in the nano revolution requiring policymakers and participatory processes to invent new institutions for social welfare better suited to the new economic order than those of the past

Involving Service Users in Health and Social Care Research Lesley Lowes, Ian Hulatt, 2013-01-11 Service user involvement in research can range from the extremes of being the subject to being the initiator or investigator of a research study The activity of the professional researcher can also range from being the person undertaking the research to being a partner with or mentor to service users This broad scope of levels of involvement is reflected in the contributions in this book both in the research experiences reported and in the writing of the chapters themselves With contributions coming from a range of service areas including learning disabilities cancer care older people and mental illness chapters look at important research issues such as strategies for working in true partnership avoiding tokenism involving service users at all stages of the research process communication and terminology involving service users of different ages and experience training needs of professionals and service users problems surrounding payment for service users other ethical and practical issues This book is invaluable reading for researchers in health and social care from academic professional and service user backgrounds
