Audretsch, Erik E. Lehmann, Albert N. Valdaliso, James R. Wilson, 2015-04-10 This book focuses on the main challenges that cities regions and other territories at sub national level face when it comes to designing and implementing a territorial strategy for economic development and competitiveness There is a widespread recognition that territories need to construct strategies that focus on shaping sustainable competitive advantages To do this they draw upon their own unique resources and capabilities alongside intelligence on existing technological and market trends However there is still a notorious lack of both theoretical and empirical research on this issue The first part of this book develops a theoretical framework for understanding and analysing territorial strategy This framework asks three questions of territorial strategy what for what and how looking closely at the key relationship between strategy and policy The second part is dedicated to exploring this framework in practice through application to a series of unique cases from around the world at different territorial levels from regions such as the Basque Country Navarre and Murcia in Spain Okanagan British Columbia in Canada Wales in the United Kingdom and the cross border region of the resund in Denmark Sweden as well as the city of Rafaela in Argentina Each case offers something different and enables the framework to be thoroughly tested generating concluding reflections that add real value for scholars and policy makers interested in and working in the field of territorial strategy This volume is intended for the academic community the policy community government leaders policy makers policy researchers and consultants and university students and teachers at different levels interested in the areas of territorial competitiveness regional development competitiveness policies and processes of territorial strategy Trade, Growth and Technical Change Daniele Archibugi, Jonathan Michie, 1998-02-26 This book first published in 1998 examines the interconnections between technology economic growth and international trade International Investment Law and Development Stephan W. Schill, Christian J. Tams, Rainer Hofmann, 2015-12-18 International investment law has often been seen as an obstacle to sustainable development While the connections between investment and development are plain for a long time there has been relatively little scholarship exploring them Combining critical reflection and detailed analysis this book addresses the relationship between contemporary investment law and development The book is organized around two competing visions of investment and development as working either harmoniously or in conflict with one another The expert contributors reflect on both of these views and analyse the social dimensions of development and its impact on investment law Coverage includes in depth discussion on such issues as human rights poverty reduction labor standards and indigenous peoples Students and scholars of international investment law will benefit from the informed analysis of the links between investment and development This book will also be of use to practitioners and experts of development law who are looking for an up to date perspective of the field The Economics and Management of Technological Diversification John Cantwell, Alfonso Gambardella, Ove Granstrand, 2004-04-22 Recently attempts have been made to understand the patterns of corporate technological diversification and their implications in economic and managerial dimensions This book consolidates these attempts and breaks new ground by examining the patterns of technological diversification and their relationship with internationalisation economic performance Exploiting Linkages for Building Technological Capabilities Mai Fujita, 2014-01-10 One of the key ingredients of success in building internationally competitive industries lies in amassing a sizeable pool of competent suppliers of parts components and accessories This monograph examines how in developing countries suppliers of mechanical components at the low end of the technological trajectory build up key capabilities over time The focus is on Vietnam's motorcycle industry which was rapidly transformed from a small highly protected market to the world's fourth largest motorcycle producer This rare success resulted from intense competition between leading Japanese motorcycle manufacturers and local Vietnamese assemblers of imported Chinese components both attempting to gain supremacy in the emerging market In particular the book analyzes how local Vietnamese suppliers of motorcycle components exploited participation in contrasting types of value chains developed by the two groups of leading manufacturing firms referred to here as Japanese and or Vietnamese Chinese chains for accumulating strategic know how On the basis of historical evidence and recent empirical data collected through repeated rounds of in depth fieldwork the analysis finds first those suppliers learning trajectories evolved over time resulting in a divergence in learning performance extending across suppliers in later phases of industrial development In the later stage high performing suppliers amassed basic innovative expertise constituting the bedrock of this fast growing industry Second the analysis finds that the diverging performance can be explained by the combination of roles played by lead firms in inducing and facilitating supplier learning and those of suppliers in mobilizing their own sources of knowledge These conclusions not only provide dynamic insightful accounts of supplier learning in developing country contexts but also make key theoretical and methodological contributions to the research on value chain participation and supplier learning

The Rise of "the Rest" Alice H. Amsden,2003 Alice H Amsden describes how some developing countries outside the North Atlantic area were able to achieve accelerated economic growth following World War Two
