Empires of Entertainment Jennifer Holt,2011-06-01 Empires of Entertainment integrates legal regulatory industrial and political histories to chronicle the dramatic transformation within the media between 1980 and 1996 As film broadcast and cable grew from fundamentally separate industries to interconnected synergistic components of global media conglomerates the concepts of vertical and horizontal integration were redesigned The parameters and boundaries of market concentration consolidation and government scrutiny began to shift as America's politics changed under the Reagan administration Through the use of case studies that highlight key moments in this transformation Jennifer Holt explores the politics of deregulation the reinterpretation of antitrust law and lasting modifications in the media landscape Holt skillfully expands the conventional models and boundaries of media history A fundamental part of her argument is that these media industries have been intertwined for decades and as such cannot be considered separately Instead film cable and broadcast must be understood in relation to one another as critical components of a common history Empires of Entertainment is a unique account of deregulation and its impact on political economy industrial strategies and media culture at the end of the twentieth century The Media of Mass Communication John H. Vivian, 1995 Library Media Connection, 1998

The Horn Book Guide to Children's and Young Adult Books, 1998 The Columbia History of American Television Gary Edgerton, 2007-10-12 Television is a form of media without equal It has revolutionized the way we learn about and communicate with the world and has reinvented the way we experience ourselves and others More than just cheap entertainment TV is an undeniable component of our culture and contains many clues to who we are what we value and where we might be headed in the future Media historian Gary R Edgerton follows the technological developments and increasing cultural relevance of TV from its prehistory before 1947 to the Network Era 1948 1975 and the Cable Era 1976 1994 He begins with the laying of the first telegraph line in 1844 which gave rise to the idea that images and sounds could be transmitted over long distances He then considers the remodeling of television's look and purpose during World War II the gender racial and ethnic components of its early broadcasts and audiences its transformation of postwar America and its function in the political life of the country He talks of the birth of prime time and cable the influence of innovators like

Sylvester Pat Weaver, Arledge and Ted Turner as well as television's entrance into the international market describing the ascent of such programs as Dallas and The Cosby Show and the impact these exports have had on transmitting American culture abroad. Edgerton concludes with a discerning look at our current Digital Era 1995 present and the new forms of instantaneous communication that continue to change America's social, political and economic landscape. Richly researched and engaging, Edgerton's history tracks television's growth into a convergent technology, a global industry, a social catalyst, a viable art form and a complex and dynamic reflection of the American mind and character. It took only ten years for television to penetrate thirty-five million households and by 1983 the average home kept their set on for more than seven hours a day. The Columbia History of American Television illuminates our complex relationship with this singular medium and provides historical and critical knowledge for understanding TV as a technology, an industry, an art form and an institutional force.

American Television News: The Media Marketplace and the Public Interest Steve M. Barkin, 2016-09-16 This concise history of the news broadcasting industry will appeal to both students and general readers. Stretching from the radio days of the 1920s and 1930s and the early era of television after World War II through to the present, the book shows how commercial interests, regulatory matters and financial considerations have long shaped the broadcasting business. The network dominance of the 1950s ushered in the new prominence of the anchorman, a distinctly American development and gave birth to the golden age of TV broadcasting which featured hard hitting news and documentaries epitomized by the reports by CBS's Edward R. Murrow. Financial pressures and advertising concerns in the 1960s led the networks to veer away from their commitment to serve the public interest and tabloid television, celebrity gossip, driven soft news and news magazines became increasingly widespread. In the 1980s cable news further transformed broadcasting, igniting intense competition for viewers in the media marketplace. Focusing on both national and local news, this stimulating volume examines the evolution of broadcast journalism. It also considers how new electronic technologies will affect news delivery in the 21st century and whether television news can still both serve the public interest and maintain an audience. Blue Skies Patrick Parsons, 2008-04-05 Cable television is arguably the dominant mass media technology in the U.S. today. Blue Skies traces its history in detail, depicting the important events and people that shaped its development from the precursors of cable TV in the 1920s and 30s to the first community antenna systems in the 1950s and from the creation of the national satellite distributed cable networks in the 1970s to the current incarnation of info structure that dominates our lives. Author Patrick Parsons also considers the ways that economics, public perception, public policy, entrepreneurial personalities, the social construction of the possibilities of cable and simple chance all influenced the development of cable TV. Since the 1960s one of the pervasive visions of cable has been of a ubiquitous, flexible, interactive communications system capable of providing news, information, entertainment, diverse local programming and even social services. That set of utopian hopes became known as the Blue Sky vision of cable television from which the book takes its title. Thoroughly documented and carefully researched.

yet lively occasionally humorous and consistently insightful Blue Skies is the genealogy of our media society Controlling Broadcasting Meryl Aldridge, Nicholas Hewitt, 1994 This text assesses the transformation of broadcasting currently taking place in Europe where deregulation coupled with advances in satellite cable and video technology promises consumer choice on an American scale The Commercialisation of Sport Trevor Slack, 2004 Sport has become increasingly commercialised and there are many examples of close links that have developed between sport and business This collection examines five of them in a global context Kill Your Masters Jaap van der Doelen, 2024-12 All the unwritten rules of rap say it doesn't happen like this Yet Killer Mike a Black man from Atlanta Georgia and El P a white man from Brooklyn New York have transformed what should have been the twilight of their careers as rappers into their biggest spotlight yet Known as the hip hop duo Run The Jewels they have headlined festivals worldwide become action figures and Marvel comic book characters spearheaded a worldwide countercultural movement and played a significant role in the last two presidential elections This is the buddy movie like story of how they got there It is a tale that parallels the incredible changes the music industry has gone through over the past twenty five years charting a course from the highs around the turn of the century to the collapse of the CD format and the eventual rise of streaming media while also mapping the evolution of both pop culture and its sociopolitical climate From the surging popularity of afrofuturism and the fall of the Twin Towers to the rise of the Black Lives Matter movement and the kneeling of Colin Kaepernick such events all tie into how their budding bromance transformed Killer Mike and El P from solo artists in underground hip hop to pop cultural icons recognized all over the globe
