that word in the most interesting sentence I could think of and then create the next most interesting and connected sentence I could think of and so on until the energy ran out Much to my surprise I wrote an entire chapter the first time I tried this technique It was as if I had discovered a magic lamp And that s the way it continued a single word created each chapter As I created more characters I made a chart and assigned them numbers and then I rolled dice to decide which character would run into which other character After all in real life you re constantly running into new people Who knows why Sex & Intimacy 101 K.
