find a way of explaining the gap between the traditional art and modern. Older art answered questions such as what was Henry VIII like. The new is not so much about the world as about the breakdown in perceiving the world. But some histories are still written as if art has followed a path of inevitable progress. Others as if all beliefs that produce genuine art however weird are equally valid. In my book I argue that modernism has produced a genuine art that grapples with perceived reality but that its real lack of content is disastrous. When we see objects that are essentially blank or empty and start to find them significant and powerful we ought to be getting worried. To explain this I have developed an account of art which sees it as a given and delightful form of knowing that equips us for living in God's world. But when the art area becomes part of the human agenda for unbelief, independence and defining ourselves in the cosmos it ceases to be a window on reality. It starts to function as a totem replacing thought, a sub-human icon for humanity. However, towards the end of the book I focus on the dynamism of the living God and the transformative power of his grace that can turn any modern form however desolate into a vehicle of truth and meaning. When modernism plunges into the depths of not knowing it can seldom go so far that real humanity and truth are not discovered in the unlikeliest places.
