On the Scent Paolo Pelosi, 2016-03-24 In humans the perception of odours adds a fourth dimension to life from the scent of flowers the aroma of foods and all the subtle smells in the environment But how many types of odours can we distinguish Why do we like the food we like Which are the most powerful odorants and how well does the human sense of smell perform compared with that of a dog or a butterfly The sense of smell is highly complex and such complexity discouraged scientists for a long time leaving the world of smell in an atmosphere of mystery Only recently thanks to the new tools furnished by molecular biology and neuroscience are we beginning to answer these questions uncovering the hidden secrets of our sense of smell and decoding the language used by most animals to communicate In this book Paolo Pelosi one of the leading figures in the development of the science of olfaction recounts how the chemical alphabet behind smell has been pieced together over the past three decades Drawing on anecdotes from his own scientific career and celebrating the rich variety of smells from herbs to flowers to roast coffee and freshly baked bread he weaves together an engaging and remarkable account of the science behind the most elusive of our senses

The Architecture of Error Francesca Hughes, 2014-10-31 Why the rise of redundant precision in architecture and the accompanying fear of error are key to understanding the discipline's needs anxieties and desires When architects draw even brick walls to six decimal places with software designed to cut lenses it is clear that the logic that once organized relations between precision and material error in construction has unraveled Precision already a promiscuous term seems now to have been uncoupled from its contract with truthfulness Meanwhile error and the always political space of its dissent has reconfigured itself In The Architecture of Error Francesca Hughes argues that behind the architect's acute fetishization of redundant precision lies a special fear of physical error What if we were to consider the pivotal cultural and technological transformations of modernism to have been driven not so much by the causes its narratives declare she asks as by an unspoken horror of loss of control over error material life and everything that matter stands for Hughes traces the rising intolerance of material vagaries from the removal of ornament to digitalized fabrication that produced the blind rejection of organic materials the proliferation of material testing and the rhetorical obstacles that blighted cybernetics Why is it she asks that the more we cornered physical error the more we feared it Hughes's analysis of redundant precision exposes an architecture of fear whose politics must be called into question Proposing error as a new category for architectural thought Hughes draws on other disciplines and practices that have interrogated precision and failure citing the work of scientists Nancy Cartwright and Evelyn Fox Keller and visual artists Gordon Matta Clark Barbara Hepworth Rachel Whiteread and others These non architect practitioners she argues show that error need not be excluded and precision can be made accountable □□□□□□□□ □□□,2006 Ada A History of Science Henry Smith Williams,1904 A History of science v.
