Places of Pain and Shame William Logan, Keir Reeves, 2008-12-05. Places of Pain and Shame is a cross-cultural study of sites that represent painful and/or shameful episodes in a national or local community's history and the ways that government agencies, heritage professionals and the communities themselves seek to remember, commemorate and conserve these cases or conversely choose to forget them. Such episodes and locations include massacre and genocide sites, places related to prisoners of war, civil and political prisons and places of benevolent internment such as leper colonies and lunatic asylums. These sites bring shame upon us now for the cruelty and futility of the events that occurred within them and the ideologies they represented. They are however increasingly being regarded as heritage sites, a far cry from the view of heritage that prevailed a generation ago when we were almost entirely concerned with protecting the great and beautiful creations of the past, reflections of the creative genius of humanity rather than the reverse, the destructive and cruel side of history. Why has this shift occurred and what implications does it have for professionals practicing in the heritage field? In what ways is this a difficult heritage to deal with? This volume brings together academics and practitioners to explore these questions covering not only some of the practical matters but also the theoretical and conceptual issues and uses case studies of historic places, museums and memorials from around the globe including the United States, Northern Ireland, Poland, South Africa, China.

Through poignant storytelling, it illuminates the lasting scars of apartheid while celebrating the resilience and triumph of those who endured it.      Unsettled History Leslie Witz, Gary Minkley, Ciraj Rassool, 2017-02-27
An engrossing look at how history has been produced, contested, and unsettled in South Africa from Mandela's release to 2010.      Disrupting the Digital Humanities Dorothy Kim, Jesse Stommel, 2018
All too often, defining a discipline becomes more an exercise of exclusion than inclusion. Disrupting the Digital Humanities seeks to rethink how we map disciplinary terrain by directly confronting the gatekeeping impulse of many other so-called field-defining collections. What is most beautiful about the work of the Digital Humanities is exactly the fact that it can't be tidily anthologized. In fact, the desire to neatly define the Digital Humanities to filter the DH-y from the DH is a way of excluding the radically diverse work that actually constitutes the field. This collection then works to push and prod at the edges of the Digital Humanities to open the Digital Humanities rather than close it down. Ultimately, it's exactly the fringes, the outliers that make the Digital Humanities both lovely and rigorous. This collection does not constitute yet another reservoir for the new Digital Humanities canon. Rather, our aim is less about assembling content as it is about creating new conversations. Building a truly communal space for the digital humanities requires that we all approach that space with a commitment to: 1. creating open and non-hierarchical dialogues 2. championing non-traditional work that might not otherwise be recognized through conventional scholarly channels 3. amplifying marginalized voices 4. advocating for students and learners and 5. sharing generously to support the work of our peers. Political Identity and Social Change builds upon the constructivist theory of political identity to explore the social changes that accompanied the end of apartheid in South Africa To gain a better understanding of how structures of identity changed along with the rest of South Africa s institutions Frueh analyzes three social and political conflicts the Soweto uprisings of 1976 the reformist constitutional debates of 1983 1984 and post apartheid crime Analyzing these conflicts demonstrates how identity labels function as structures of social discourse how social activity is organized through these structures and how both the labels and their power have changed during the course of South Africa s transition In this way the book contributes not only to the study of South African society but also provides lessons about the relationship between identity and social change      Ads to Icons Paul Springer,2009-08-03 The second edition of Ads to Icons examines current and future trends in advertising Through 50 updated international case studies of new and iconic advertising campaigns author Paul Springer
