and Industrial Transformation Vicky Xiaoyan Long, Magnus Holmén, 2021-08-18 Industrial transformation is a research and teaching field with a focus on the phenomenon and mechanisms of industrial development and renewal. It concerns changes in economic activities caused by innovation, competition and collaboration and has a rich heritage of evolutionary economics, institutional economics, industrial dynamics, technology history and innovation studies. It borrows concepts and models from the social sciences, sociology, history, political sciences, business management, economics, behavioural sciences and also from technology and engineering studies. In this book the authors present the key theories, frameworks and concepts of industrial transformation and use empirical cases to describe and explain the causes, processes and outcomes of transformation in the context of digitalization and sustainability. They stress that industrial transformation consists both of Darwinian survival of the fittest, selection and of intentional pursuits of innovation and of industrial capabilities creation. The work argues that managing the global trends of transformation is not only about new technology and innovation existing institutional settings and dynamic interactions between technological change, organizational adaptation and economic activities also have a profound impact on future trajectories. The areas under investigation are of great relevance for strategic management decisions and industrial and technology policies and understanding the mechanisms underlying transformation and sustainable growth.

Harrington, Jr., 2005-08-19 A substantially revised and updated new edition of the leading text on business and government with new material reflecting recent theoretical and methodological advances includes further coverage of the Microsoft antitrust case, the deregulation of telecommunications and electric power and new environmental regulations. This new edition of the leading text on business and government focuses on the insights economic reasoning can provide in analyzing regulatory and antitrust issues. Part III on social regulation now includes increased discussion of risk, risk analysis and extensive changes to its discussion of environmental regulation. Sten A. Thore, 2012-12-06 In his book Jurassic Park and in the movie based on the book Michael Crichton describes a crazed professor who through techniques of genetic engineering manages to recreate the dinosaurs and giant ferns of 65 million years past Once the giant Tyrannosaurus Rex is brought to life a powerful dynamics sets in evolution The prehistoric world embarks on a collision course with man Researching his book Crichton had been reading up on paleontology and on the mathematical theory of evolution catastrophes and chaos Crichton explains some of the twists of nonlinear mathematics that are rewriting not only thermodynamics physics and chemistry that all grapple with evolving and turbulent processes but also paleontology genetics medicine and even anthropology Collapse and chaos is not limited to prehistoric animal kingdoms and ancient civilizations The collapse of the Soviet Union and the political and economic chaos in its aftermath demonstrate that modern civilizations are just as vulnerable This book aims at reexamining some main portions of the discipline of economics from the point of view of economic change and creativity There are two aspects to this perspective First diversity and complexity The range of different kinds of high technology products available to consumers and producers increases rapidly Each product is the result of a long and complex production hierarchy As these hierarchies grow they deliver ever more diversified and complex high tech goods Other hierarchies fall by the wayside
