Technological Change, Economic Development and Space Cristoforo S. Bertuglia, Manfred M. Fischer, Giorgio Preto, 2012-12-06 The pressures of global competition are affecting regions throughout the world and making it increasingly necessary to understand the complex underlying mechanisms and the potential for innovation offered by new technology Success in economic restructuring depends not only on the technology itself but the professional and entrepreneurial skills available and the support of provided by institutions and information networks The very local nature these phenomena which are critical to the innovative propensity of firms operating within the region introduces an inevitable spatial dimension The time therefore seems ripe to bring together contributions from scholars working in different but related disciplines with the aim of investigating the triangular relationship between technological change economic development and space The present volume offers a compact review of current theoretical developments and valuable insights deriving from recent empirical studies carried out both within Europe and elsewhere All those contributing to this volume are actively involved in research in the field Without their intellectual contribution and willingness to participate in this joint project the book would not have been possible We should like in addition to thank Angela Spence for her capable assistance in coordinating the various stages of preparation of the book as well as her translation work and careful linguistic editing Thanks also go to Paola Stasi for her meticulous copy editing and help in preparing the indices Their work has been invaluable in moulding together in a single volume contributions from so many different sources

Interaction, Evolution and Chaos in Space Peter Nijkamp, Aura Reggiani, 2012-12-06 For many decades scholars from various disciplines have been intrigued by the question whether there are unifying principles or models that have a validity in different disciplines The building of such analytical frameworks bridging the gaps between scientific traditions is a very ambitious task and has not been very successful up till now In the past in a static context several such principles have been defined and advocated at the edge of the natural sciences on the one hand and social sciences in particular economics and geography on the other hand mainly based on the paradigm of social physics Some important contributions to the integration of the spatial systems sciences and physics can be found in gravity theory and entropy theory which have formed the corner stones of interaction models in space This book is about spatial interaction models It describes the origin the history and the correspondence of such models from a social physics perspective It is emphasized that such models need a clear behavioural underpinning as a sine qua non for a valid use in spatial systems analysis This view also explains the use of micro based disaggregate choice models as a tool for analyzing spatial systems This is mainly analyzed in Part A of this book

Creating Value with Science and Technology Eliezer Geisler, 2001-08-30 Do science and technology create value for society and the economy and how might one go about measuring it How do we evaluate its benefits Can we even be certain that there are benefits Geisler argues that there are benefits and that they outweigh in value the negative impacts that inevitably accompany them His revolutionary new book goes on to show that they can also be measured and evaluated and in one volume all of the existing knowledge on how to do it is compiled then Geisler's own methods are offered The result is a compelling argument that the value of science and technology in our lives has indeed been positive and that the economic well being of all individuals organizations and nations rests upon them Geisler starts off by describing his conceptual framework for the evaluation of science and technology and the impact and benefits that proceed from them He discusses the nature of evaluation in general terms and then in the specific context of science technology and innovation together He reviews the state of our present knowledge and assesses the nature of value creation itself Throughout Geisler remains fixed on his driving thesis Although there are certainly some negative impacts from science and technology on the whole the results of its outputs are positive He shows how they have contributed to a range of activities and institutions particularly to the improvement of health and human welfare worldwide Finally after discussing the theories of evaluation he gets down to the practice providing readers with a way to assess science and technological innovations for themselves Intelligent
