Telecommunications in the Pacific Basin Eli M. Noam, Seisuke Komatsuzaki, Douglas A. Conn, 1994 This comprehensive book examines the current state of telecommunications in the Pacific Basin. The focus is on the economic, regulatory, and social change caused by the technological evolution, marketplace developments, and institutional reorganization. The overall analysis of the volume evolves around a multi-stage evolutionary model of public telecommunications networks. The first part consists of analytic articles on the evolution of telecommunication networks in the region, a comparison of deregulation policies in the different countries, and an analysis of public and private cooperation in international informatics. The second part reviews telecommunications systems in individual countries including Australia, Canada, China, Hong Kong, Indonesia, Japan, Malaysia, New Zealand, Singapore, South Korea, Taiwan, Thailand, the Philippines, and the United States.

Telecommunications in Asia John Ure, 1995-01-01 This book provides searching analysis and a detailed and comprehensive account of telecommunications in the developing economies of Southeast and East Asia.

Telecommunications Reform in the Asia-Pacific Region Allan Brown, Moazzem Hossain, Duc-Tho Nguyen, 2005-02-24 This book attempts to draw lessons from the experiences of developed as well as developing countries in carrying out telecommunications reform. Contributors come from academia as well as from stakeholders in telecommunications policy in a dozen countries mostly in the Asia Pacific region. Globally, the telecommunications industry is undergoing major changes: technological advances in the form of a vast number of new digitised services; ownership shifts as state-owned carriers in many countries become fully or partly privatized; and a general transition from monopolistic to more competitive market environments. The economic and regulatory experiences derived from these changes are explored and analyzed using the USA, the UK, Australia, and Singapore to represent developed and newly industrialized countries, and China, India, Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Sri Lanka, Thailand, and Vietnam as examples of developing countries. The conclusions outlined in this timely volume hold important lessons for these as well as for other countries.

The International Telecommunications Regime: Domestic Preferences and Regime Change Juan Ratto-Nielsen, 2009-12-26 This study examines the evolution of the international regime in telecommunications with the main objective of furthering our understanding of the process of regime transformation. The dominant theories of international relations, realism and institutional liberalism, specify how states with shared interests use institutions to realize joint gains and to minimize the possibility of defection. But these theories have little to say about when states will attempt to change the objectives that lead them to create the international institution in the first place. The main goal of this book is to investigate and test the assumption that domestic politics by themselves can explain the dynamics of regime creation evolution and change as it happened within the International Telecommunications Union ITU

Telecommunications in Latin America Eli M. Noam, 1998 Bringing together experts on Latin American countries and providing a comprehensive view of what individual countries are doing to build a telecommunications capability Telecommunications in Latin America addresses the complicated economic and policy issues of each country's telecommunications The editor and his staff have skillfully integrated the chapters into a coherent volume keeping the information accessible to non specialists Particular attention is paid to telecommunications as a link in the chain of the regional development process and to the privatization process that has swept across the subcontinent This study will be of interest to students and professionals in the areas of communication international telecommunications companies and country governments in Latin America

Telecommunications in Africa Eli M. Noam, 1999-02-25 A modern telecommunications network is an essential infrastructure for the world's developing nations The emergence of new technologies the entrance of supra national carriers and deregulation in the telecommunications sector have resulted in the globalization of telecommunications and the opening of markets on every continent Collecting the work of 19 expert contributors this book provides a comprehensive examination of what African countries are doing to build their telecommunications capabilities Africa has historically lagged behind other regions in developing its telecommunications infrastructure and the penetration rate for basic service is still relatively low But as some African nations undergo restructuring they have begun to open their networks to foreign investors and regional cooperative ventures to expand basic and advanced telecommunications services The contributors discuss the uneven pace of economic regulatory and social change among African nations as state telecommunications monopolies maintain their hold in some countries and give way to privatization in others Analyzing the political and economic changes of the 1990s the contributors provide clues about how Africa can shake off decades of inertia and prepare to take part in the global information economy Edited by an internationally recognized authority on telecommunications this volume is the latest in a series that surveys telecommunications in the major regions of the world Thorough and accessible it is a valuable resource for students and scholars in the areas of communications economics regulatory law telecommunications engineering and African studies as well as telecommunications professionals and policy makers
