

TEXTUAL ANALYSIS

Textual analysis is a method used to interpret and understand written or spoken language to gain an understanding of meanings produced through text.

OVERVIEW

Textual analysis involves examining the structure, content, and context of a text to uncover its underlying meanings, themes, and patterns. This process typically involves identifying key ideas, analyzing the rhetorical strategies employed, and considering the cultural, historical, and social factors that may have influenced the text's creation.

EXAMPLE

- Analysis of policy documents: A scholar could analyze the policy documents of public companies to determine the evolving ways in which they approach, define, and prioritize Environmental and Social Responsibility as a key value of the companies. This could involve methods like thematic coding and word frequency analysis.

The Subject of Television Jessica Edwards, 2016 This thesis approaches televisual texts and the scholarly practice of textual analysis via the politics of subjectivity Because subjects are formed in symbolic and representational systems that pre-exist them subjectivity is an inherently political phenomenon bound up in questions of power relations and meaning Televisual texts it is argued form part of these representational systems however texts can also be understood as being created in the viewing encounter as subjects imbue objects in their field of vision with meaning This mutual indebtedness of subject and text indicates that textual analysis can also be seen as an inherently politicised form of scholarship Drawing on the theoretical frameworks of Lacanian psychoanalysis and Foucauldian poststructuralism this thesis begins by arguing that images gazes and visual experience are both beholden to and constitutive of subjectivity The key themes from this discussion of subjectivity visual history spectatorship intersubjectivity are then proposed as key questions for an approach to televisual textual analysis called subject oriented textual analysis This approach provides opportunities for textual analysis distinct from psychoanalytic film theory which cannot be imported wholesale to television reception studies or modes of cultural studies that use texts to diagnose social phenomena having texts stand in for audiences Situated within media studies recent return to the text this approach therefore treats texts as ends in themselves while maintaining the political commitments of subjectivity and cultural studies Subject oriented textual analysis understands both texts and subjects as produced via processes of meaning making as subjects draw on already existing scopic regimes to make visual phenomena meaningful Textual analysis that understands textual meaning as indebted to processes of subjectivity therefore must engage with questions of power relations gazes and spectatorship the history of visual culture materiality and intersubjectivity Such meanings moreover are form and content specific so a subject oriented textual analysis requires textual analysis with sensitivity to form and the ways in which televisual meanings are specifically televisual The approach developed in this thesis is therefore one that examines televisual texts but takes as its primary focus processes of subjectivity In order to demonstrate the usefulness of such an approach the bulk of the thesis is devoted to four case studies covering makeover television Australian tabloid current affairs television and the dramatic narrative television series The Wire and Treme In addition to psychoanalysis Foucauldian theory and television studies these case studies critically engage with a wide range of cultural and political theory including postcolonial theories of the other neoliberalism the public sphere emotions and empathy research trauma and tourism studies and the Levinasian ethics of the face Drawing on these domains of enquiry the subject oriented textual analysis developed in this thesis contributes original analyses of television texts to the field of television studies and provides fresh insights to the study of mediated and political subjectivities

Popular Culture as Pedagogy Kaela Jubas, Nancy Taber, Tony Brown, 2015-10-30 Grounded in the field of adult education this international compilation offers a range of critical perspectives on popular culture as a form of pedagogy Its fundamental premise is that adults learn in multiple ways including through their consumption of fiction As scholars have asserted for decades people are not passive consumers of media rather we re make our own meanings as we accept resist and challenge cultural representations At a time when attention often turns to new media the contributors to this collection continue to find old forms of popular culture important and worthy of study Television and movies the emphases in this book reflect aspects of consumers lives and can be powerful vehicles for helping adults see experience and inhabit the world in new and different ways This volume moves beyond conceptually oriented scholarship taking a decidedly research oriented focus It offers examples of textual and discursive analyses of television shows and films that portray varied contexts of adult learning and suggests how participants can be brought into adult education research in this area In so doing it provides compelling evidence about the complexity politics and multidimensionality of adult teaching and learning Using a range of television shows and movies as exemplars chapters relate popular culture to globalization identity health and health care and education The book will be of great use to instructors students and researchers located in adult education cultural studies women s and gender studies cultural sociology and other fields who are looking for innovative ways to explore social life as experienced and imagined

Crime Watching Deborah Jermyn, 2006-10-27 In recent years reality TV formats have proliferated on television One of the most significant and controversial strands within this has been the growth of real crime TV Encapsulating everything from crime appeal shows to reconstruction programmes and actuality footage shows real crime TV now plays a major role in our television schedules filling countless hours of air time every week Crime Watching examines the spectacular growth of real crime TV Of these programmes the BBC s Crimewatch UK is Britain s best known in small part due to the tragedy of presenter Jill Dando s death The book argues that the birth of the BBC s Crimewatch UK in 1984 was a key transitional moment in the emergence expansion and subsequent popularity of these programmes both in the UK and internationally Looking closely at the social and political context of the period in which Crimewatch UK first appeared and examining the aesthetics address and appeal of a range of other shows appearing in its wake including Police Camera Action America s Most Wanted and World s Wildest Police Videos this book investigates the conditions that have enabled and advanced the ubiquity of real crime programming on contemporary television and the anxieties that surround it Examining critiques that real crime TV has increased fear of crime while legitimising a surveillance culture and that it serves to stifle debate about criminality and policing Crime Watching also reflects on the pleasures of these programmes and the enduring nature of our culture s seemingly endless fascination with real crime stories
