Raw Material to the Finished Product K. J. Adcock, 2022-07-20 In Leather From the Raw Material to the Finished Product K J Adcock embarks on a comprehensive exploration of leather's journey from the hides of animals to its refined status as a sought after material. The book delves into the intricate processes of tanning, dyeing and finishing while weaving in historical anecdotes and cultural significance of leather across various societies. Adcock's writing is both informative and engaging, blending technical analysis with vivid descriptions that evoke the sensory experience of working with leather. This work occupies a unique niche in both textile literature and material culture studies, engaging readers with its meticulous attention to detail and a narrative that underscores leather's enduring legacy in human craftsmanship. K J Adcock, an established figure in the field of anthropology with a focus on artisanal practices, draws from a wealth of academic experience and personal passion for material culture. His earlier scholarly pursuits in traditional crafting methods inform this work and offer a contextual backdrop, shedding light on the socio-economic pathways that have shaped leather production through the ages. Adcock's dedication to understanding the tactile and socio-political dimensions of materials propels this text forward, enriching the reader's comprehension of leather's multifaceted role in society. I highly recommend Leather From the Raw Material to the Finished Product for anyone interested in craft history or sustainable materials. This book serves not only as a vital reference for artisans and scholars but also as an enlightening read for curious minds eager to understand the interplay between humans, nature and craftsmanship. Adcock's insightful analysis invites readers to appreciate leather not merely as a commodity but as a testament to human ingenuity and cultural heritage.

Lectures or Tractates on the Gospel

According to Saint John Saint Augustine of Hippo, Aeterna Press, When I give heed to what we have just read from the apostolic lesson that the natural man perceiveth not the things which are of the Spirit of God and consider that in the present assembly my beloved there must of necessity be among you many natural men who know only according to the flesh and cannot yet raise themselves to spiritual understanding I am in great difficulty how as the Lord shall grant I may be able to express or in my small measure to explain what has been read from the Gospel. In the beginning was the Word and the Word was with God and the Word was God for this the natural man does not perceive.

Feminist Perspectives on Eating

Disorders Patricia Fallon, Melanie A. Katzman, Susan C. Wooley, 1996-10-01 Advancing the literature on a critical topic, this important new work illuminates the relationship between the anguish of eating disorder sufferers and the problems of ordinary women. The book covers a wide variety of issues from ways in which gender may predispose women to eating disorders to the widespread cultural concerns these problems symbolize. Throughout the psychology of women is reflected in the concepts and methods described, there is an explicit commitment to political and social equality for women and therapy is reevaluated based on an understanding of the needs of women patients and the potentially differing contributions of male and female therapists. Providing valuable insights into the critical problem of eating disorders, this book is essential reading for clinicians and researchers alike. Also by examining many of the ways in which women are affected by and respond to society's gender politics the book may be used as a text in women's studies courses The Catechism of Thomas Becon ...
