Technology And Us Competitiveness:

Perspectives on U.S. Competitiveness in Science and Technology Titus Galama, James R. Hosek, 2007 Is the United States in danger of losing its competitive edge in science and technology S T In response to this concern the Under Secretary of Defense for Personnel and Readiness asked RAND to convene a meeting held on November 8 2006 to review evidence presented by experts from academia government and the private sector The papers presented at the meeting addressed a wide range of issues surrounding the United States current and future S T competitiveness including science policy the quantitative assessment of S T capability globalization the rise of Asia particularly China and India innovation trade technology diffusion the increase in foreign born S T students and workers in the United States new directions in the management and compensation of federal S T workers and national security and the defense industry These papers provide a partial survey of the facts challenges and questions posed by the potential erosion of U S S T capability The importance of S T to U S prosperity and security warrants that policymakers pay careful attention to the various high level reports issued over the past ve years that warn of pressures on the U S lead in S T The intellectual point of embarkation for the RAND meeting was the foremost recent such report Rising Above the Gathering Storm Energizing and Employing America for a Brighter Economic Future by the National Academy of Sciences An Assessment of U.S. Competitiveness in High Technology Industries United States. International Trade Administration, 1983 Technology and U.S. Competitiveness W. Henry Lambright, Dianne Rahm, Policy Studies Organization, 1992-06-17 Technology and U S global competitiveness is a major concern today and yet there is no study that surveys the key issues describing federal and state policies in the United States What new technologies are likely to increase our national productivity and international competitiveness in the future Editors Lambright and Rahm have gathered together a group of experts to provide varying perspectives and recommendations for students scholars experts and policymakers to consider The edited collection describes federal and state programs institutions and changing policy issues given the new world order of technology and competitiveness Part I analyzes federal competitiveness policy the decontrolling of technology transfer the role of the National Institute of Standards and Technology and the emerging role of the Department of Defense in Technology Transfer Part II covers turbulent state programs in the 1990s state space technology programs and basic research and development Part III deals with recent theoretical and organizational approaches to U S technology policy changing international relations and U S Japanese competitiveness and corporate culture in small high tech firms U.S. Competitiveness in Science and Technology Titus Galama, James R. Hosek, 2008 Is the United States in danger of losing its competitive edge in science and technology S information on the size composition and pay of the U S science and engineering workforce and domestic and international education statistics They find that the United States continues to lead the world in science and technology and has kept pace or grown faster than other nations on several measurements of S that it generally benefits from the influx of foreign S and that the United States will continue to benefit from the development of new technologies by other nations as long as it maintains the capability to acquire and implement such technologies However U S leadership in science and technology must not be taken for granted and Galama and Hosek conclude with recommendations to strengthen the U S S T enterprise including measures to facilitate the immigration of highly skilled labor and improve the U S education system Wood Use, U.S. Competitiveness and Technology ,1983 The Role of Technical Information in U.S. Competitiveness with Japan United States.
