

What drives diffusion?

- Four factors can enable productivity diffusion:
 1. Global connections: trade, FDI, participating in GVCs, international mobility of skilled workers
 2. Investments in knowledge based capital – R&D, managerial capital
 3. Efficient allocation of resources, especially skills
 4. Appetite for risk and experimentation
- Each factor is connected to competitive pressure in some way.
- How do we achieve the diffusion of new technologies and best practices in the public sector, given the inherent rigidities and the natural lack of competitive pressure?

Strategy, Economic Organization, and the Knowledge Economy Nicolai J. Foss, 2005-02-03 The rise of the knowledge economy has far reaching implications for the nature of economic organization as well as firm strategy Not surprisingly thinking in management studies as well as in economics has been profoundly affected by these changes Thus management thinking in particular has been increasingly characterized by a schism between those who advocate knowledge or capabilities based approaches in the strategy and organization fields and those who adopt more economics influenced approaches notably the economics of organization This book is a sustained attempt to overcome this schism Its basic argument is that knowledge based and organizational economics approaches are not substitutes but complements In particular organizational economics has much to contribute with respect to furthering the understanding of efficient organization and strategy in the emerging knowledge economy This theme is taken through several theoretical as well as empirical variations Themes such as the incentive liabilities of flat knowledge based organizations and the role of complementary HRM practices for fostering knowledge sharing and creation are extensively treated The book thus contains important implications for knowledge management organizational design and firm strategy The book encompasses nine chapters which critically examine current thinking on strategy and organization The reasoning is non technical While primarily aimed at a management studies audience economists and other social
