Murray, Eli Abraham Rubinstein, George A. Comstock, 1972 Television and Social Behavior National Institute of Mental Health (U.S.), 1971 496 references to monographs journal articles and dissertations about the entertainment and informational aspects of television in relation to children and their behavior Includes some foreign literature 285 annotated references arranged alphabetically by author under broad topics 211 supplementary references arranged alphabetically by author Besides citation and abstract each entry indicates the number of references included Author index Television and Social Behavior: Television and adolescent aggressiveness John P. Murray, Eli Abraham Rubinstein, George A. Comstock, 1972 Television and Social Behavior John P. Murray, Eli Abraham Rubinstein, George A. Comstock, 1972 Research Paradigms, Television, and Social Behaviour Joy Keiko Asamen, Gordon L. Berry, 1998 Research Paradigms Television Social Behavior is a unique book that is designed to provide an understanding of television research from both the quantitative and qualitative perspectives The volume provides a systematic analysis of the various research paradigms used in the study of television and focuses on the integration of quantitative and qualitative methodologies as a means for understanding the complexities associated with this medium The book is useful for both undergraduate and graduate students because it presents information in a straightforward and engaging style as well as provides concrete step by step examples of how to conduct major research and evaluation projects involving this medium The book is also important for seasoned scholars and researchers as well as professionals in the media industry Children, Adolescents, and the Media Victor C. Strasburger, Barbara J. Wilson, Amy B. Jordan, 2013-03-14 Children Adolescents and the Media Third Edition provides a comprehensive research oriented overview of how the media impact the lives of children and adolescents in modern society The approach is grounded in a developmental perspective focusing on how young people of different ages and levels of cognitive emotional and social development interact with the media Incorporating the most up to date research available Authors Victor C Strasburger Barbara J Wilson and Amy B Jordan target areas most controversial and at the heart of debates about the media and public health equipping students to approach the media as critical consumers Television and Social Behavior Stephen B. Withey, Ronald P. Abeles, 2013-07-24 This book published originally in 1980 addressed the needs for a profile of televised violence which considered the advantages and disadvantages of various measures and for a furthering of research directions beyond the then popular emphasis on children The Committee on Television and Social Behavior was formed in 1972 and stimulated new research in order to provide a multidimensional profile of the social effects of television programming Chapters here look at the effect of television on adults as well as children particularly special audiences such as the elderly and minority groups An excellent summary of the various conceptual substantive and methodological issues around television s influence

Advances in Experimental Social Psychology, 1980-01-18 Advances in Experimental Social Psychology Television and Behavior, 1982 The Faces of Televisual Media Edward L. Palmer, Brian M. Young, 2003-10-17 This collection offers original state of the art contributions from leading authorities in children's televisual media. International researchers from communication and psychology provide readers with ready access to current televisual research trends and policymaking political climate issues pertaining to children. This second edition provides a current summary of studies on content viewing patterns comprehension effects and individual differences in instructional and educational programming televisual entertainment and violence programming and televisual advertising to children. Editors Edward L. Palmer and Brian M. Young have structured the volume into three sections examining the faces of television: the Teaching instructional educational Face, the Violent Face, and the Selling advertising Face. Chapters within each section identify and focus recurrent themes while integrating them topically into a coherent whole. Each area incorporates new technologies and considers their potentials effects and future. Subjects featured in the various chapters include cross cultural and historical comparisons with an in depth perspective on the BBC and other European Asian televisual media roots as well as America's formative televisual media roots an examination of key differences between developed and developing countries implications of emerging instructional educational media for children's education addressing both cognitive and multi ethnic aspects and prominent informed challenge to the prevailing popular view that children are unaffected and unharmed by exposure to media violence. This volume informs ongoing debates across a broad spectrum of current critical issues and suggests avenues for future research. It is pertinent and provocative for the most sophisticated scholar in the field as well as for students in areas of developmental or social psychology communication education sociology marketing broadcasting and film public policy advertising and medicine pediatrics. It is also appropriate for courses in children media and society. Television and Behavior National Institute of Mental Health (U.S.), 1982 Abstract A comprehensive report summarizes the past 10 years of research activities and findings concerning the effects of television viewing on child behavior and development. Approximately 90% of all research publications on this topic appeared during this period representing over 2500 titles. The report is presented in 2 volumes: a summary report and technical reviews. The technical reviews comprise overall comprehensive and critical syntheses of the scientific literature on specific topic areas developed by 24 researchers in this area. The topic areas address such issues as cognitive and emotional aspects of television viewing television's influences on physical and mental health television as it relates to socialization and viewer's conceptions of social reality and television as an American institution. The overall orientation of the report is toward research and public health issues. Youth Aggression and Violence Thomas G. Moeller, 2001-06 The rash of school shootings in the late 1990s has generated a tremendous amount of public concern about youth aggression and violence. But students trainees and professionals who work with children and adolescents have had no concise or systematic survey of our current knowledge about causes and effective approaches to intervention and prevention on which to draw Youth Aggression and Violence has filled the void Comprehensive and readable it utilizes theory and research from the developmental psychology of normal children and adolescents as well as material on abnormal forms of development such as disruptive behavior disorders and juvenile delinquency situates youthful aggression and violence within the overall framework of children's moral development integrates quantitative research with carefully considered qualitative research and case studies discusses the genetic and biological underpinnings of youthful aggression as well as family and social factors related to antisocial behavior emphasizes cognitive motivational and emotional processes involved in youth aggression and violence provides in depth coverage of juvenile killers and school violence examines female aggression and violence in a variety of contexts and critically examines a number of questions frequently discussed in conjunction with youth violence such as media violence firearm accessibility and the relationship between self esteem and aggression Television and Social Behavior: Television and social learning John P. Murray, Eli Abraham Rubinstein, George A. Comstock, 1972 The Psychology of Television John Condry, 2017-10-03 This volume addresses the content of television both programs and advertisements and the psychological effects of the content on the audience The author not only reports new research but explains its practical applications without jargon Issues are discussed and described in terms of psychological mechanisms and causal routes of influence While primarily referring to the American television industry and American governmental regulations the psychological principles discussed are applicable to television viewers world wide Drug Use in America United States. Commission on Marihuana and Drug Abuse, 1973
