Media Power and Hegemony in South Africa

Blessed Ngwenya,2020-11-15 This book critically explores how meanings of independence are constructed and reconfigured by public service broadcasters in the global south with a particular focus on the South African Broadcasting Corporation SABC. Blessed Ngwenya questions the institutional political economy and world systems paradigms born out of coloniality which continue to influence broadcasting and media in the global south and instead presents a radical local understanding of freedom in the present day. The author draws on detailed empirical interviews with members of staff from across the SABC including board members senior management and journalists offering an intimate insight into how the participants themselves perceive understand and deal with the issues and problems they face in relation to independence. Framed by a rich analysis of the historical context this book provides readers with the theoretical and empirical toolkit needed to place the everyday experiences and needs of their subjects first and to ultimately arrive at an accurate understanding of independence in its several senses. Contributing to growing global debates on the decolonisation of knowledge this book is critical reading for advanced scholars and researchers of African media culture communication and epistemic freedom.

Too Many People? Ian Angus,Simon Butler,2011 Too Many People provides a clear well documented and popularly written refutation of the idea that overpopulation is a major cause of environmental destruction arguing that a focus on human numbers not only misunderstands the causes of the crisis it dangerously weakens the movement for real solutions. No other book challenges modern overpopulation theory so clearly and comprehensively providing invaluable insights for the layperson and environmental scholars alike. Ian Angus is editor of the ecosocialist journal Climate and Capitalism and Simon Butler is co editor of Green Left Weekly.

Shoot First and Ask Questions Later Justin Lewis,2006 Based on extensive original research Shoot First and Ask Questions Later provides a comprehensive analysis of media coverage of the war in Iraq in 2003. The authors look closely at the main actors involved through a broad range of interviews with journalists both embedded and non embedded news editors news heads and with key planners at the Pentagon and the UK Ministry of Defence This book also investigates how the war was represented on television employing both a systematic content analysis of the broadcast news coverage of the war and a series of case studies that unravel key moments of good and bad reporting during the war Finally it examines how people responded to and interpreted the information they received from the media drawing upon both large scale surveys and focus groups What emerges for all its blemishes is a picture of a sophisticated military public relations campaign one that had less to do with censorship than with promoting certain kinds of coverage At the heart of this was the embedded journalists program which has clearly changed the way war is reported In future the authors argue journalists need to understand their role in this public relations effort and to ask questions not only when access is denied but also when it is granted

Disobeying the Security Council Antonios Tzanakopoulos, 2013-02-14 This book examines how the United Nations Security Council in exercising its power to impose binding non forcible measures sanctions under Article 41 of the UN Charter may violate international law The Council may overstep limits on its power imposed by the UN Charter itself and by general international law including human rights guarantees Such acts may engage the international responsibility of the United Nations the organization of which the Security Council is an organ Disobeying the Security Council discusses how and by whom the responsibility of the UN for unlawful Security Council sanctions can be determined in other words how the UN can be held to account for Security Council excesses The central thesis of this work is that states can respond to unlawful sanctions imposed by the Security Council in a decentralized manner by disobeying the Security Council's command. In international law this disobedience can be justified as constituting a countermeasure to the Security Council's unlawful act. Recent practice of states both in the form of executive acts and court decisions demonstrates an increasing tendency to disobey sanctions that are perceived as unlawful. After discussing other possible qualifications of disobedience under international law, the book concludes that this practice can and should be qualified as a countermeasure.

Routledge Handbook of Transnational Organized Crime Felia Allum, Stan Gilmour, 2012-03-15 Transnational organized crime crosses borders, challenges states, exploits individuals, pursues profit, wrecks economies, destroys civil society, and ultimately weakens global democracy. It is a phenomenon that is all too often misunderstood and misrepresented. This handbook attempts to redress the balance by providing a fresh and interdisciplinary overview of the problems which transnational organized crime represents. The innovative aspect of this handbook is not only its interdisciplinary nature but also the dialogue between international academics and practitioners that it presents. The handbook seeks to provide the definitive overview of transnational organized crime, including contributions from leading international scholars as well as emerging researchers. The work starts by examining the origins, concepts, contagion, and evolution of transnational organized crime, and then moves on to discuss the impact, governance, and reactions of governments and their agencies, before looking to the future of transnational organized crime and how the state will seek to respond. Providing a cutting-edge survey of the discipline, this work will be essential reading for all those with an interest in this dangerous phenomenon. East Timor,

René Girard and Neocolonial Violence Susan Connelly, 2022-01-13 In a new historical interpretation of the relationship between Australia and East Timor, Susan Connelly draws on the mimetic theory of René Girard to show how the East Timorese people were scapegoated by Australian foreign policy during the 20th century. Charting key developments in East Timor's history and applying three aspects of Girard's framework—the scapegoat, texts of persecution, and conversion—Connelly reveals Australia's mimetic dependence on Indonesia and other nations for security. She argues that Australia's complicity in the Indonesian invasion and occupation of East Timor perpetuated the sacrifice of the Timorese people as victims, thus calling into question the traditional Australian values of egalitarianism and fairness. Connelly also examines the embryonic conversion process apparent in levels of recognition of the innocent victim and of the Australian role in East Timor's suffering, as well as the consequent effects on Australian self-perception. Emphasising Girardian considerations of fear, suffering, forgiveness, and conversion, this book offers a fresh perspective on Australian and Timorese relations that in turn sheds light on the origins and operations of human violence. Hard Interests, Soft Illusions Natasha

Hamilton-Hart, 2012-02-17 In Hard Interests, Soft Illusions Natasha Hamilton-Hart explores the belief held by foreign policy elites in much of Southeast Asia—Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Thailand, Singapore, and Vietnam—that the United States is a relatively benign power. She argues that this belief is an important factor underpinning U.S. preeminence in the region.

because beliefs inform specific foreign policy decisions and form the basis for broad orientations of alignment opposition or nonalignment Such foundational beliefs however do not simply reflect objective facts and reasoning processes Hamilton Hart argues that they are driven by both interests in this case the political and economic interests of ruling groups in Southeast Asia and illusions Hamilton Hart shows how the information landscape and standards of professional expertise within the foreign policy communities of Southeast Asia shape beliefs about the United States These opinions frequently rest on deeply biased understandings of national history that dominate perceptions of the past and underlie strategic assessments of the present and future Members of the foreign policy community rarely engage in probabilistic reasoning or effortful knowledge testing strategies This does not mean she emphasizes that the beliefs are insincere or merely instrumental rationalizations Rather cognitive and affective biases in the ways humans access and use information mean that interests influence beliefs how they do so depends on available information the social organization and practices of a professional sphere and prevailing standards for generating knowledge

Capitalist Networks and Social Power in Australia and New Zealand Georgina Murray, 2017-09-29 It is often asserted that the ruling elite in Western capitalist economies now consists of liberal intellectuals and their media sympathisers By contrast this book looks at the real elite in Australian and New Zealand society and shows that there is still a ruling class based upon economic dominance From an analysis of corporate and public records interviews and other primary and secondary data it develops a picture of networks of power that are changing but are as real as any network in the past
