1.0 Introduction

- Biology is the science of life forms and living processes. The living world comprises an amazing diversity of living organisms. The extraordinary habitats in which we find living organisms are cold mountains, deciduous forests, oceans, fresh water lakes, deserts, hot springs, etc.

1.1 What is Living?

- Living organisms exhibit certain distinctive characteristics. Growth, development, reproduction, metabolism, ability to sense environment, responsiveness are unique features of living organisms. All living organisms grow. Increase in mass and increase in number of individuals are twin characteristics of growth. Unicellular organisms grow in number by cell division. Here growth and reproduction mean the same. In majority of higher animals and plants, growth and reproduction are mutually exclusive events. Here increase in body mass is considered as growth. They grow by cell division, i.e., growth is from inside. When growth occurs continuously throughout the life span as in plants, it is indeterminate growth (unlimited growth). When growth occurs only upto a certain age as in animals, it is determinate growth (limited growth). However, cell division occurs in certain tissues to replace lost cells.
- Non-living objects also grow by increase in body mass. Mountains, boulders and sand mounds do grow. This kind of growth exhibited by non-living objects is by accumulation of material on the surface is called accretion. In living organisms, growth is from inside. Hence, growth cannot be taken as a defining property of living organisms.
- Reproduction is a characteristic of living organisms. It is the ability of an individual to give rise to new individual of its own kind. Reproduction may be sexual or asexual. Fungi multiply and spread easily due to the millions of asexual spores they produce. Lower organisms like yeast and Hydra, multiply by budding. Planaria (a flatworm), reproduces by regeneration, i.e., a fragmented organism regenerates the lost part of its body and becomes, a new organism. The fungi, the filamentous algae, the protonema of mosses, all easily multiply by fragmentation. There are many organisms which do not reproduce like mules, sterile worker bees, infertile human couples, etc. Hence, reproduction also cannot be an all-inclusive defining characteristic of living organisms. Of course, no non-living object is capable of reproducing or replicating by itself.
- All living organisms are made of chemicals which are constantly being made and changed into some other biomolecules. These conversions are chemical reactions or metabolic reactions. Sum total of all chemical reactions occurring in our body is called metabolism.

Jagtenberg, 2012-12-06 This book concerns the institutionalisation of the physical sciences The book breaks with the established tradition in the history philosophy and sociology of sciences by attempting to capture both the cognitive and social dimensions of institutionalisation in one unified analysis This unification has been achieved through a treatment of research as goal directed social action a theme which has been developed both theoretically and empirically The analysis presented is therefore unique in its breadth of focus and shows how the traditional concerns of sociology with generalised macro structures of meaning and action can be related to the lifeworlds of individual scientists The sociology of the sciences is still today a relative newcomer to the field of sciences studies which has traditionally been dominated by the history and philosophy of the sciences I hope that this book reflects the excitement I experienced in being able to respond to the debates and concepts which erupted in that particularly fertile period following the publication of Kuhn's Structure of Scientific Revolutions in 1962 a period from which a cognitively oriented sociology of the sciences was to emerge as a serious challenger to orthodoxies in the history philosophy and sociology of sciences Phenomenology and Theory of Science Aron Gurwitsch, 1974 Essays on the relationship between perceptual experience and scientific thought an introduction to the phenomenology of science Hermeneutic Philosophies of Social Science Babette Babich, 2017-10-23 Hermeneutic philosophies of social science offer an approach to the philosophy of social science foregrounding the human subject and including attention to history as well as a methodological reflection on the notion of reflection including the intrusions of distortions and prejudice Hermeneutic philosophies of social science offer an explicit orientation to and concern with the subject of the human and social sciences Hermeneutic philosophies of the social science represented in the present collection of essays draw inspiration from Gadamer's work as well as from Paul Ricoeur in addition to Michel de Certeau and Michel Foucault among others Special attention is given to Wilhelm Dilthey in addition to the broader phenomenological traditions of Edmund Husserl and Martin Heidegger as well as the history of philosophy in Plato and Descartes The volume is indispensable reading for students and scholars interested in epistemology philosophy of science social social studies of knowledge as well as social studies of technology

Schutzian Social Science Lester Embree, 2013-03-09 Timed for the centennial of Alfred Schutz 1899 1999 this set of original essays documents the continuing relevance of his thought in economics geography sociology philosophy and political science and indicates the continuing interest in his thought in East Asia Western Europe and North America The authors of these essays are leading authorities in their countries and disciplines Schutz is the pre eminent phenomenological philosopher of the social sciences New materials from his Nachla concerning barriers to equality of opportunity including a report co authored with the political scientist Harold Lasswell are also included

Living Mirrors Jack Stephens, 2003 Not far beneath the surface of the sea wait the world's last unexplored wild places On the sun drenched crests of tropical coral reefs and in the dim uncharted waters just below them live the most biologically productive and diverse communities on our planet No ecosystem is more varied and beautiful And none is in more danger of perishing in our lifetimes Rushing to the aid of these robust yet fragile natural treasures are adventurous men and women eager to face the challenge of discovering recording and preserving these imperiled ecosystems and the interesting creatures that call them home Living Mirrors A Coral Reef Adventure introduces us to Howard and Michele Hall the husband wife underwater cinematography team who have joined forces with biologists conservationists and filmmakers to bring the rest of us the most intimate look at coral reefs and the lands seas and peoples around them we may ever get Living Mirrors is the companion volume to MacGillivray Freeman Film's documentary feature Coral Reef Adventure filmed exclusively for IMAX theatres and large format cinemas A richly illustrated exploration of corals and the worlds they create Living Mirrors reveals the secrets of the reef and reflects them above the waterline where we might appreciate the wider implications of a realm vital to the balance of the rest of our world and worthy of our efforts to preserve it now and for generations to come Book jacket

Changing Social Science Daniel R. Sabia, Jerald Wallulis, 1983-06-30 Changing Social Science is both a description of and prescription for the current unease in the social sciences It brings together articles by philosophers sociologists and political scientists who advocate changing the way social science is conceived and practiced Focusing on the thought of past and present critics and proponents of critical inquiry especially on the critical theory of Jürgen Habermas and on the disciplines of political science and sociology collaborators on this volume support a critical form of social and political inquiry outline its main characteristics and examine its foundations options and unresolved problems The book is divided into section on reflexivity methodology and explanation and criticism and advocacy From an introductory overview of the collection of articles and an account of the central issues in critical inquiry discussions ensue on the methodological inadequacies and political implications of naturalist approaches to social and political inquiry the nature and foundations of interpretive approaches to social science the role nature and limits of causal explanations and causal theories of human action the role of values in research and theory and defenses and criticisms of the normative aspirations of both Habermas s critical theory and of critical social science in general Semantics and Social Science (Routledge Revivlas) Graham MacDonald, Philip Pettit, 2011-03-31 Originally published in 1980 this book examines the major issues in the philosophy of social science paying specific attention to cross cultural understanding humanism versus scientism individualism versus collectivism and the shaping of theory by evaluative commitment Arguing for a cross cultural conception of human beings the authors defend humanism and individualism and reject the notion that social inquiry is necessarily vitiated by an adherence to values
