Researching Ethically across Cultures Anna Robinson-Pant, Nidhi Singal, 2018-02-02 Whether an individual doctoral study or a large scale multidisciplinary project researchers working across cultures face particular challenges around power identity and voice as they encounter ethical dilemmas which extend beyond the micro level of the researcher researched relationship In using a cross cultural perspective on how to conceptualise research problems collect data and disseminate findings in an ethical manner they also engage with the geopolitics of academic writing language inequalities and knowledge construction within a globalised economy It is increasingly recognised that existing ethical codes and paradigms either do not sufficiently address such issues or tend to be rather restrictive and insensitive to multiple and complex cultural and contextual differences This book extends our understanding of the ethical issues and dilemmas faced by researchers in comparative and international education It asks what the relevance of postcolonial theory is for understanding research ethics in comparative and international education whether Western ethical practices in qualitative social research are incompatible with cultures outside the West how a situated approach can be developed for exploring research ethics across cultures and institutions and how informed consent can be negotiated when the process appears to contradict community values and practices In sharing experiences from a wide range of cultural and institutional contexts the authors offer both theoretical resources and practical guidance for conducting research ethically across cultures This book was originally published as a special issue of Compare A Journal of Comparative and International Education
