Child Survival Nancy Scheper-Hughes, 2012-12-06 of older children adults and the family unit as a whole These moral evaluations are in turn influenced by such external contingencies as population demography social and economic factors subsistence strategies household composition and by cultural ideas concerning the nature of infancy and childhood definitions of personhood and beliefs about the soul and its immortality

MOTHER LOVE AND CHILD DEATH Of all the many factors that endanger the lives of young children by far the most difficult to examine with any degree of dispassionate objectivity is the quality of parenting Historians and social scientists no less than the public at large are influenced by old cultural myths about childhood innocence and mother love as well as their opposites The terrible power and significance attributed to maternal behavior in particular is a commonsense perception based on the observation that the human infant specialized as it is for prematurity and prolonged dependency simply cannot survive for very long without considerable maternal love and care The infant s life depends to a very great extent on the good will of others but most especially of course that of the mother Consequently it has been the fate of mothers throughout history to appear in strange and distorted forms They may appear as larger than life or as invisible as all powerful and destructive or as helpless and angelic Myths of the maternal instinct compete historically with myths of a universal infanticidal impulse
