The Political Constraints on Nigerian Economic Development Since the Independence Cajetan Iwunze, 2013-02 Since gaining its independence in 1960 Nigeria has never really existed as a unified nation but rather as scattered tribal sects that often fail to coexist with one another peacefully This uneasy alliance has led to civil war in the past and is responsible for the continuing conflict between Muslims and Christians that exists in Nigeria today Because of these deeply embedded political constraints Nigeria has also fallen behind in terms of economic development However Nigeria is not a nation without resources Many of Nigeria's conflicts are centered around oil As it stands currently Nigeria's wealth is concentrated in the hands of the ruling elite and little has been done to improve the situation of the poorest segments of the population But the prolonged and dismal situation in the Nigerian economy that serves as the inspiration behind The Political Constraints on Nigerian Economic Development Since the Independence is not without a potential solution Author Cajetan Iwunze intended this book as more than just a statement against the tribal nationalism and the economic bandits that continue to loot the country It also aims to suggest that if there is a solution it lies in reforming the country's institutions so that Nigeria's oil wealth can be used for the benefit of everyone Although he currently lives in the UK Cajetan Iwunze was born in eastern Nigeria Mr Iwunze is an international human rights campaigner writer and teacher who serves as the Director of Professional Tutors Ltd and the CEO of Dyswrite Ltd Publisher's website <http://sbpra.com/CajetanIwunze>

Racial and Prejudicial Stereotyping by Police Rashid Minhas, 2024-04-01 This book uncovers the influence of racial and prejudicial stereotyping during police investigation of suspects from stigmatised communities It examines the under researched aspect of whether and how negative stereotypes appear to influence the police interviews investigative decision making and outcomes of criminal investigations when officers investigate individuals from stigmatised communities as suspects of crime In the United Kingdom the United States and Europe the war on terror has been argued to impact adversely on existing race relations policies in the aftermath of terrorist activity in both the United States and Europe Recent research has suggested that changes in legislation and counterterrorism measures have contributed to the construction and reinforcement of the Muslim community as a suspect which in turn may result in police bias and prejudice towards members of Muslim communities Based on novel and groundbreaking research studies the author examines whether such police bias could influence the police investigation and interviewing processes concerning individuals from the suspect community as well as the outcome of a criminal investigation The author introduces the Minhas Investigative Interviewing Prejudicial Stereotyping Scale MIIPSS an instrument developed and used to assess the level of police interviewers racial and prejudicial stereotyping towards suspects from stigmatised groups and maintains that its use would serve to minimise the influence of racial and prejudicial stereotypes on investigation It is further suggested that the training of police officers on the implications of such prejudicial racial religious stereotyping is essential to improving interviewing performance case outcomes and community cohesion This book will benefit academics researchers police officers lawyers social policy officers and probation officers across the globe

The Street Casino Simon Harding, 2014-06-11 Gang violence is on the increase in certain neighbourhoods There is an urgent need for a fresh perspective that offers insight into gang structure organisation and offending behaviour to explain this increase Using the findings from an extensive ethnographic study of local residents professionals and gang members in south London and drawing on his vast experience and knowledge of the field Simon Harding proposes a unique theoretical perspective on survival in violent street gangs He applies Bourdieu s principles of social field analysis and habitus to gangs establishing them as a social arena of competition where actors struggle for distinction and survival striving to become players in the game in the casino of life Success is determined by accruing and retaining playing chips street capital Harding s dramatic and compelling insights depict gang life as one of constant flux where players jostle for position reputation status and distinction This perspective offers new evidence to the field that will help academics students practitioners and policy makers to understand the dynamics of gang behaviour and the associated risks of violence and offending Simon Harding is currently a senior lecturer in criminology at Middlesex University UK He draws on 25 years of experience in research public policy and project delivery as a crime reduction and community safety practitioner Reports of Cases in Criminal Law Argued and Determined in All the Courts in England and Ireland Edward William Cox,1921 Policing by Coercion Louise Christian, Greater London Council. EMPIRE STRIKES BACK Centre for Contemporary Cultural Studies,2004-08-02 First Published in 1982 The Empire Strikes Back examines the place of race and racism in the political transformation of Britain at the end of the seventies and argues that Britain has entered a longterm political and economic crisis which has brought new urgency to the politics of race and nation The authors explore the elements of a new culturally focused racism which in representations of black families stresses their alienness and the supposed criminal inclinations of the black population They argue that the British state is very far from its popular image as a liberal democracy and that all our notions of culture nation and class are based on deeply racist structures Key areas of state intervention such as schooling policing and policy oriented race relations research are analysed to demonstrate that a definition of the growing crisis in the economy and social services is emerging which shifts the focus of blame on to black people The authors argue that existing race relations theory has significantly failed to deal adequately with the British situation In particular the experience of black women and the political organization of young black people raises major problems for race blind feminism and Eurocentric Marxism alike In conclusion the book assesses the political relation of race to class and suggests that any long term struggle against racism must begin by recognizing the autonomy of black struggles at all levels of British society Minorities, Migrants, and Crime Ineke Haen Marshall,1997-07-22 What relationship exists between minority status and crime Is this relationship generalizable across different societies Many western nations are becoming concerned with the problem of crime in general and in particular the role of minority groups be they political refugees guest workers immigrants or native ethnic and racial minorities A unique cross cultural exploration Minorities Migrants and Crime highlights the empirical realities of crime and these under studied populations Each international expert from the United States or Europe surveys national statistical facts and research as well as political and theoretical debates critical to the issues Revealing a number of surprising similarities and differences original chapters examine law enforcement priorities punishment philosophy and practices and media coverage against the backdrop of contemporary thought and facts about race ethnicity migrants crime and criminal justice in the United States Offering an in depth examination of international perspectives Minorities Migrants and Crime adds a viewpoint crucial to the law and policy making currently taking place in the United States Minorities Migrants and Crime features state of the art research in the international arena of criminal justice A thought provoking read this book will prove to be an ideal resource for researchers academics and students in criminology criminal justice corrections policing sociology ethnic studies policy studies international studies immigration studies and public administration Race and Drug Trials Anita Kalunta-Crumpton, 2018-08-13 First published in 1999 this book offers an innovative study of the impact that courts have upon the representation of black people in criminal statistics in the UK In the past research in this area has focused on sentencing and upon why black people are disproportionately represented in the prison population Such studies have however overlooked the potential significance of discrimination in the pre sentence social processes of the courts Anita Kalunta Crumpton adopts a new approach which examines the progress of cases prior to sentencing Her book also locates the courts within a theoretical context of social construction It thus unlike earlier quantitative studies represents the court system as non mechanical In this way Race and Drug Trials exposes the vital role that the trial process plays in the apparent racialization of justice The volume is part of a series which brings together research from a range of disciplines including criminology cultural studies and applied social sciences focusing on experiences of ethnic gender and class relations In particular the series examines the treatment of marginalised groups within the social systems for criminal justice education health employment and welfare
