Sustainable Development of Dryland Agriculture in India R.P. Singh, 2011-01-01 There are chapters on varied topics covering the major gamut of dryland agriculture The topics covered by eminent scientists are Dryland agricultural research in India a historical perspective The eminence of authors and the institutions they represent gives credence to the contents of the book Research and development workers all would like to possess this book for ready reference and use

Sustainable Dryland Farming Lynne Chatterton, Brian Chatterton, 2005-11-10 Sheep and wheat are the staples of dryland farms in the Mediterranean zone of the Northern Hemisphere The commonly used dryland farming system introduced in the 1950s however is proving unsustainable What is needed is an alternative system that is both environmentally sustainable and within the means of most farmers in the region This book analyzes the quagmire of development on dryland farms to try to find some answers to these issues for scientists in agriculture and economics

Sustainable Dryland Farming A.M. Dhopte, 2020-10-09 Sustainability is extremely important in dryland farming under global climatic change Technology devised by various agricultural institutions is provided in this book Variation in environmental factors may influence entire ecological system which may not be ideal for agriculture Under such global scenario plant growth is under jeopardy New varieties have to be developed to suit the varied climate or crop strategy in view of crop domain suiting ideal available temperature has to be framed to make dryland farming sustainable Various agrotechnology needs to be adapted to avoid depletion in productivity Global climatic change in future may limit the productivity of available varieties Corporate farming may come to rescue the problem under present scenario Various agrotechnologies described in this book may help the farmers and planners to overcome the situation in future Critical problems have been dealt with probable solutions to suit the requirements Multicropping system organic farming watersheds promotion reclamation of degraded soils soil health cards use of portals of weather forecast early harvest on physiological maturity and use of instant remedies timely under unfavourable season shall ease the failure of crop Long outstanding demand has thus fulfilled with this book

Sustainable Dryland Farming, 2020 Dryland Farming in the Northwestern United States DIANE Publishing Company, 1993-06 Discusses and describes the process of dryland farming specifically in the Pacific Northwest

Sustainable Dryland Cropping in Relation to Soil Productivity C. J. Pearson, David W. Norman, J. Dixon, Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 1995-01-01

Agrotechnology for Dryland Farming 2nd. Revised Ed. A.M. Dhopte, 2017-01-01 It is known that dryland farming is not remunerative due to several constraints Location specific technologies have been evolved for yield stabilization in dryland farming and conservation of fragile ecosystem by sustainable use of soil and water resources Drought and flood situations are experienced some where in the country inspite of plentiful resources of waters sunshine hours but poverty among farmers still exists This is a point of serious concern Agrotechniques are alone the answer for low productivity 0.8 t/ha of 90% rainfed farming To feed over one billion growing population of country there is a need to increase the productivity to 1.5 t/ha by 2010 AD This book deals with seed soil watersheds crop weed and nutrient management use of weather forecast measure to save crops under abiotic stresses like drought and flooding selection of crops and variety reclamation of degraded land organic recycling agro meteorological approaches water requirement early harvest on physiological maturity agro hydro modelling and suitable medicinal and aromatic crops to make dry farming remunerative for welfare of common farmers This is the first comprehensive book where large number of agro techniques are incorporated Chapters are written by eminent scientists of national repute who have devoted their life time to solve probable problems of dryland Agro techniques can well be adopted with ease by farmers through extension agencies to avoid bankruptcy Book includes all relevant aspects of rainfed farming and is therefore a valuable addition in Dryfarming and meets the expectations of all those interested in rainfed farming in the country and abroad Long outstanding demand has thus fulfilled with this book The novel approach of editor has made the readers task quick and minimized their efforts by compiling all agro techniques together at one place for benefit of farmers

Sustainability of Dryland Agriculture in India S. Lakshmikanthamma, 1997 Study restricted to the Mittermari micro watershed in Kolar District Karnataka Benefits of Crop Rotation for Sustainable Agriculture in Dryland Farming, 1990 Innovations in Dryland Agriculture Muhammad Farooq, Kadambot H.M. Siddique, 2017-01-05 This book is a ready reference on recent innovations in dryland agriculture and reinforces the understanding for its utilization to develop environmentally sustainable and profitable food production systems It covers the basic concepts and history components and elements breeding and modelling efforts and potential benefits experiences challenges and innovations relevant to agriculture in dryland areas around world Sustainable Dryland Farming at Neales Flat Tony Craddock, Lyn Schneider, 2000 Advances in Soil Science, 2013-03-07 From the beginning of agriculture until about 1950 increased food production came almost entirely from expanding the cropland base Since 1950 however the yield per unit of land area for major crops has increased dramatically Much of the increase in yields was because of increased inputs of energy Between 1950 and 1985 the farm tractor fleet quadrupled world irrigated area tripled and use of fertilizer increased ninefold Between 1950 and 1985 the total energy used in world agriculture increased 6.9 times Irrigation played a particularly important role in the rapid increase in food production between 1950 and 1985 The world's irrigated land in 1950 totaled 94 million hectares but increased to 140 million by 1960 to 198 million by 1970 and to 271 million hectares in 1985 However the current rate of expansion has slowed to less than 1 % per year The world population continues to increase and agricultural production by the year 2000 will have to be 50 to 60% greater than in 1980 to meet demands This continued demand for food and fiber coupled with the sharp decline in the growth rate of irrigation development means that much of the additional agricultural production in future years must come from cultivated land that is not irrigated Agricultural production will be expanded in the arid and semiarid regions because these regions make up vast areas in developing countries where populations are rapidly rising

Challenges and Strategies of Dryland Agriculture S.C. Rao, 2011-01-01 The world has made remarkable progress in maintaining adequate food supplies during the past quarter century by introducing yield increasing technologies such as better genetics crop protection products and more efficient use of fertilizers and irrigations Far more people depend on irrigation in the modern world than during the times of ancient Sumeria The spread of irrigation has been the key factor in increasing global crop yields But future scarcity present the single biggest threat to future food production The shift of water from agriculture to the growing cities and industry almost certainly will impact global food production This means that dryland agriculture will be increasingly important in meeting food requirement for the growing population Advances in plant genetics and agronomic conservation technologies when considered in concert continue to provide the greatest opportunities to achieve sustainability and profitability in dryland agriculture and will continue to be the focus of the ARS research program The ARS is please to join the crop Science Society of America and international center for Agriculture Research in Dry Areas ICARDA in sponsoring a symposium Challenges and strategies for Dryland Agriculture at the Trisocieties Annual Meeting in November 2002 at Indianapolis IN This special publication contains an impressive series of paper by international group of experts on dryland agricultural production conservation and policy The principles philosophies and technologies presented in this publication have the potential to contribute to improve food security and livelihoods for the people in dryland regions of the world

Strategic Review of the Sustainable Dryland Agriculture and Land Management Key Project in Victoria ,1999

Enhancing Resilience of Dryland Agriculture Under Changing Climate Anandkumar Naorem, Deepesh Machiwal, 2023-03-09 This contributed volume describes management practices based on interdisciplinary and convergence science approaches from different disciplines of agricultural science to enhance the resilience of dryland agriculture The main focus of this book is to address the current issues and trends along with future prospects and challenges in adopting salient agricultural management practices in drylands globally under a climate change scenario Climate change and global warming have profound repercussions on increasing frequency severity and duration of droughts and or floods which may have implications for future productivity of dryland agriculture e g more water shortages or abundances and high or low runoff rates diminished crop yields and reduced water productivity In past few years many technological advancements and management strategies have been evolved to tackle the climate induced risks of dryland agriculture considering interdisciplinary and convergence approaches that integrate knowledge from multi disciplines This book is an attempt to bridge the gap in literature by unraveling controversies and characteristics of dryland ecosystems under the changing climate and dealing with detailed procedures of applying the advanced practices adapted to climate change for management of dryland agriculture This edited book is of interest to ecologists economists environmentalists geologists horticulturalists hydrologists soil scientists social scientists natural resource conservationists and policy makers dealing with dryland agriculture This book offers a broad understanding of dryland agriculture and assists the reader to identify both the current as well as the probable future state of dryland agriculture in a global context

Benefits of Crop Rotation for Sustainable Agriculture in Dryland Farming Robert Paul Zentner, Canada. Agriculture Canada, 1990 Since the early 1900s more than 68 long term crop rotation studies have been conducted with 20 of these studies still continuing This publication which focuses on the period since the 1950s summarizes the effects of rotation length crop sequence substitute crops for summer fallow and fertilization using nitrogen and phosphorus on crop production and quality pests soil moisture nitrogen and phosphorus uptake soil quality profitability and energy efficiency Highlights from these studies are discussed under each topic Recommendations are given on how to run an efficient economical and environmentally responsible farming operating on the Canadian prairies      Agrarian Distress in Dryland Farming Dr. Kishore Babu Karri,      Sustainable Or Alternative Agriculture Jane Potter Gates, 1992      Social Aspects of Sustainable Dryland Management Daniel Stiles, 1995-06-20 With dryland areas accommodating approximately one billion people in over a hundred countries there is obviously a problem of increased stress being placed on the natural resources of these areas which ultimately contributes to overall land degradation Coupled with this many developing countries particularly in Africa are showing a fall in agricultural production per capita with people migrating away from dryland areas such relocation to marginal lands and forests or to already over populated cities further enhances global land degradation With this in mind Social Aspects of Sustainable Dryland Management attempts to address the overall problem of land degradation and provides ways in which dryland productivity and viability can be increased and managed for future years The volume bases its results on case studies and field research projects and encourages a greater involvement of the local population in developing methods of management of their own natural resources This volume therefore embodies a concept of development far beyond conventional methods It aims to show that land management must develop around the priorities needs and objectives of the people concerned and emphasises the need to involve local people in solving the problems of resource degradation so that future research and modern technologies can be developed with their participation Above all it seeks to recognise the value of indigenous knowledge in sustainable development so that such knowledge systems can become the starting point from which to plan management strategies and new technological adaptations
