Abstract: The Kenyan Taifa Leo newspaper has a big role in the teaching and learning of Swahili language as it is the only Swahili newspaper published and distributed all over the country. Swahili language is one of the compulsory and examinable subjects at primary and secondary school levels. This raises the need to prepare the learners adequately right from the lower levels of primary school. This is made possible by use of learning materials like Taifa Leo newspaper. This daily carries grammatical and thematic aspects which are useful in the implementation of the Swahili language curriculum. The paper investigates Taifa Leo's applicability in the teaching of Swahili grammar and vocabulary in Secondary schools in Kenya. In addition, the paper will look at the challenges facing the use of the said newspaper as a classroom teaching resource. Data for the paper was collected through content analysis of sampled Taifa Leo publications. The paper will inspire Swahili scholars to use the Taifa Leo as a teaching resource. In addition, it will challenge newspaper publishers in ensuring proper editing of content to publish so as to minimize occurrence of errors.

Keywords: Language, Grammar, teaching, learning.

1. Introduction

This paper delves on the teaching and learning of Kiswahili language using one of the most popular languages teaching method called the Grammar Translation Method. Effective language teaching however requires the use of a cocktail of methods such as approach, method and technique (Anthony, 1963); approach, design and procedure (Richards and Rogers, 1982); Audiolingual method (Kumaravadivelu 2006); the oral approach and situational language teaching (Johnson, Keith; Johnson, Helen, eds, 1999) and the Communicative language teaching (Brown, 2001) among other methods. Grammar translation method involves the teaching and learning of grammatical rules of a language to enable learners pass information using well structured sentences and texts as well as understand the information they receive from other speakers. The information involved in the communication process may either be written or spoken. This work concentrates on the written texts from the Taifa Leo newspaper as a Kiswahili teaching resource.

It is assumed that, From the Taifa Leo newspaper the learner acquires the necessary skills to control the tools of Swahili language which are the vocabulary, grammar and the orthography, to be able to read, understand and write texts in various contexts. The teaching of grammar examines texts, and develops awareness that language constitutes a system which can be analyzed. From Taifa Leo, relevant data can be collected and analyzed to illustrate aspects of grammar and vocabulary teaching.

1.1 Problem Definition

The usefulness of Taifa Leo newspaper in teaching Kiswahili language has not been given adequate attention. This Paper discusses how the various aspects of grammar can be taught using this paper in a classroom situation.

1.2 Literature Review

Swahili language has become an East African Lingua Franca. In Kenya and Tanzania it is both a national and an official language. The language has also evolved into a lingua franca of the media and plays a big role in the integration of the East African region. In Tanzania, there are many newspapers using Swahili as their language of expression. Some of these newspapers are government owned while others are owned by private proprietors. In Kenya it is only the Taifa Leo newspaper published by the Nation Media Group that remains a Swahili newspaper that is distributed nationally.

According to www.faculty.virginia.edu over 100 universities in different parts of the world are currently teaching Swahili language and culture. The growth has been attributed to several programs created to promote the teaching of less commonly taught languages from across the globe. Previously viewed as an unpopular language by some, the Swahili language is expected to be at the forefront due to its increased popularity amongst foreigners and the media in all corners of the globe.

Part of this movement is the Swahili hub website www.swahilihub.com which is powered by both the Taifa Leo and the Tanzania Africaner publications. The website is beneficial to students and teachers alike as it consists of lessons and works to aid learning both locally and internationally. The teachers, pupils, students and parents can now sample, purchase and download award winning ushairi (compositions) taken from previous competitions published in the Taifa Leo newspaper. The ushairi include those written in the Kenya Certificate of Primary Education (KCPE) and Kenya Certificate of Secondary Education (KCSE) examinations and can be used as a learning aid to boost Kiswahili teaching.
