of the theory alone of the art will by itself fit one to meet the emergencies of war with skill and certainty To acquire such not only must its principles be learned but the habit as well of their application to concrete cases must be established A man might read volumes on how to lay brick but he could hardly attain skill thereat until he has long experience in the actual handling of his trowel The military mind like the mason s hand requires practice in the use of its tactical tools to acquire dexterity We do not have to wait for war to present its vital problems in order to begin the training of our officers in applied tactics But the teaching of tactics in time of peace by application to concrete situations requires no defense To confound the critics of that system one need but to point to the German Army and to the map of Europe today About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
