It Takes a School Jonathan Starr,2017-02-07 A story of David and Goliath proportions how an American hedge fund manager created a unique school in Somaliland whose students against all odds have come to achieve success beyond anyone s wildest dreams Jonathan Starr once a cutthroat hedge fund manager is not your traditional do gooder and in 2009 when he decided to found Abaarso a secondary school in Somaliland the choice seemed crazy to even his closest friends Why they wondered would he turn down a life of relative luxury to relocate to an armed compound in a breakaway region of the world's 1 failed state To achieve his mission Starr would have to overcome profound cultural differences broken promises and threats to his safety and that of his staff It Takes a School is the story of how an abstract vision became a transformative reality as Starr set out to build a school in a place forgotten by the world It is the story of a skeptical and clan based society learning to give way to trust And it's the story of the students themselves including a boy from a family of nomads who took off on his own in search of an education and a girl who waged a hunger strike in order to convince her strict parents to send her to Abaarso Abaarso has placed forty graduates and counting in American universities from Harvard to MIT and sends Somaliland a clear message its children can compete with anyone in the world Now the initial question Starr was asked demands another If such a success can happen in an unrecognized breakaway region of Somalia can it not happen anywhere

The Madwoman's Underclothes Germaine Greer, 1994-01-10 Always strong and fearless Germaine Greer strikes right at the heart of the matter be it John F Kennedy and vaginal deodorants rape and artificial insemination cosmetic surgery the death of Jimi Hendrix or the famine in Ethiopia This collection represents a mosaic of essays long and short some of which are appearing for the first time in print and all of which chafe the conventional and are bristling with argument From the youthful liveliness of her sixties pieces which got up everybody's nose to the depth and complexity of her later work The Madwoman's Underclothes is a reflection both of an era and of the changing ideas and styles of Germaine Greer The essays on Brazil Cuba and Ethiopia represent my coming of age Something like a coherent system of values is beginning to emerge after my years of wandering although I have certainly not arrived at a set of articles of faith and never will I hope Greer's opinions on social political and sexual trends and mores are tendered in her unique fashion outspoken with rapier wit and no tolerance for narrow mindedness But as explosive angry and often funny as these essays are they also reveal tenderness and sadness and that emotion that underlies all of Greer's work passionate commitment

Geographic prioritization of agricultural investments Maruyama, Eduardo,Schollard, Phoebe,2021-11-05 Through the Notification of Funding Opportunity NOFO for the project Advisory Services Program Management for Development and Implementation within the Agricultural Sector DCO PR 18 0293 issued a to the International Food Policy Research Institute IFPRI the Millennium Challenge Corporation MCC described a series of information needs and how IFPRI could provide research and analysis that would help the MCC maximize the effectiveness of their agricultural interventions This report focuses on how agricultural investment should be prioritized across territories within countries to maximize economic returns With this purpose in mind we develop a spatial and economic tool for strategic analysis and visioning to help understand where the best opportunities for investments in agriculture with specific examples for investments in irrigation and roads in Ethiopia and Malawi For such investments to be effective for poverty alleviation it is necessary that they lead to farm level increases in productivity and are translated into higher incomes and better livelihoods for rural households Our proposed approach utilizes stochastic frontier analysis SFA to estimate smallholders agricultural potential under optimal conditions and compare it with their current performance to assess their efficiency levels SFA allows the econometric exploration of the notion that given fixed local agroecological and economic conditions in a region and the occurrence of random shocks that affect agricultural production the decisions farmers and policymakers make translate into higher or lower production and profits Inefficiency is then defined as the loss incurred by operating away from an ideal production frontier and by estimating where this frontier lies and how far each producer is from it SFA helps to identify local potential and efficiency levels to construct the typology For this report we show how this approach can allow us to compare estimated agricultural potential and efficiency levels under current conditions and hypothetical investment scenarios and calculate what are the agricultural profit gains linked to each case We can then extrapolate these results at the regional level for the whole country and combine them with GIS data on local agroecological conditions water availability topography and road infrastructure to construct our typology In particular we use our typology results to assess where investments in agriculture would be more effective in bringing rural households out of poverty closing the poverty gap and how two different types of investments can increase rural households incomes through an increase in the profitability of smallholder agriculture The first scenario looks at the impact of an increase in access to irrigation through river diversion methods while the second scenario looks at the impact of an increase in market access which we simulate by analyzing what would be the impact of reducing travel time to the nearest market city of least 25 000 inhabitants from any farm in the country by 50% For Ethiopia we find pockets of considerable unattained farm profits located throughout the central and western parts of the country where opportunities for investments to close efficiency gaps in agricultural production and marketing can yield high returns Low potential in the eastern lowlands limit opportunities for gains from efficiency oriented investments and development efforts in these regions should be focused in long term large scale interventions that shift the agricultural frontier With respect to poverty alleviation our results show that for many regions in the country especially in the high central plateau investing in increasing the efficiency of smallholders would be enough to close the poverty gap In contrast many areas in the Somali Tigray Afar Oromia and SNNP regions would require unrealistically high shifts in their agricultural potential due to its current low level combined in many cases with higher than average poverty gaps The results from the improved irrigation access scenario are heavily constrained by the surface water availability constraint and show that the largest impacts would be observed in Somali and Afar while in the case of the improved market access scenario these benefits would extend to Tigray as well For Malawi our maps show higher agricultural potential in the Northern and Central regions of the country consistent with the higher precipitation levels and the agroecological suitability for horticulture in the Kasungu Lilongwe Plain central and the staple crop producing areas in the north such as Chipita. The southern region suffers from lower potential due to poorer general weather conditions and lower rainfall levels. The unattained potential map shows that despite high levels of efficiency potential in the north is high enough for the remaining gap to be significant and that the levels of efficiency in the southern tip of the country are low enough to offer some opportunities for efficiency enhancing investments in those areas as well. The poverty analysis shows that the incidence and depth of poverty are higher in the Southern Region of Malawi but that the poverty gap in all districts of the country could be closed by investing in efficiency enhancing interventions in agriculture without depending on investments that shift the agricultural profit frontier. The results from the improved irrigation access scenario show a larger impact in the Central Region of the country particularly the districts of Kasungu Dowa and Salima while the improved market access scenario benefits are more evenly spread out across the country. The Mankind Quarterly Council for Social and Economic Studies (U.S.), 2007

Geo-trekking in Ethiopia's Tropical Mountains Jan Nyssen, Miro Jacob, Amaury Frankl, 2019-07-09 This book is based on over 150 scientific papers about the Dogu a Tembien district in Ethiopia. To reach a broader public of people interested in geosites and human environment interactions the authors here add a geoguide about this mountain district in Ethiopia 13 30 N 39 10 E upto 2850 m high which shows a varied lithology. A large team has carried out research in that district over the past 23 years including long stays in the areas. Numerous viewpoints and geosites are only accessible on foot hence the authors prepared the book as a trekking guide which will enhance sustainable tourism in the same time. This edited work summarises the study results in the international literature into a comprehensive book which comprises 35 thematic chapters detailed description of 573 km of trekking routes to access the landscape and the most scenic excursion points as well as the necessary logistical information. A state of the art trekking map is included as a digital annex.

HOPE - Healing Our People & Earth Jude Currivan, Ph.D., 2011-07-04 As a cosmologist and healer Dr Jude Currivan has journeyed to nearly seventy countries around the world and has explored and studied numerous important sacred sites and places of conflict. HOPE shares her understanding and experiences of the energetic connections between people and places from a spiritual perspective which is informed and expanded by leading edge science. HOPE investigates too how different groups and countries reflect and embody the same themes and issues that we experience on an individual human level. It reveals how the history of different areas of conflict around the world and our collective fear based behaviours are based on traumas that we have energetically continued to resonate with and crucially how to heal and release them. HOPE also shows the cosmic connection between astrological influences and the bigger picture of what is unfolding and explores why 2012 is so synchronistically destined to offer us the breakthrough of a shift of collective consciousness if as the Mayans say we choose to do so.
