The Humanities In The Age Of Science:

Observations on the Status of the Humanities in an Age of Science Hilda Urén Stubbings, 1958 Humanities in the Age of Science Charles Angoff, 1975 The contributors are all outstanding purveyors of what is knowledgeable and dynamic in the realm of education and they have endeavored to set down in writing what is of major interest to them in the areas of art literature history science and religion Written in honor of Dr Peter Sammartino the first president of Fairleigh Dickinson University The Humanities in an Age of Science. Three Lectures, Etc John Francis Leddy, 1961 The Humanities in the age of science, in honor of Peter Sammartino, ed , The Human and Humanities in the Age of Globalization Afis A. Oladosu, Ayobami Ojebode, Adeshina Afolayan, 2024-11-03 This volume critically engages with how the idea of the human features in African societies and scholarship From the most established to emergent scholars contributions to this volume examine issues from the funding of the humanities to the relationship between the humanities and national development and from citizenship and spirituality to the idea of the humane environment and a responsible media representation All the contributors are concerned with the urgent imperative of rescuing the human and what it means to be humane in a world being pushed steadily towards a dystopic future by climate change religious fundamentalism racism and academic hubris all contributing to the advancement of humanity to the brink of the precipice The Concept of Humanity in an Age of Globalization Longxi Zhang, 2011-12-07 Rethinking humanity as a concept in our age of globalization and its relevance to the social and political reality of our times are the topic of this book It calls for the reclaiming of humanism as an effective response to the conflict turmoil and violence we witness in the world today Concepts of humanity and humanism have become suspect of na vet at best and guilty of bad faith and repressive ideologies at worst Yet hope for improvement is incorrigibly human the concept of humanity still holds enormous attraction to intellectuals and humanistic scholars At the same time it is important to realize that the critique of humanism is very much based on and limited to Western social and historical experience To re conceptualize humanity and humanism from a truly global perspective will help reclaiming a more inclusive kind of humanism In this sense a cross cultural perspective is important for reclaiming humanism in our age of globalization The present volume is the result of such an effort The diversity of the authors views speaks eloquently of the complexity of the concept of humanity or what constitutes the distinctly human and therefore the necessity to have an in depth dialogue on the fate of humanity Philosophy in the Age of Science? Julia Hermann, Jeroen Hopster, Wouter Kalf, Michael Klenk, 2020-06-09 Current academic philosophy is being challenged from several angles Subdisciplinary specialisations often make it challenging to articulate philosophy s relevance for the societal questions of our day Additionally the success of the scientific method puts pressure on philosophers to articulate their methods and specify how these can be successful How does philosophical progress come about What can philosophy contribute to our understanding of today s world Moreover can it also contribute to resolving urgent societal challenges such as anthropogenic climate change This edited volume evaluates the place of philosophy in the age of science It addresses three related sub themes philosophical progress philosophical method and philosophy s societal relevance Fourteen authors engage with these sub themes focusing on the topics of their philosophical expertise such as the philosophy of religion evolutionary ethics and the nature of free will In doing so they explore their methods of enquiry and look at how progress in their research comes about

Autobiography and Natural Science in the Age of Romanticism Bernhard Kuhn,2016-04-15 Set against the backdrop of a rapidly fissuring disciplinary landscape where poetry and science are increasingly viewed as irreconcilable and unrelated Bernhard Kuhn s study uncovers a previously ignored fundamental connection between autobiography and the natural sciences Examining the autobiographies and scientific writings of Rousseau Goethe and Thoreau as representative of their ages Kuhn challenges the now entrenched thesis of the two cultures Rather these three writers are exemplary in that their autobiographical and scientific writings may be read not as separate or even antithetical but as mutually constitutive projects that challenge the newly emerging boundaries between scientific and humanistic thought during the Romantic period Reading each writer s life stories and nature works side by side as they were written Kuhn reveals the scientific character of autobiographical writing while demonstrating the autobiographical nature of natural science He considers all three writers in the context of scientific developments in their own times as well as ours showing how each one marks a distinctive stage in the growing estrangement of the arts and sciences from the self assured epistemic unity of Rousseau s time to the splintering of disciplines into competing ways of knowing under the pressures of specialization and professionalization during the late Romantic age of Thoreau His book thus traces an unfolding drama in which these writers and their contemporaries each situated in an intellectual landscape more fragmented than the last seek to keep together what modern culture is determined to break apart

Spectacular Science, Technology and Superstition in the Age of Shakespeare Sophie Chiari,2017-09-01 To the readers who ask themselves What is science this volume provides an answer from an early modern perspective whereby science included such various intellectual pursuits as history poetry occultism and philosophy

Selling Science in the Age of Newton Jeffrey R. Wigelsworth,2016-04-01 Selling Science in the Age of Newton explores an often ignored avenue in the popularization of science It is an investigation of how advertisements in London newspapers from approximately 1687 to 1727 enticed consumers to purchase products relating to science books lecture series and instruments London s readers were among the first in Europe to be exposed to regular newspapers and the advertisements contained in them This occurred just as science began to captivate the nation s imagination due in part to Isaac Newton s rising popularity following the publication of his Principia 1687 This unique moment allows us to see how advertising helped shape the initial public reception of science This book fills a substantial gap in our understanding of science and the culture in which it developed by examining the medium of advertising and its function in the discourse of both early modern science and commerce It answers questions such as what happens to science once it is a commodity how are consumers tempted to purchase science amidst a sea of other commodities how is the reading public encouraged to give social acceptance to facts of nature and how did marketing campaigns craft newspapers readers into a source of validation for the items of science advertised In an age where the production of scientific knowledge increasingly relied upon sales to many rather than the endorsement of a single wealthy patron marketing was the key to success

Human Becoming in an Age of Science, Technology, and Faith Philip Hefner, 2022-08-23 What does it mean to be human in an age of science technology and faith The ability to ask such a question suggests at least a partial answer in that however we describe ourselves we bear a major role in determining what we will become In this book Philip Hefner reminds us that this inescapable condition is the challenge and opportunity of Homo sapiens as the created co creator In four original chapters and an epilogue Hefner frames the created co creator as a memoirist with an ambiguous legacy explores some of the roots of this ambiguity emphasizes the importance of answering this ambiguity with symbols that can interpret it in wholesome ways proposes a partial theological framework for co creating such symbols and applies this framework to the challenge of using technology like artificial intelligence and robotics to create other co creators in our own image Editors Jason P Roberts and Mladen Turk have compiled eight responses to Hefner s work to honor his scholarly career and answer his call to help co create a more wholesome future in an age of science technology and faith

Complexity Thinking: Science in the Age of Alternative Truths Cornelis Pieter Pieters, 2024-04-26 Many scholars agree that we are currently living in post ideological times and that the role of religion and social ideology has become increasingly limited as a means to organise society. Some even talk of a post truth era as truth itself has become suspect and public debate has become infected with terms such as fake news and alternative truths. In fact in many scientific areas the notions of truth objectivity and fact are being questioned and are often even considered instruments that aim to perpetuate relationships of power of elites. This book aims to take a position in these debates by looking at the often implicit associations behind truth objectivity and fact. By taking a complexity informed dialectical approach a more encompassing understanding of these concepts can be developed that both respects the formidable achievements of science while being sensitive to the critique that has been raised most notably by postmodern thought.

God in the Age of Science? Herman Philipse, 2012-02-23 Herman Philipse puts forward a powerful new critique of belief in God. He examines the strategies that have been used for the philosophical defence of religious belief and by careful reasoning casts doubt on the legitimacy of relying on faith instead of evidence and on probabilistic arguments for the existence of God.

Science in the Age of Sensibility Jessica Riskin, 2010-11-15 Empiricism today implies the dispassionate scrutiny of facts. But Jessica Riskin finds that in the French Enlightenment empiricism was intimately bound up with sensibility. In what she calls a sentimental empiricism natural knowledge was taken to rest on a blend of experience and emotion. Riskin argues that sentimental empiricism brought together ideas and institutions practices and politics. She shows for instance how the study of blindness led by ideas about the mental and moral role of vision and by cataract surgeries shaped the first school for the blind how Benjamin Franklin s electrical physics ascribing desires to nature engaged French economic reformers and how the question of the role of language in science and social life linked disputes over Antoine Lavoisier s new chemical names to the founding of France s modern system of civic education. Recasting the Age of Reason by stressing its conjunction with the Age of Sensibility Riskin offers an entirely new perspective on the development of modern science and the history of the Enlightenment.

Philosophy in an Age of Science Hilary Putnam, 2012-04-17 Hilary Putnam s unceasing self criticism has led to the frequent changes of mind he is famous for but his thinking is also marked by considerable continuity. A simultaneous interest in science and ethics unusual in the current climate of contention has long characterized his thought. In Philosophy in an Age of Science Putnam collects his papers for publication his first volume in almost two decades. Mario De Caro and David Macarthur s introduction identifies central themes to help the reader negotiate between Putnam past and Putnam present his critique of logical positivism his enduring aspiration to be realist about rational normativity his anti essentialism about a range of central philosophical notions his reconciliation of the scientific worldview and the humanistic tradition and his movement from reductive scientific naturalism to liberal naturalism Putnam returns here to some of his first enthusiasms in philosophy such as logic mathematics and quantum mechanics The reader is given a glimpse too of ideas currently in development on the subject of perception Putnam s work contributing to a broad range of philosophical inquiry has been said to represent a history of recent philosophy in outline Here it also delineates a possible future
