Burchill,2005-05-11 This is the first systematic and critical analysis of the concept of national interest from the perspective of contemporary theories of International Relations including realist Marxist anarchist liberal English School and constructivist perspectives Scott Burchill explains that although commonly used in diplomacy the national interest is a highly problematic concept and a poor guide to understanding the motivations of foreign policy

Economic Committee,1991 Defining the National Interest Peter Trubowitz,1998-02-17 The United States has been marked by a highly politicized and divisive history of foreign policy making Why do the nation s leaders find it so difficult to define the national interest Peter Trubowitz offers a new and compelling conception of American foreign policy and the domestic geopolitical forces that shape and animate it Foreign policy conflict he argues is grounded in America s regional diversity The uneven nature of America s integration into the world economy has made regionalism a potent force shaping fights over the national interest As Trubowitz shows politicians from different parts of the country have consistently sought to equate their region s interests with that of the nation Domestic conflict over how to define the national interest is the result Challenging dominant accounts of American foreign policy making Defining the National Interest exemplifies how interdisciplinary scholarship can yield a deeper understanding of the connections between domestic and international change in an era of globalization

United States National Interests in a Changing World Donald E. Nuechterlein,2021-09-15 Although the term national interest has long been used in reference to the foreign policy goals of nations there has been no generally agreed upon definition of the concept as a result Donald E Nuechterlein contends there has been a tendency for foreign policy to be determined by institutional prejudice and past policy rather than by a systematic assessment of national interests By what criterion does a President decide that a given interest is or is not vital that is whether he must contemplate defending it by force if other measures fail In this study Nuechterlein offers a new conceptual framework for the analysis of foreign policy decisions resting on more precise definitions and distinguishing among the degrees of interest that the United States perceives in the range of foreign policy issues it faces He also deals with the constitutional problem of checks and balances between the Presidency and Congress in setting the goals of foreign policy and the influence of private interest groups and the media on the definition of national interest Underlining the need for constant reassessment of priorities in a rapidly changing international environment Nuechterlein illustrates his analysis by drawing on the American experience in foreign affairs since World War II A case study of the American involvement in Southeast Asia describes how six presidents beginning with Franklin Roosevelt viewed United States interests there and the conclusions each drew in terms of policy tools to defend those interests in Vietnam Finally he assesses what the future vital interests of the United States are likely to be in light of the shifting balance of world power and the growing importance of international economics

International Science in the National Interest at the U.S. Geological Survey National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Earth Sciences and Resources, Committee on Opportunities and Challenges for International Science at the U.S. Geological Survey, 2012-07-18 Science at the U S Geological Survey USGS is intrinsically global and from early in its history the USGS has successfully carried out international projects that serve U S national interests and benefit the USGS domestic mission Opportunities abound for the USGS to strategically pursue international science in the next 5 10 years that bears on growing worldwide problems having direct impact on the United States climate and ecosystem changes natural disasters the spread of invasive species and diminishing natural resources to name a few Taking a more coherent proactive agency approach to international science and building support for international projects currently in progress would help the USGS participate in international science activities more effectively

Pursuing the National Interest Karl K. Schonberg, 2003-10-30 The history of twentieth century American foreign policy presents an indictment of classical and structural realism and systemic theories of international relations more generally Examining five crucial movements of transition in American foreign policy making before and after each of the world wars and the end of the Cold War Shonberg argues that the national interest resides mostly in the eye of the beholder and that the idiosyncratic perceptions beliefs and values of individuals are of vital importance in the policy process Thus America s recent experiences in global politics interpreted through the lens of national ideology has defined and created the ultimate shape of a new foreign policy

Global Trade and Conflicting National Interests Ralph E. Gomory, William J. Baumol, 2022-06-07 Ralph Gomory and William Baumol adapt classical trade models to the modern world economy In this book Ralph Gomory and William Baumol adapt classical trade models to the modern world economy Trade today is dominated by manufactured goods rapidly moving technology and huge firms that benefit from economies of scale This is very different from the largely agricultural world in which the classical theories originated Gomory and Baumol show that the new and significant conflicts resulting from international trade are inherent in modern economies Today improvement in one country s productive capabilities is often attainable only at the expense of another country s general welfare The authors describe why and when this is so and why in a modern free trade environment a country might have a vital stake in the competitive strength of its industries

National Interest and International Aviation Erwin von den Steinen, 2006-01-01 Many of the problems and opportunities facing society today are determined by issues of mobility Access to people products information and resources has emerged as a priority in the foreign policies of most states Inevitably considerations of national interest have played a central role in the structure and operations of the international aviation system Meanwhile air transport has been a catalyst for the phenomenon of globalization This first in depth exploration of the vital relationship between aviation policy and national interest in todays global economy focuses on those areas of concern where the international community has common ground or where conflicts of interest are most likely to arise Revealing deeply informed perspectives gained from decades of distinguished public service in many areas of aviation policy Erwin von den Steinen reviews the rules that govern the conduct of commercial air services between nations and considers the prospects of aviation in the 21st Century He explains how timely understanding of national interest can provide a context for global and local policy to connect and why the international aviation system is vital for the peaceful and sustainable development of modern states and societies With such insights and powerful practical recommendations von den Steinens analysis will be of enormous value to those concerned with air transport from technical research and design to the highest levels of government as well as to lawyers and academics in international law and relations and a tour of the major issues in international aviation law and policy under the guidance of an authentic homme engageand Ultimately this book is the work of someone who deeply appreciates the aviation industry both at its technical level that of its often frustrating machinations of law and policy and also at the emotional level of a special business that exemplifies freedom and imagination like few others do and Brian F Havel and The Introduction has one of the best free flowing leads to a book detailing the politics of aviation and diplomacy I have come acrossand I commend this book to lawyers diplomats and students of aero politics and lawand I would prescribe this book to my graduate students as compulsory reading for their course in Aero political and legal Environment and Dr Ruwantissa Abeyratne

National Interest Margaret Daly Hayes, 2019-03-04 Arguing for a new and sober look at the nature of U S Latin American relations Dr Hayes addresses the question Does the United States have compelling national interests in maintaining close relations with Latin American countries Her conclusion is yes but for reasons different from those offered in the traditional literature or espoused by many policy analysts She maintains that U S interests in relations with Latin America are primarily political secondarily economic though economic ties are the basis of the relationship and only marginally military Proper emphasis on these long term interests may be critical to U S national security in a global as well as regional context Dr Hayes points out that the Latin American countries occupying a unique position among developing nations today because of their comparatively successful experiences in achieving economic growth and development represent an increasingly important political influence in both the developed and developing worlds Moreover she argues it is in the U S interest to give economic aid to the less developed countries in the hemisphere particularly in the Caribbean Basin U S security is better preserved and enhanced by encouraging political and economic stability in the region than by promoting military alliances that Latin Americans may not really want Supporting the need for a revised rationale for U S Latin American relations Dr Hayes focuses in detail on the regions and nations of special interest to the United States today the Caribbean Basin Mexico in a chapter by Professor Bruce M Bagley Brazil and the Southern Cone Two Faces of National Interest , New Forces in the World Economy Brad Roberts, 1996 Comprises a collection of articles originally published in The Washington Quarterly between 1990 and 1996 Articles are grouped under the following themes The Global Economy of the 1990s The USA Competitiveness Debate New Directions of Trade and Investment The New Regional Dimension The Global Power of Financial Markets and The Governance Agenda Covers mainly the 1990s
