The Silent Game David Stafford, 2012-02-01 The Silent Game traces the history of spy writers and their fiction from creator William Le Queux of the Edwardian age to John le Carr of the Cold War era David Stafford reveals the connections between fact and fiction as seen in the lives of writers with experience in intelligence including John Buchan Compton Mackenzie Somerset Maugham Ian Fleming and Graham Greene Le Queux used his spy fiction as xenophobic propaganda before and after World War I and le Carr's novels have provided reflections on the Cold War and the decline of Britain's influence Anxieties about the decline of the American empire have helped stimulate a more vigorous American literature of espionage providing an index of contemporary American concerns about power relations As Stafford suggests the genre of espionage fiction rarely intends to document the real world of intelligence Rather it provides a popular vehicle for exploring themes of imperial decline international crisis and impending war in the last six months of peace and the first year of the Second World War It shows how against the backdrop of an endemic British social anti-Semitism a virulent form of this tendency was able to emerge in the late Thirties in a variety of extremist movements These movements gained their strength from the popular obsessions in 1939 with Jewish responsibility for the approaching war seen as The War of the Jews Revenge and with the myth of the Judaeo Bolshevik Plot In many cases these views were closely related with pro Nazism and were often held by the most patriotic of people For most the outbreak of war was a signal to perform their patriotic duty But there were others who found themselves in a considerable dilemma torn between patriotism and their desire to subvert a war they believed Britain to have been tricked into undertaking Researching many prominent figures of the day including Captain Ramsay and Sir Oswald Mosley Patriotism Perverted offers a fascinating insight into the views and activities of those in the various anti-Semitic and or pro Nazi circles in 1939 The
