Krauss, 1986-07-09 Co founder and co editor of October magazine a veteran of Artforum of the 1960s and early 1970s Rosalind Krauss has presided over and shared in the major formulation of the theory of postmodernism In this challenging collection of fifteen essays most of which originally appeared in October she explores the ways in which the break in style that produced postmodernism has forced a change in our various understandings of twentieth century art beginning with the almost mythic idea of the avant garde Krauss uses the analytical tools of semiology structuralism and poststructuralism to reveal new meanings in the visual arts and to critique the way other prominent practitioners of art and literary history write about art In two sections Modernist Myths and Toward Postmodernism her essays range from the problem of the grid in painting and the unity of Giacometti's sculpture to the works of Jackson Pollock Sol Lewitt and Richard Serra and observations about major trends in contemporary literary criticism Surrealism Mary Ann Caws, 2010-06-23 Surrealism is a survey of the twentieth century's longest lasting and arguably most influential art movement Championed and held together by André Breton for over forty years Surrealism was France's major avant garde artistic tendency from 1924 onwards rapidly spreading around the globe to become an international phenomenon During World War II Surrealism's exiled artists and writers had a major impact on American art and were a primary influence for the Abstract Expressionist generation. The official surrealist movement continued to the end of Breton's life in 1966 and its legacy is still pervasive today in contemporary art as well as in numerous quotations from surrealist imagery in cinema, advertising and the media. The Survey essay by Mary Ann Caws, a distinguished scholar, translator and associate of the Surrealists, describes in clear, perceptive and lively prose the essential characteristics that define Surrealism as well as tracing a concise path through the chronology of this prolific and wide-ranging movement. The text also demonstrates how surrealist art and writing are interdependent. The Works section follows the movement from its beginnings in the 1920s up to the 1940s and 1950s. Its six sections trace the themes which predominated at different stages: Chance and Freedom, the earliest work characterized by complete automatic spontaneity; Poetics of Vision, the strategies of surrealist image making reflecting the mind's inner visions; Elusive Objects, the fascination with objects of all kinds from which emerged artworks such as Meret Oppenheim's celebrated fur-lined cup and saucer; Desire, the investigation of desire, eroticism and mad love which is central and unique to the movement; Delirium, Surrealism's high-risk engagement with extreme mental states and disturbing, uncanny visions; and the Infinite Terrains of later Surrealism ranging from Joseph Cornell's magical assemblages in box frames like theatres of the mind to the infinite fields and dynamic energy of late surrealist painting at the dawn of Abstract Expressionism.

Surrealism and the Art of Crime Jonathan Paul Eburne, 2008

Corpses mark surrealism's path through the twentieth century, providing material evidence of the violence in modern life. Though the shifting group of poets, artists and critics who made up the surrealist movement were witness to total war, revolutionary violence and mass killing, it was the tawdry reality of everyday crime that fascinated them. Jonathan P. Eburne shows us how this focus reveals the relationship between aesthetics and politics in the thought and artwork of the surrealists and establishes their movement as a useful platform for addressing the contemporary problem of violence, both individual and political. In a book strikingly illustrated with surrealist artworks and their sometimes gruesome source material, Eburne addresses key individual works by both better-known surrealist writers and artists including Andr  Breton, Louis Aragon, Aim  C saire, Jacques Lacan, Georges Bataille, Max Ernst and Salvador Dal , and lesser-known figures such as Ren  Crevel, Simone Breton, Leonora Carrington, Benjamin P ret and Jules Monnerot. For Eburne, the art of crime denotes an array of cultural production including sensationalist journalism, detective mysteries, police blotters, crime scene photos and documents of medical and legal opinion as well as the roman noir. In particular, the first crime novel of the American, Chester Himes. The surrealists collected and scrutinized such materials, using them as the inspiration for the outpouring of political tracts, pamphlets and artworks through which they sought to expose the forms of violence perpetrated in the name of the state, its courts and respectable bourgeois values. Concluding with the surrealists' quarrel with the existentialists and their bitter condemnation of France's anticolonial wars, Surrealism and the Art of Crime establishes surrealism as a vital element in the intellectual, political and artistic history of the twentieth century.

linked with the Surrealist concept of psychic automatism Extending the discussion of the concepts at stake for Surrealist visual art into the context of film literature and criticism this study sheds new light on the way film thinking permeates Surrealist thought and aesthetics In early chapters Finkelstein looks at the concept of the screen as emblematic of a strand of spatial apprehension that informs the work of young writers in the 1920s such as Robert Desnos and Louis Aragon He goes on to explore the way the spatial character of the serial films of Louis Feuillade intimated to the Surrealists a related mode of vision associated with perception of the mystery and the Marvelous lurking behind the surfaces of quotidian reality The dialectics informing Surrealist thought with regard to the surfaces of the real with walls doors and windows as controlling images are shown to be at the basis of Andr   Breton's notion of the picture as a window Contrary to the traditional sense of this metaphor Breton's window is informed by the screen paradigm with its surface serving as a locus of a dialectics of transparency and opacity permeability and reflectivity The main aesthetic and conceptual issues that come up in the consideration of Breton's window metaphor lay the groundwork for an analysis of the work of Giorgio de Chirico Ren   Magritte Max Ernst Andr   Breton and Joan Mir   the concluding chapter consi
