imagined geographies histories and people of the American nation      Therapeutic Revolutions Jeremy A. Greene, Flurin Condrau, Elizabeth Siegel Watkins, 2016-11-23 When asked to compare the practice of medicine today to that of a hundred years ago most people will respond with a story of therapeutic revolution Back then we had few effective remedies but now we have more and more powerful tools to fight disease from antibiotics to psychotropics to steroids to anticancer agents This collection challenges the historical accuracy of this revolutionary narrative and offers instead a more nuanced account of the process of therapeutic innovation and the relationships between the development of medicines and social change These assembled histories and ethnographies span three continents and use the lived experiences of physicians and patients consumers and providers and marketers and regulators to reveal the tensions between universal claims of therapeutic knowledge and the actual ways these claims have been used and understood in specific sites from postwar West Germany pharmacies to twenty first century Nigerian street markets By asking us to rethink a story we thought we knew Therapeutic Revolutions offers invaluable insights to historians anthropologists and social scientists of medicine      From Psyche to Soma and Back George Freeman Solomon M.D., 2000-07-28 FROM PSYCHE TO SOMA AND BACK Tales of Biopsychosocial Medicine by George Freeman Solomon M D with Ping Ho M A From Psyche to Soma and Back subtitled Tales of Biopsychosocial Medicine is a scientific and personal adventure story that of George Solomon a pioneer of psychoneuroimmunology the fast growing field that studies interactions among brain behavior and immunity who has always tended to tackle problems that others had not or would not Dr Solomon tries to solve mysteries be they scientific or criminal in bold unconventional and often controversial ways His odyssey is an expos of conceptual narrowness and ethical shortcomings in clinical medicine scientific research criminology and the military Stories of real people remain in the forefront throughout The through line is the vicissitudes of human aggression If one cannot stick up for oneself one is prone to physical illness If one takes out anger on others one makes society sick If one goes against ones own conscience to commit harm against others under social pressure one may wind up with a mental disorder All of medicine as well as psychiatry and psychology is complexly biopsychosocial in nature as Dr George Engel pointed out in 1960 As might be added so is criminology To make more sense to the reader of a varied professional life that moves among these domains sometimes contemporaneously the book itself is divided into Biopsychosocial and Psychosocial sections However for the purpose of this outline of content it makes sense to be descriptive chronologically even though it does not follow the order of the book A list of chapters is appended This description will be a first person narrative The groundwork for my thinking began with graduate and specialty medical education Stanford Washington University UCSF I repeatedly observed the inseparability of physical from psychological causes of physical and mental illnesses There were the exceptionally nice unassertive people who when deeply distressed were getting sick with rheumatoid arthritis and other autoimmune diseases when the immune system attacks the bodys own tissues Could personality factors influence the immune system Could Stress Later I did quite well in betting my rheumatologist colleagues that after a 20 minute non medical chat I could determine which patients with short term joint symptoms had rheumatoid arthritis over all possible causes There was the catatonic schizophrenic whose three month cure was triggered by her response to my own emotional grief and ended with my departure What was going on at the dopamine receptors of her brain neurons during the improvement It seemed to me that thoughts and feelings can change dopamine just as much as dopamine can change thoughts and feelings Each clinical case I encountered seemed to solidify my belief in the mind body connection I learned quickly that the only way that I would survive a two year stint in the Army was to disguise my rebellious nature a skill that has since served me well in academia Stationed at Ft McClellan near Anniston Alabama which I privately called Anus town because of its then vicious racism I was privy to Chemical Corps developments in lethal chemical and biological warfare This work was largely carried out by veterinarians because they do not take the Hippocratic Oath A main interest at that time was experimentation in the use of psychotomimetic compounds such as LSD as incapacitating agents leading to my making some startling observations I also served as psychiatrist to the Womens Army Corps Training Command at Ft McClellan where I made special efforts to try to thwart witch hunts against ab
